Hedlund statement called 'politicking'

Lang to snub WHIP on committee appointments

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling Trustee Al Lang said he probably will ignore Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP) suggestions on the upcoming appointment of village commissioners, saying they are an effort to bring politics into the appointments.

Lang, who heads the village board's judiciary and purchasing committee, is responsible for making recommendations on such appointments.

Otis "Skip" Hedlund, speaking for the WHIP party, has called on the village board to bypass several current commission members in an effort to restore confidence in village government. Hedlund said such action would "remove any suggestion of conflict of interest" from the village commissions.

IN HIS REMARKS, Hedlund said the commissions are currently suffering from "the taint of corruption and the image of a stacked village body." His statements refer to the fact that six former and present Wheeling and Cook County officials were indicted Jan. 31 after a year-long federal grand jury probe into shakedowns of Wheeling developers. Two of the six have pleaded guilty and been sentenced to prison terms.

As a remedy, Hedlund suggested that the village refrain from appointing anyone who served on village commissions during the time of the shakedowns. He specifically cited the control exerted over the village by James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who pleaded guilty to extorting $92,000 from three Wheeling developers. In pleading guilty, Stavros admitted having enough control over village government to prevent construction of those projects if he opposed them.

"Remove any suggestion of continued Stavros control by not reappointing anyone who had served on any commission during the time of his admitted influence, or who have served one or more full term," Hedlund said.

LANG SAID HEDLUND's statements were unfair because he singled out three men from among all of the commissioners who are up for reappointment. The three are plan commissioners Jack Metzger, Herb Lortz and Desere Smet.

"If he was saying all the present members should be replaced, how come he only picked on three," Lang said. "He should have said everybody instead of just naming three."

The trustee said he will not turn his back on Hedlund's request, but said he did not agree with Hedlund's suggestion that the board appoint those persons who applied for commissions but were passed over. He said that according to his records only three persons have applied for commission seats and were not appointed. He said the three are John Cargill, Maureen Pitt and Jim Poole, and noted they applied for the most popular commissions, zoning, planning and environmental and declined to accept other positions.

Cargill is the son of former plan commission and zoning board member, Douglas Cargill. Mrs. Pitt, a member of the WHIP party, was on the human relations commission but did not seek reappointment. Poole is a former member of the police and fire commission and currently serves as president of the Highland Glen Homeowners Assn.

LANG SAID HE thinks the village board has tried to pick qualified people to do a specific job for the community. He said Hedlund is trying to penalize all commission members for trying to do that job.

Board members already have reappointed two commissioners who sit on boards controlled by state regulations. Robert Olson was reappointed to the police and fire commission for a term ending April 30, 1977. Walter Diens was reappointed to the police pension board for a term ending April 30, 1978.

Other appointments will be considered at an upcoming village board meeting.

Village board acting to retain consulting firm

Wheeling trustees are moving to retain a consulting firm to evaluate village operations to prevent a repeat of the current scandal resulting from a federal probe of official village corruption.

Trustees have asked the consulting firm of Booz, Allen and Hamilton to prepare a written proposal for the work they might do in evaluating village operations.

Two members of that firm presented a sketchy presentation of consulting services they might offer the village. The two said their firm might charge anywhere from $15,000 to $35,000, depending on the type of review requested by the village.

VILLAGE BOARD members, however, said they needed more information before making a decision. They asked that the firm prepare a specific written proposal free of charge outlining what work they might do for the village. The proposal can be ready in two weeks, according to the representatives.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he also will invite three other consulting firms to interview with the village board. The firms are Urban Alternatives, Yarger and Associates Inc. and Callaghan and Co.

The consulting firm review was requested by Trustees Don Jackson after six former and present Wheeling and Cook County officials were indicted Jan. 31 following a federal grand jury probe into shakedowns of Wheeling developers.

Two of the six have already pleaded guilty and been sentenced to prison terms.

Jackson said the village might be able to prevent a repeat of the scandal by taking a close look at current village operations. He said the village should uncover its own weaknesses and take steps to correct them, instead of waiting for the ongoing federal investigation to turn up more problems.

St. Alphonsus School graduation Friday

Graduation ceremonies for eighth-grade students at St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the school, 411 Wheeling Rd.

The school has also announced the winners of a recent track meet at the school. Winners in grades one through four were gold medals to Lisa Gebert and Michael Sersen, silver medals to Anne Ferrara and Richard Behnke and a bronze medal to Patricia Zemaitis.

School-parks projects review set for tonight

The Wheeling Park Board tonight will review plans for improvements to the school-park sites and the remodeling of the Heritage Park recreation building.

Both projects are among improvements promised in the $700,000 park referendum approved by voters in 1972. The park board already has rejected bids for the remodeling of Heritage Park, saying the project would be too expensive. Tonight they are expected to consider alternative methods of remodeling the building.

Park planners McFadden and Everly Ltd. will present final plans for improvements to the park and school-park sites, which will include tennis courts, basketball standards, preparation of playground areas, grading and drainage work.

Board members are currently trying to make sure that there will be enough funds available to cover all of the park improvements promised in 1972.

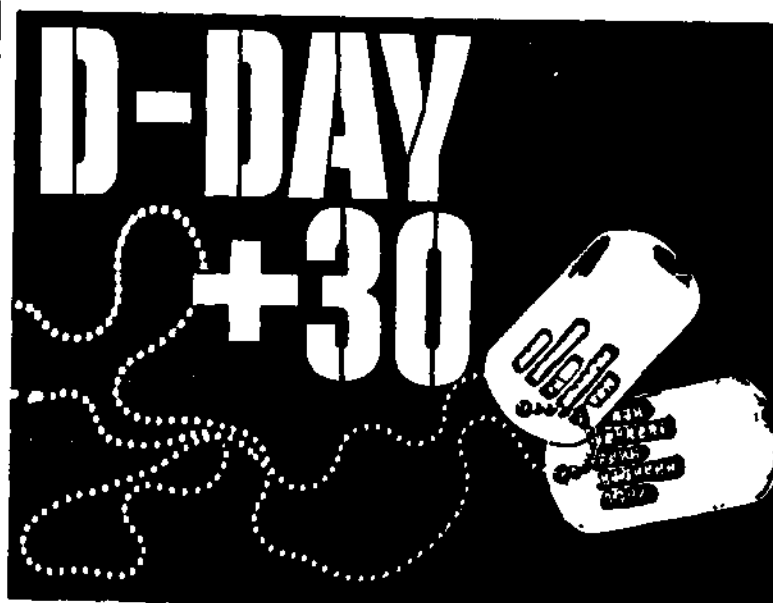

Prior to the regular meeting, park commissioners will meet with Trustee William Hein to discuss flood control programs. The park district is working with the village on improvements proposed for the Heritage Park and Husky Park retention basins.

Committee meetings will begin at 7 p.m. with the regular meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. at Heritage Park recreation building, 223 S. Wolf Rd.

And the
recalls...

'We didn't find out we were going until the night before . . . we just loaded up and went'

by BARRY SIGALE

It was the greatest assault in the history of warfare; an assault on a continent, on an opposing army, and on the idea of fascism.

On the Allied side 30 years ago today there were some 2 million men. And of the thousands who died on the beaches and in the hedgerows and of the thousands who came back there was a GI named Duke Kopplin.

William "Duke" Kopplin, who joined the army as a buck private and left it as a major in the combat engineers after the conquest of Europe, stepped onto the beaches of Normandy on D-Day plus one day. He was part of a generation of men for whom the war was something to be part of.

FOR DUKE KOPPLIN, a resident of Arlington Heights and a 60-year-old businessman who works as a cost accountant in Melrose Park, the D-Day invasion was also the time he was notified of the birth of his son.

News that William Kopplin Jr. had been born reached Kopplin at Swansea, England, shortly before he sailed for France and the invasion.

He wasn't worried about the possibility of never getting to see his son. "If you go into war with the thought that you might get killed, you're a dead duck already," he said. "I figured if it was my time to go it was going to be."

Kopplin landed at the beachhead at Normandy, France, with a reinforced platoon of 45 men. Though their main task in the Second Engineer Combat Battalion was to build bridges they were acting as front line troops in the face of German resistance.

"I remember they were firing at us with machine guns from a church tower," said platoon commander Kopplin of a skirmish at the village of Vermeille Sur Mer where the invasion began 30 years ago today. "We got off the road and into the ditches." Finally, after a lengthy battle, they took the position and chased the enemy away. It was the first of many such victories that would bring the Germans to their knees.

IT WAS only right that Kopplin should share in a piece of America's greatest victory and come back as a war hero with honors.

WILLIAM "DUKE" KOPPLIN of Arlington Heights was an American war hero during World War II as a platoon commander in the 2nd Engineer Combat Battalion. Entering as a buck private and leaving as a major, Kopplin exemplified the men who battled the Germans with a massive attack that began June 6, 1944. D-Day, as it was called 30 years ago today, was the beginning of the end of Hitler's Germany.

Kopplin, nicknamed Duke when he was a kid because his middle name was Earl, could have easily been tagged that way as a result of his exploits during the war.

He enlisted in 1939, met his wife when he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston in Texas and spent some time in training at Camp McCoy, Wis. They were married in 1942 and shortly after he was shipped overseas in a cloak of secrecy.

He and his men were transported at midnight in a darkened train to the New York harbor and sent by boat off to Belfast, Ireland, to await further instructions. The division might have remained at home a while longer if it hadn't been for radio commentator Walter Winchell, said Kopplin. "Winchell said,

'Where's that famous Second Division?' " Kopplin recalled. "Two days later we had orders to move out."

BEFORE HIS war days were over, Kopplin had earned the Silver Star ("For Gallantry in Action"), the Purple Heart and other medals. He was wounded in action and sent to England to recover and was greeted with a resounding welcome home at a New York celebration at the same harbor he had left to go to war.

During the war he proved to be an outstanding soldier. The main thrust of his war activity began at Normandy.

"We didn't find out we were going until the night before," said Kopplin. "We just loaded up and went. It was the biggest flotilla of boats you've ever seen." Kopplin said he would have taken part in action on D-Day itself if it wasn't for a "snafu" in the

'You'll never see it again,' general says

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Thirty years after the Allied invasion of Normandy in World War II, Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton believes there may never again be a troop movement of the size and scope of D-Day.

"You'll probably never see something of that type," said the general who led the U.S. Eighth Army Corps against the Nazis in the Battle of the Bulge.

"There's been such improvements in the air and in weapons, that I doubt you could concentrate and then transport troops across a channel like that."

"Of course, we didn't have the opposition from the Germans in the air. We had absolute supremacy in the air. When I got into the rendezvous area off the coast of France, I didn't

KOPPLIN RECEIVED the Silver Star for his war exploits. He was part of a two-man detail removing mines from a bridge Americans wanted to cross. Under heavy enemy fire the two men succeeded and the Germans driven out. Of the honor bestowed on him he said in a letter home, "I still don't think I deserved it."

He struck a handsome pose in combat regalia.

Plans for night racing dropped

A settlement of the dispute between horsemen and management at Sportman's Park has ended plans for night racing at Arlington Park Race Track. Night racing had been approved for Arlington Park next Friday and Saturday despite protests by the City of Rolling Meadows, which called off plans to file a lawsuit after the settlement was announced Wednesday.

Probe of Chicago firm stalled

Chicago officials have apparently reached a standstill in their investigation of Buffalo Grove vehicle license sales to a city-based auto leasing firm, The Herald has learned. A report from the Chicago city clerk's office states that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, 3300 W. Grand Ave., Chicago, has refused to release records of its leasing fleet for the investigation. A Grand Spaulding official refused to comment on the report. The firm has been buying $10 Buffalo Grove licenses since 1971, apparently to avoid paying the higher cost of Chicago licenses.

Girl, 13, hit by car OK

A 13-year-old MacArthur Junior High School student was struck by a car Wednesday afternoon as she crossed Schoenbeck Road at Viola Lane in Prospect Heights. Laura Benjamin, 198 Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights, was taken to Northwest Community Hospital by the Prospect Heights Fire Department after the accident. According to the hospital, the girl was not admitted, although precautionary x-rays were taken. Identity of the driver involved was not immediately available from Cook County Sheriff's police.

Contract settlement unlikely

Teachers in High School Dist. 211 say a settlement in their contract dispute with the school board is unlikely before the end of classes this month. "The board doesn't know what they're doing," said Dan O'Brien, negotiator for the teachers. He accused the board of offering up inaccurate figures at a negotiation session Tuesday night. Teachers are asking for 10 per cent raises.

Traffic relief planned

A plan is being prepared to relieve traffic congestion at the River Road-Miner Street intersection in downtown Des Plaines. The proposal, which will be presented to state officials June 18, calls for addition of left-turn lanes on River and a plan to prohibit left turns from Miner to River.

Palatine sanitarian ousted

A Palatine sanitarian who testified at a hearing on the ouster of Palatine Police Chief Robert Centner has been told his job is being eliminated. "I don't hold any grudges against anyone," said Robert L. Leonard, who joined the village department in 1969. "If it's political, it's political. If it's not, it's not." Leonard testified at the Centner hearing that newly-elected village trustees had been seeking advice from local businessmen on a replacement for Leonard's boss, Richard Dawson, who later resigned to take a job in Arizona.

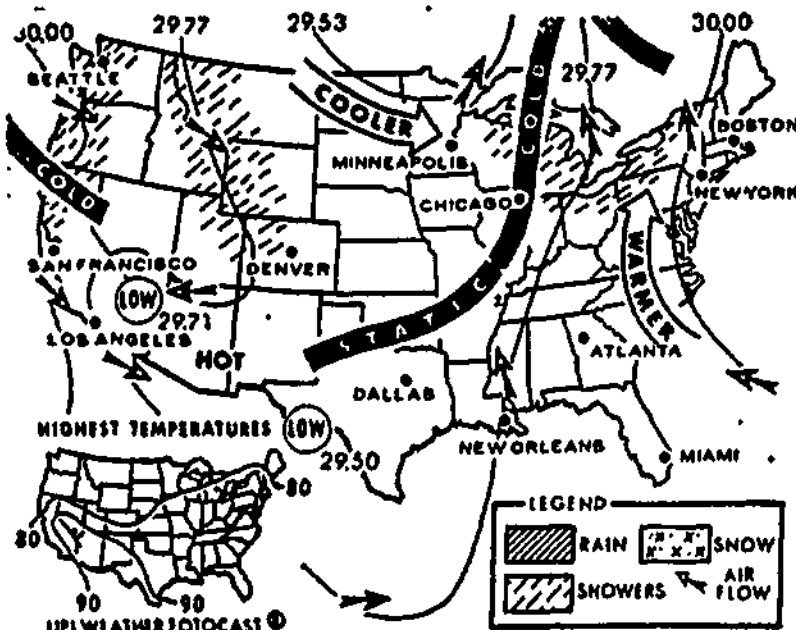

Creek project to begin

Work is expected to begin shortly on a $150,000 project to improve Weller Creek between Mount Prospect and Des Plaines. The funds will be used to restore the creek banks from School Street in Mount Prospect to the Washington Street bridge in Des Plaines. Higgins Creek is also due for a dredging in Elk Grove Township to relieve flooding problems in the Roppolo subdivision. The job is being paid for from the township government's federal revenue sharing allotment.

Cat burglar on loose

Elk Grove Village police are warning residents to lock their doors and windows at night because of six cat burglaries in the past month. Lt. William Kohnke said cat burglars are possibly the most dangerous type of break-in artists because they steal money and valuables while their victims are asleep. In one incident Monday, a cat burglar took $38 and credit cards from a home where 12 persons and a dog were sleeping. Kohnke urged residents to report suspicious persons in their neighborhoods.

Emily Harris asked to surrender by dad

Frederick Schwartz yesterday renewed his appeal for his fugitive daughter, Emily Harris and her husband, William, to surrender to the FBI. Speaking in Chicago, he also denied he had served as the "informant" who led the FBI to connect the Symbionese Liberation Army with Patricia Hearst's abduction. Miss Hearst and the Harrises are the subject of a nationwide search.

11 fugitive boys are recaptured

All but two of 13 boys who escaped Tuesday night from the Illinois Training School for Boys in St. Charles were recaptured by midday yesterday, school authorities said. The captured boys followed the usual escape routes from the school, Supt. Alfred Busher added.

Chicago to sell eight downtown park lots

The City of Chicago plans to sell its eight downtown parking lots, James McDonough, the commissioner of safety and sanitation said yesterday. McDonough told a news conference Mayor Richard Daley had requested that an ordinance providing for the sale be presented to the City Council.

Israel, Syria pull back military gear

Israel and Syria began pulling back heavy military equipment from the Golan Heights battlefield yesterday, while advance units of U.N. peace-keeping troops moved up from both sides to man the buffer zone separating the two armies. The actions were taken within hours after Israeli and Syrian generals signed final agreements in Geneva setting the troop and weapon disengagement lines to be occupied by June 25.

Cambodia killings work of lone gunman

An American teacher who witnessed the assassination of Cambodia's education minister and his top assistant in Phnom Penh, said yesterday they were killed by a lone gunman who managed to get into the school held by rioting students, but was not a student himself. In Washington, meanwhile, Defense Secretary James Schlesinger said the U.S. no longer anticipates a major Communist offensive in South Vietnam, but wants a higher level of arms aid to Indochina to continue supporting U.S.-backed regimes there.

Venezuela to hold on oil price, hike tax

Venezuela will maintain its present oil price levels during the second half of 1974, but it will hike taxes paid by U.S. and other foreign oil companies here, government sources in Caracas reported. Venezuela, the world's third largest oil exporter, fixes its oil prices unilaterally, and last December hiked prices to $14.00 per barrel.

Hunt Earl and Countess of Donoughmore

Police and army troops spread out in Dublin and both sides of the Irish border yesterday in a hunt for a wealthy aristocratic Protestant couple kidnapped in what police said could be a plot to free imprisoned Irish Republican Army hunger strikers. Seized were the Earl and Countess of Donoughmore.

Kidnaped tot found in Richmond, Va.

A 3-year-old boy believed kidnaped from a Marietta, Ga., shopping center Monday has been found in a Sears store in Richmond, Va. with a note attached to his shirt saying "I am from Atlanta, Ga., please help me to get home." Juvenile detective James Cuddy said Matthew Goodman "had no recollection how he got here and no one knows how long he wandered around Sears."

Vote to ponder perjury against Cook

A Senate committee voted yesterday to ask the Justice Department to consider bringing perjury charges against G. Bradford Cook, a former Securities and Exchange Commission chairman who admitted he lied under oath five times. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., believes Cook's admission at the trial of John Mitchell and Maurice Stans was a big factor in their acquittal.

Nation's governors close convention

The nation's governors concluded their 66th annual convention yesterday in Seattle, Wash. They spent three days telling others and being told in turn how states have seized the initiative from a federal government mired in Watergate. Little was left on the agenda. Democratic Gov. Calvin Rampton was the choice to succeed Washington's host governor, Dan Evans, as the new chairman of the National Governors' Conference.

House-Senate unit OKs budget reform

A House-Senate conference committee yesterday approved a major budget reform bill to give Congress greater power over the federal budget and to restrict President Nixon's power to impound funds. The bill would make basic revisions in the way the federal budget is drafted, and would change such economic traditions as the fiscal year, which would begin on Oct. 1 rather than July 1, beginning with fiscal 1977.

Stocks score modest increase

An optimistic forecast by a leading banking spokesman on the future course of interest rates helped stocks score a modest afternoon recovery following early weakness on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading was moderate. The Dow Jones average rose 1.49 to 830.18. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.17 to 90.31. The price of an average common share added eight cents. Advances outnumbered declines, 810 to 548, among the 1,763 issues traded. Volume totaled 13,680,000 shares against 16,040,000 shares the previous day.

Nixon brothers balk at testifying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Herman E. Talmadge reported Wednesday that President Nixon's two brothers refused to answer questions at a closed session of the Senate Watergate committee.

The Georgia Democrat, a committee member, also said the brothers, F. Donald and Edward Nixon, had gone into federal court to quash their subpoenas. But a search of court records at closing time Wednesday failed to turn up any evidence of legal action by the Nixons or their attorney.

The brothers had been summoned before the committee to testify about a $100,000 contribution to President Nixon's 1972 campaign by billionaire recluse Howard Hughes.

But Talmadge said he was told by members of the committee staff that the brothers "declined to answer some questions" put to them during the closed session and failed to appear for a scheduled afternoon session.

Asked if there was a question as to whether the Nixons were thus in contempt of the committee, Talmadge replied: "No, not at the moment."

The Nixons' lawyer, Elmer Stone of Los Angeles, declined to explain the dispute with the committee. But he said he believes his clients are "in full compliance with the subpoenas" issued some time ago for "various records and documents."

He said both of the brothers already gave "extensive testimony" under oath to Watergate committee staffers, but not this week.

The two brothers appeared at a closed-door meeting in the office of Watergate Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., Wednesday morning. One source said no questions were put to them as lawyers became embroiled in a hassle over the scope of the investigation.

They reportedly were scheduled to reappear before the staff in the afternoon, but Stone showed up without them and after about an hour he and staff members went to Talmadge's office to report on the situation.

Nixon: can't meddle in Soviet Union

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon, voicing concern over "a dangerous misunderstanding" of East-West detente, cautioned Wednesday that U.S. efforts to change the Soviet Union's internal policies could undercut progress toward world peace.

The President cited no specifics, but he apparently was referring to the many members of Congress who oppose granting of special trade privileges to the Soviet Union as long as it maintains restrictions on emigration of Jews.

"We can not gear our foreign policy to the transformation of other societies," Nixon said in an address to the Naval Academy's graduating class three weeks before he opens new summit talks with Soviet leaders in Moscow. "In the nuclear age, our first responsibility must be the prevention of a war that could destroy all societies."

At least 25,000 reported dead

Smallpox is sweeping India

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Almost 25,000 persons have died in India during the past six months in the world's deadliest smallpox epidemic of the 20th century and the disease has spread to at least one neighboring country, health officials said Wednesday.

The officials said the figure of 10,000 dead provided by the Indian government to the World Health Organization was a "conservative estimate" and the actual death toll was probably closer to 25,000.

"What we have here is the biggest smallpox epidemic the world has seen since before World War I," said one WHO officer. "So far we have 103,830 cases reported across India and we're turning up an awful lot of new cases every day."

WHO officials said travelers from the worst hit states of Bihar and Uttar Pradesh in northern India were carrying the disease into Nepal.

The government has so far played down the scope of the epidemic for fear of spreading panic — particularly among foreign tourists.

There is no treatment for smallpox, a disease so ancient it was described in the sacred Sanskrit writings of India.

"If you've been exposed and you haven't been vaccinated, you're going to die, be blinded or at least horribly disfigured," a WHO spokesman said.

To halt the spread, more than 30,000 medical workers are moving through hundreds of thousands of villages with colored cards of an infant with smallpox. His body and face are covered with oozing pustules and his eyes are caked shut with infection.

"Have you seen anyone who looks like this?" they ask children, tea stall owners, market women and cart drivers.

"When we find an infected area we vaccinate everyone there," a WHO officer said. "It would take us 1,000 years to vaccinate everyone in India at the current rate so right now we are just vaccinating to contain the disease."

According to WHO statistics, India has a near-monopoly on smallpox with 85 percent of the world's 121,748 reported cases.

Report fire, blowout dangers in cars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government warned Wednesday of the danger of potentially dangerous engine fires in about 200,000 eight-and-nine-year-old Chevrolets and Buicks.

Owners of about 135,000 recent model Ford Pinto station wagons were cautioned about a wheel problem that could cause tire blowouts.

In a preliminary report, the National Highway Traffic Safety Agency said a defect in the carburetors on some 1965 and 1966 Chevrolets and some 1966 Buicks could allow raw gasoline to spray on a heated engine.

It was not known which models of the cars were equipped with the "Rochester Quadrajets units," a spokesman said.

In a separate action, the agency said it had been discovered that 1972 and 1973 Pinto station wagons had a metal "projection" inside their rear wheel wells which could cause blowouts.

According to the agency, the metal tabs, which have no operational use, can slash the tire's sidewall.

Investigation showed "many owners may be suffering serious sidewall damage without realizing it," an agency Consumer Protection Bulletin reported.

The bulletin said the half-inch tabs can be "easily bent down to eliminate risk." But the agency urged owners who have had tires damaged from the tabs to make a report to the Transportation Department, including the make, model and year of the car, and the size and serial number of the tire.

The GM investigation showed that a metal plug originally installed in the carburetors of the cars could drop out, leaving "a one-half inch opening from which raw gasoline may be sprayed onto the auto engine," the agency said.

The agency said GM failed to provide any foolproof means of keeping the metal plug in place.

Sen. Percy 'probably will' make 1976 presidential run

Illinois Sen. Charles Percy inched along Wednesday toward his formal declaration as a 1976 Republican presidential candidate, saying he "probably will" be a candidate, and his "inclination is to try." But he stressed he still hadn't made the final decision, and wouldn't do so until after this November's elections. He conceded his thinking might be altered if Gerald Ford became president in the meantime and did an "outstanding" his old international presidency — made the comment outside the Washington courtroom where he's challenging the condition as illegal.

• Having for two years fruitlessly sponsored a bill that would require all auto engines to give 20 miles a gallon, Rep. Paul Cronin, R-Mass., has a new solution to the energy problem: we should all drive 1951 Hudsons. Still stressing that the auto-makers have the technology, Cronin told of a man buying an old "Hornet" model that had 150,000 miles, some power accessories and automatic shift, and still got more than 20 miles per gallon and met exhaust standards. Said he: "It makes you think what price progress."

• The deposed "Miss World" — 20-year-old Marj Wallace — remains in critical condition in an Indianapolis hospital from a reported drug overdose and receiving dialysis treatment for kidney troubles. For Miss Wallace, who won her crown last November, trouble began in March when she was stripped of her title after being romantically linked with several sportsmen, including racing driver Peter Revson — killed in a practice crash shortly thereafter.

• A Paris publishing firm announced it will release this week the first book from Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn since his exile in February. It'll be the second volume of "The Gulag Archipelago," the exposition of Soviet prison camps and police methods that got him expelled.

• When Miami-based U.S. marshal R. H. Jackson retires this month after 48 years service, it'll be with a lot of memories. Among them: helping capture Giuseppe Zangara, the man who on a February night in 1933 killed Chicago Mayor Anton Cermak in the abortive attempt on President-elect Franklin Roosevelt.

Referendum reveals public wants land

by TOM VON MALDER

A new round of talks and investigations into the possibility of a public purchase of the Rob Roy Golf Course may be initiated as a result of Tuesday's Prospect Heights Park District referendum.

The referendum included an opinion question that asked the park district residents if they wanted an additional referendum at a later date to earmark funds for a public purchase of the Euclid Avenue Golf Course. That vote was 540 yes, 366 no.

Park District Pres. Max Lyle said Wednesday he would write letters over the next two weeks to surrounding area park districts and the Village of Mount Prospect. They will invite officials to meet with Prospect Heights park officials to discuss a joint purchase of the 200-acre golf course.

"It looks like the vast majority of the community is interested in participating in some way in a public purchase of the golf course," Lyle said, reflecting on Tuesday's vote.

THE GOLF COURSE purchase question has been brought to public attention in recent months because of the efforts of Kenroy Inc. of Skokie to build apartments on the property. Originally, Kenroy asked Mount Prospect officials for annexation and zoning for 4,500 apartments. Before that request was considered by the village — which informally had indicated the plan would be rejected — Kenroy's plans were revised to include 2,700 units with an 18-hole golf course around the perimeter of the development. Kenroy changed its plans in part because the village zoning board voted down the first proposal.

A zoning board hearing on the revised Kenroy request will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Mount Prospect Village Hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Lyle will send letters to the Village of 31 votes put referendum across

The official vote tallies from Tuesday's Prospect Heights Park District $1.1 million referendum showed it was approved by 31 votes.

The official count on the green ballot, which enables the district to issue general obligation bonds for $1.1 million, passed 471 to 440. The same tallies showed the yellow ballot, which enables the district to increase its indebtedness, Mount Prospect and the following park districts: River Trails (The district in which the golf course lies), Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling and Des Plaines. "They should be interested in this too," he said.

Hopefully, Lyle said, meetings would be set up to explore the possibilities of a joint purchase and the available federal and state funding. He indicated that referendums in each participating district or community might be needed to raise sufficient funds.

BY ITSELF, A referendum in the Prospect Heights Park District, if successful, could raise slightly more than $300,000 toward the estimated $6 million to $9 million, Lyle said. Although he added that that figure could be higher if the park district's total assessed valuation is more than the $32 million last reported. No report on assessed valuation has been issued so far this year, he said. In addition, the district's assessed valuation will increase some $3 million next year, Lyle said.

Lyle said the timing of a referendum in his own district would be dependent "on a lot of things" that would come out of the meetings with the other taxing passed 468 to 439.

Renovation of the Lions Park pool, on Camp McDonald Road at Elm Street is to be completed in November. The adjacent community center/sports complex should be built and open by the fall of 1975. Other improvements to area parks throughout the district should be completed about the same time as the new building.

bodies. "We can't buy the golf course alone," he said. "But we have a clear indication that it (a second referendum on Rob Roy) would pass."

In many ways Lyle's upcoming efforts will duplicate the actions of several months ago undertaken by the Village of Mount Prospect when it initiated a series of meetings with the five park districts. Those meetings, in which only Prospect Heights participated in the first, also were to discuss the feasibility of a joint effort to buy the golf course.

One by one, however, officials of the park districts indicated that while they would like to see the golf course remain as open space, they did not have the funds to participate in the undertaking.

The Village of Mount Prospect sought outside funding from federal and state governmental sources. Then, when those efforts apparently failed, the village considered sponsoring a referendum to buy the property. That alternative, however, also was dropped, and the village last month turned over its two appraisals of the golf course's value to the Mount Prospect and River Trails park districts for their use.

FROM THE BOTTOM it's a strain on the neck to view the hanging mobile sculpture at Dist. 21's Riley School in Arlington Heights. The mobile was made by Joseph Burlini, an Arlington Heights resident, and commissioned for the school by the PTA. The mobile will hang in the school lobby.

Village fire losses reduced

The number of calls handled by the Wheeling Fire Department during the first four months of this year increased slightly, but the amount of fire loss was cut by 43 per cent.

Fire department statistics comparing the four-month period of this year and last year show an increase of 5.1 per cent in calls this year, or a total of 451 calls. The amount of fire loss this year was $34,200 compared with 1973's $147,620 over the four months.

Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said $90,000 worth of 1973's fire loss occurred in one March 16 fire at the River-Willow Garden Apartments, 916 Old Willow Rd., in unincorporated Wheeling Township. The fire left five families homeless.

BY THE END of April last year there were three fire deaths. This year there have been no fire deaths in the area protected by the Wheeling Fire Department.

While the total number of calls remained about the same each year, so far this year a larger proportion of the calls have been medical assists. The 290 medical assist calls through the end of April this year was an increase of 13.7 per cent over last year's figure.

Koeppen said he expects the number of ambulance runs to increase markedly over the remainder of this year too as the department began its medical intensive-care unit operation May 2. A check of the May ambulance run figures for last year show a total of 66 and this year's figures total 88.

Man gets probation in burglary case

A 25-year-old Buffalo Grove man was placed on two year's felony probation Tuesday in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court after he was found guilty of a May 19 burglary.

Robert M. Miller, 665 Grove Dr., was found guilty of burglarizing the Gilbert H. Herzer residence, 237 Weidner Rd., and stealing some $20 in change. Police said Herzer found Miller in his home the night of the burglary and this led to Miller's subsequent arrest. Police said Miller was a friend of Herzer's daughter and recognizable to Herzer.

75% of firm's area apartments included

Kassuba must sell holdings

About 75 per cent of all completed Kassuba Development Corp. apartments in the Chicago area will be included in the sale of about half of Kassuba's nationwide holdings to an investor group led by the Los Angeles-based Income Equities Corp.

Although Kassuba officials refuse to name the properties intended for sale until deeds are signed, the firm's Chicago regional director, Vincent Donile, said Wednesday 5,800 of the approximately 8,000 Chicago area apartments are included. Several of Kassuba's apartment complexes are in the Northwest suburbs, and it appears certain at least some of them will be sold.

Donile said the sale will include only apartments finished and available for occupancy, and not those under construction at the time of closing. Currently 25,000 units are in construction stages, he said. Either Kassuba or Income Equities will notify tenants in sold complexes when the transfer is final, said Donile, but he was unable to predict how long that will take.

Most Kassuba developments have the word "Trace" in their name, although not all do. Kassuba owns 28 complexes in Illinois, 27 of them in the Chicago area. Nationally, it owns 42,000 apartment units in 119 complexes, and 63 of the complexes are to be sold.

THE SALE WAS forced by financial reorganization Kassuba sought under the Federal Bankruptcy Act in December, and was approved by a federal bankruptcy referee Tuesday. A condition of the sale is acceptance by Kassuba's secured creditors of some terms, Kassuba's attorney, Richard F. Levy of Chicago, said in court many of the creditors already have agreed to the principle.

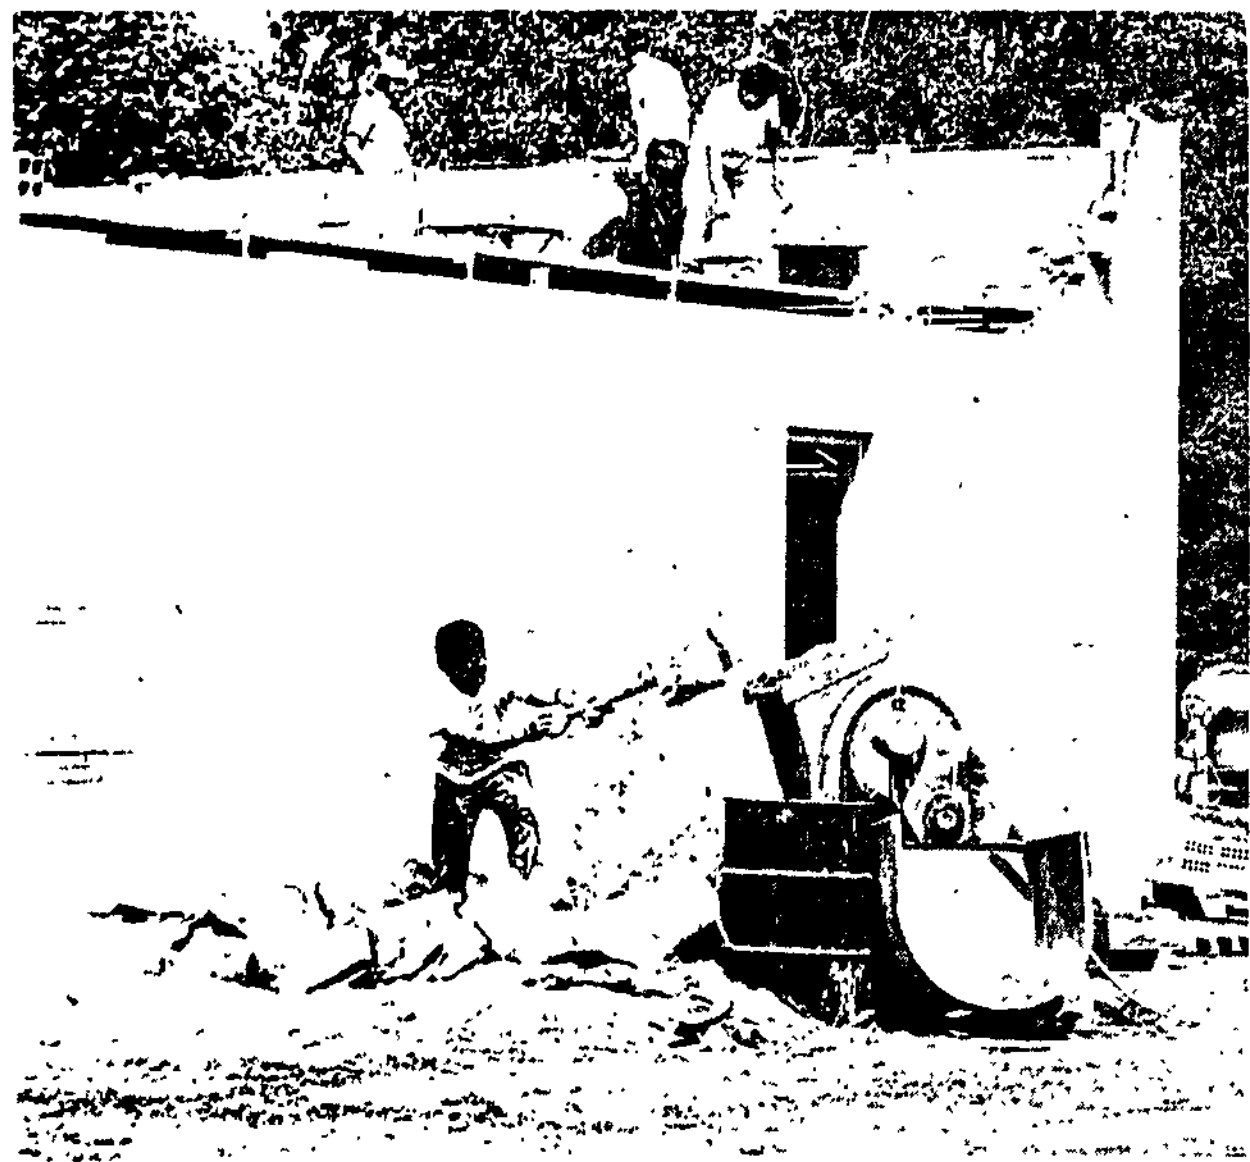

While the sale is pending, Kassuba is making a "concentrated effort to refurbish" all its complexes in the Chicago area, and to complete units not now finished. "Our immediate goal is to perform all maintenance necessary in all projects in Chicago," said Donile.

In Buffalo Grove, where city officials threatened condemnation of Berkshire Trace Apartments, citing safety hazards, Donile said Kassuba now is "performing all deferred maintenance we couldn't perform during the winter." Work includes roofing, balcony and firewall repairs or replacement, landscaping, painting and pavement repair. Donile vowed to "show Buffalo Grove our intentions are more than honest and honorable," and said Kassuba "intends to comply with all their requirements." Similar problems in Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows, are being corrected since the city filed suit against Kassuba.

IN HOFFMAN ESTATES, where 10 of 11 buildings under construction and nearly completed have lain dormant for an estimated six months, "we hope to get started in the very near future," said Donile. He said he could not promise construction would resume within two months, although Joe Steinberg, regional manager out of Palm Beach, Fla., suggested that time period. Donile said remaining work in the Hermitage Trace project could be completed within months.

Efforts are under way to increase occupancy in all Kassuba developments, said Donile, although he said company policy and the pending sale prevent his revealing current occupancy statistics.

A MAINTENANCE GARAGE is growing at the Wheeling Park District's Heritage Park, where workmen are finishing the brick walls of the building. The garage will replace the district's present facility, which is being converted to a board meeting room as part of the $700,000 park improvements referendum of 1972.

Arlington Park controversy ends—for the moment

End of Sportsman's strike halts plans for night racing

by TONI GINETTI

Settlement Wednesday of a strike between horsemen and management at Sportsman's Park has ended plans for night racing at Arlington Park Race Track.

Agreement was reached Wednesday morning between the striking Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. and the Cicero race track's management, thereby abruptly ending a controversy which had developed surrounding the transferring of the Sportsman's night schedule to Arlington Park.

Arlington Park Tuesday had been granted night racing dates this Friday and Saturday and next Friday and Saturday by the Illinois Racing Board despite objections from the City of Rolling Meadows. Those dates were in effect rescinded Wednesday with the reinstatement of racing at Sportsman's.

The strike settlement came only hours before Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose planned to file in Cook County Circuit Court for an injunction to prevent the night racing. Rose said he was notified at about noon Wednesday by attorneys for the racing board that the Arlington day-night doubleheaders had been canceled.

Harness racing will resume at Sportsman's on Friday, according to spokesman William Johnston Jr.

THE SETTLEMENT Wednesday marked the second time this week planned night racing at Arlington was halted. A weekend decision by racing board members had authorized a racing doubleheader Monday, opening day for the Arlington racing season, but the threat of a lawsuit from Rolling Meadows prompted racing board chairman Anthony Sciarano to stop the program only six hours before the planned 8 p.m. post time.

The suit would have charged the board with violating the Illinois Open Meeting Law, authored by Sciarano when he was Controversy at a glance...

Here is a recap of events beginning Sunday surrounding the Arlington Park Race Track night racing controversy:

Sunday: A strike by the Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. against the operators of Sportsman's Park in Cicero canceled the planned opening of harness racing Monday at that track. The Illinois Racing Board agreed in a telephone poll to switch the night racing schedule to Arlington Park Monday.

Monday: The Arlington Park racing season opened at 2 p.m. with another racing schedule slated to start at 8 p.m. The night schedule was called off only six hours before post time by racing board chairman Anthony Sciarano after Rolling Meadows officials threatened to file suit against the board. Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose said the board had violated the Illinois Open Meeting Law because no public hearing on the matter of night racing had been held. Sciarano then called for the matter to be discussed Tuesday before the board.

Tuesday: The racing board voted unanimously to grant four night racing dates to Arlington Park unless the strike at Sportsman's Park was resolved. Rose protested the action before the board saying Rolling Meadows residents living near the track had not been given sufficient time to file objections to the plan.

Wednesday: Rose was preparing to file in Cook County Circuit Court a brief seeking to stop the races scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday. The action was not taken, however, when it was announced at mid-day that the Sportsman's strike had been settled and that racing would resume Friday at Sportsman's.

a state legislator, because a public hearing on the racing proposal had not been held.

A meeting of the board was called for Tuesday and the dates were then officially awarded, pending the outcome of the Sportsman's strike.

The reassigning of the racing to Arlington Park was aimed at preventing the loss of up to $100,000 a day in state revenue.

Night racing has not been held at Arlington Park since 1969.

Rose appeared before the board Tuesday to protest the night racing plan, saying the board did not provide time for area residents to file objections to the proposal.

PREPARATIONS were under way Wednesday for Rolling Meadows to file for an injunction against the racing board's Tuesday action when word of the strike settlement came, Rose said. Rose said he had planned to base the court action on several factors including that the board had violated the "spirit" of the open meeting law and that application had only been made by Arlington Park for only two specific night dates although four dates were awarded by the board.

The "nuisance factor" and the matter of the public not having sufficient time to learn of the Tuesday racing board meeting would have also been cited, Rose said.

Horsemen at Sportsman's Park voted to end the strike early Wednesday when they agreed to a six-year contract with the track management. The contract calls for the horsemen to get 49 per cent of the track's mutual handle for the first two years, 49½ per cent for the third year and 50 per cent for the last three years, according to a racing board spokesman.

The horsemen had originally sought a two-year contract with 50 per cent of the mutual take while management offered a six-year contract with a 49 per cent split for the first two years, 49½ per cent for the second two years and 50 per cent split only for the last two years.

JO ELLEN CLAWES of Prospect Heights recently won a five-month fight to get "no turn on red" signs at the intersection of Camp McDonald and Elmhurst roads. Mrs. Claws, a School Dist. 23 crossing guard, thought the signs were needed to protect children crossing the busy intersection to and from school. After speaking with several governmental bodies, Mrs. Claws got the signs put in at the two north corners.

Innkeeper fraud charges dropped

Charges against a Mount Prospect man accused of defrauding a Wheeling innkeeper were dropped Tuesday in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court, when the innkeeper failed to appear in court to testify.

Siegfried Volk, 41, of 1765 Wood Ln., Mount Prospect, had been charged with only paying $12 on a $71.50 dinner bill April 28 at LaGalerie Restaurant-Hotel in Wheeling. At the time of his arrest, Volk, who owns the Shell gas station at Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue, told police the $60 he hadn't paid was owed him by the innkeeper for winter plowing of the restaurant parking lot.

The innkeeper is George Vonnakis. Police said the charges could be reinstated at a later date.

Scholarship assembly Friday at MacArthur

MacArthur Junior High School will hold its annual scholarship assembly Friday at 1 p.m. at the school, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, Prospect Heights.

Students who have been named to the school honor roll for at least three quarters this year will be cited for academic achievement.

The names of the outstanding male and female teachers at the school as voted by the students will also be announced.

Chicagoan guilty of criminal trespass

A 21-year-old Chicago man pleaded guilty to criminal trespass to property Tuesday in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court. The incident occurred May 17 at the Mallard Lake apartment complex in Wheeling.

Timothy Husband of Chicago was released after it was determined that the four days he had already spent in jail while awaiting release on bond was an adequate sentence. Husband is a book salesman and had entered buildings in the complex despite "no trespassing" signs, police said.

form of enemy reluctance to give up. "The troops were stymied. They were being fired at by Germans in pill boxes up above. The Navy dropped shells on them and chased them away." So Kopplin finally landed on June 7 and up until the time he was wounded led his men in several running battles on their way to Pilsen, Czechoslovakia. Only Kopplin never made it.

"I got wounded at the Weser River near Göttingen," Kopplin said. "We were in a little battle and we decided we had to get across that river somehow or other." Riding inflatable boats the platoon reached the other side. Then Kopplin was cut down by an enemy shell, breaking a leg and ankle.

When he got back to a fitting reception in New York, the Salvation Army was there with ice cream and milk, something Kopplin hadn't tasted in three years.

Kopplin and his wife, Hester, returned to Arlington Heights where they have lived ever since. They have raised three sons, Bill Jr., now 30, and twins, Bob and John, both 28. Bill and Bob are both Air Force captains and part of a military that has changed drastically since their father was a soldier.

see one German plane — we had thousands of them."

ALLIED STRENGTH was estimated for D-Day at 2,876,439 men. The invasion force included 4,000 ships of all kinds, 5,000 fighter planes, 3,400 heavy bombers, 1,600 light and medium bombers, 2,300 transport aircraft, and 2,500 gliders.

"On June 6, 1944 I was locked up in a compound at Southampton, England, getting ready to cross the channel," recalled Middleton. "The Eighth Army Corps had two airborne divisions, the 101st and 82nd, and an infantry division and a lot of artillery. It was a pretty sizable command, over 100,000 men. That's a lot of men for a country man like me to command."

While Middleton remained in England on D-Day, paratroopers from his command were given key assignments in Normandy and they actually went in the night of June 5-6.

"The primary mission was to kill Germans and capture part of the Cherbourg Peninsula. We came in behind the Seventh Corps. Then we went to Brest and captured that city. We rejoined the Army on the ground where the Battle of the Bulge took place. After the Bulge was over, we advanced to Coblenz."

"WE GOT TO Coblenz, took that town, and crossed the Rhine at Boppard, 15 kilometers above Coblenz, on a wide front. Then, we continued to advance to the east until we got to Chemnitz, south of Berlin. There, the high command stopped us. We did nothing for two weeks waiting for the Russians to come up."

MIDDLETON believes the frontal attack on German forces through the Normandy beachhead was the right thing; better than Winston Churchill's philosophy of attacking the "soft underbelly" of Europe.

"I think we did it the right way," Middleton said. "It saved time. The Germans helped a little with the Battle of the Bulge. Had the Germans not spent themselves against me and my Corps, the war would have been prolonged. But they shot their war in December, 1944 and January, 1945. It was a fierce and a wicked battle. And a cold one. I was never in doubt about the outcome because I just thought we were too good for them."

Middleton ordered Bastogne, a key crossroads, held against Hitler's last big counterattack in the war. Middleton once said Gen. George S. Patton "called me a damn fool" for deciding to hold at Bastogne.

But Middleton, Patton and the Allies won a brilliant victory at the Bulge. Patton later changed his mind and praised Middleton, saying: "None of us will ever forget the stark valor with which you and your Corps contested every foot of ground during Von Rundstedt's attack. Your decision to hold Bastogne was a stroke of genius."

Board to reveal decision June 13

Harper to decide on 2nd campus site

by WANDALYN RICE

The Harper College Board of Trustees has agreed to decide whether to buy a second site at its regular board meeting June 13.

In addition, board members agreed Tuesday that if they decide to hold a referendum to raise money to buy a second site, they may combine it with a referendum to provide funds to complete buildings on the present campus.

A decision on a second site June 13 would come in time for the college to inform the Arlington Heights Village Board on June 17 whether it still wants to buy land at the corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads. The land is owned by the Mayo Foundation. The college has asked the village to set aside the land in its zoning plan, in order to give the school one year to buy the property.

BOARD MEMBER Marilyn Marier said, "In good faith, before we ask for the designation (on the zoning plan), we need to have bitten the bullet on whether or not we are going to go to referendum."

Board member Lawrence Moats agreed that the board needs to make a firm decision on the land, saying, "If the village is going to designate it, I'm sure they don't want a wishy-washy board."

The board members agreed that to prepare for action June 13, they will hold a closed session Tuesday to discuss negotiations with Mayo. Under the law, the board can meet in closed session to discuss land acquisition.

THE BOARD'S agreement to make a firm decision June 13 came after a meeting with James Wattenbarger, director of the Institute of Higher Education of the University of Florida and "father of the Florida community college system."

Wattenbarger told the board that several of the 28 community colleges in Florida have more than one campus, either because they are located in large population areas such as Miami, or because their districts are too large to provide for convenient driving time to one campus.

The reason the Florida community colleges have moved to more than one campus, Wattenbarger said, is because "this kind of organization serves the basic purpose of the community college, which is to make education accessible to people."

Wattenbarger also said, "I wouldn't want to disagree" with the board's choice of the site on Palatine and Schoenbeck roads as a good location for a second campus. He said the northeast part of the district has a high density of population and "It's really obvious that's where you need to be more accessible."

Wattenbarger said decisions to go to a second campus should be made when the number of full-time students on one campus approaches 5 to 6,000 students or when driving time to the campus gets as high as 45 minutes to an hour.

THE 8,000-STUDENT maximum, he said, "is based more on a rule of thumb and experience than on any scientific basis. It allows you to offer a wide variety of programs while it avoids bigness."

Harper population estimates indicate the college will reach 6,000 full-time students by the middle of this decade. College officials have said they would not plan to have buildings on a second site until about 1980.

Harper Pres. Robert Lahti told the board that whether or not they decide to have a referendum on a second site, they will probably have to have a referendum at some point to raise money to complete the present campus in Palatine.

When the college was formed, Lahti explained, an $8 million referendum to raise enough money to pay 25 per cent of the projected total cost of the campus was passed. The state pays 75 per cent of community college construction costs.

HOWEVER, Lahti said, "The original estimate was that it would cost $29 million to complete the campus plan. The last estimate is that it would cost $46 million to complete it."

College Vice Pres. William Mann said he is not sure how much money would be needed in a referendum to buy the site and complete the present campus. However, he said that if the referendum requested another $8 million, duplicating the amount of the first referendum, the package would probably add about four cents per $100 assessed value to local property tax bills.

In addition, he said the bonds sold to raise the $8 million would be paid off in 10 to 12 years and the tax rate would go down. Harper's present total tax rate is 19.2 cents per $100 assessed value.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Think—the earlier the better

"What did I do wrong?" asked South. "You played the hand like a man trying to foreclose a mortgage. There is no interest paid on tricks taken early in the play."

West opened the king of spades. East played the deuce and West shifted to the queen of trumps. South grabbed that trick with the king as quickly as he could — thought a while — played his ace of trumps and started after diamonds. He got to discard one spade on the third diamond, but West ruffed in and cashed two more spades to leave South one trick short.

Once South grabbed that first trump trick he could think forever and not find any way to make his contract. If he had done his thinking beforehand, and let West hold the trick, West could think to his heart's content, but he would not be able to defeat the contract.

If he led a second trump, South would simply run off the rest of the tricks. If he played more spades he would hold South to his contract, but that would be all.

Summer courses set

The summer session at Harper College begins Monday and closes with final examinations Aug. 1 and 2.

On-campus registration for classes is Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Continuing education students may register by mail or in person at the admissions office in Building A, through the first night of their class. Hours for registration are Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; and Saturday, 9 a.m. to noon.

Hersey to vote on court

The senior class of Hersey High School recently nominated Judy Huck, Liza Schab, Maureen Naughton, Julie Pulver, Jean Clark and Dawn Sander to the junior-senior prom court.

Couples attending the prom Friday will vote for the queen. The dinner dance "Life Goes On" will be held in the Star Lite Inn in Schiller Park. Newberry Castle will provide the music.

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 150-bed psychiatric hospital known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

For as long as three thousand years, the ancient and modern mystics and sensitives have claimed to be able to see an aura or halo surrounding some people, but this was regarded as mysticism because the scientific world couldn't see it too.

Now a photographic process invented in 1939 by Semyon Davidovich Kirlian, a Russian electrician, records on film this aura or corona emanating from all individuals.

Called "Kirlian photography," this process is a method of recording on film some of the subtle energies emanating from all living things. It's a process that's also known as electro photography, radiation field photography and corona discharge photography. It's a means of photographing the high frequency discharge of electricity from the surfaces of objects.

EARL LANE, an instructor in psychoenergetics at the East West Educational Institute in Berkeley, Calif., says that what is photographed is "an interference pattern, basically, that gets picked up on film. It's the interference relationship," he said, "between a high voltage field emanated by a photographic instrument and the very subtle energy emanated by living objects."

Lane, also a lecturer and researcher for Martinez Veterans Hospital in California and a specialist in electronics technology, as well as a psychologist, said, "The dynamic, moving, changing energy patterns that get recorded on film through Kirlian photography are what is of most interest to psychologists. This is because the kinds of things that cause the recorded changes fall into the area of psychoenergetics. When people change their state — the way they're thinking or their emotional state — changes occur on the photographic image."

The photograph is achieved, according to Lane, by putting a living object, say a finger, in the proximity of a high voltage, high frequency electronic magnetic field — with a piece of film in between — so that the field generated by the machine interrelates with the field generated by the living object. The machine's field is very specific and coherent and the information coming from the living object is incoherent and quite variable. When they interrelate, they cause interference.

An interaction takes place in which protons are released, hit the film and are recorded. Said Lane, "At the mechanical level, it's simply the pattern of coronal discharge that's being photographed. The way this pattern changes is not mechanical but psychoenergetic. The changes are based on the way you feel."

SOME EXAMPLES of differing energy patterns between like living objects were illustrated by Lane. "Kirlian himself was preparing to demonstrate his machine to some visitors, but his results kept coming out fuzzy and blurry. Suddenly he became dizzy and faint, a sign that an attack of his chronic vascular illness was beginning. His wife took over the work and the machine worked beautifully. Apparently the machine 'picked up' his impending illness."

"Another instance," Lane said, "occurred when a team of Kirlian researchers were photographing the energy patterns emanating from identical leaves. They were puzzled by the fact that one leaf's energy pattern was entirely different from the other. They learned that one of the leaves was diseased."

One of the areas researchers are working on, according to Lane, is the possibility of determining the norm for a person's aura, then diagnosing portending illness in that person by changes in his aura. "It will take a while to research this application of Kirlian photography, just as it took 30 years of research to learn the diagnostic applications of EEG (electroencephalography: the tracing and recording of brain waves). Kirlian photography has been in this country only three years and it will no doubt be a long and difficult process to establish the baseline data which is necessary before we're able to say what is typical and the norm and what any changes in the norm mean."

In the meantime, the aura that surrounds every living object will remain a little mystical — we don't understand fully what it is. But, then, aspirin is a little mystical — we know it works but we don't fully understand how."

SAFETY for your children

SAFETY for your funds

SAFETY. It's why you bank with us. You know we'll keep your money in a safe place while offering the assurance that your savings will grow with complete safety.

Now North Point State Bank is concerned with another kind of safety—bicycle safety.

This summer many children will enjoy the fun of bicycling. But along with the fun is the ever-present danger of traffic mishaps. That's why safety councils and police departments everywhere suggest attaching bright pennants to your children's bicycles, making them more noticeable to motorists.

We at North Point Strongly support this safety precaution. And so we are now offering vibrant yellow bicycle pennants for only $1 apiece. These durable, easy to fasten pennants stand more than 6 feet high and readily identify a cyclist in fair weather or foul, in the daylight or after dark.

Simply drop into the lobby anytime during normal banking hours and pick up one or as many pennants as you need.

SAFETY. At North Point our basic concern is still with the safety of your money. But we realize that the safety of your children is worth all the money in the world.

ADDED BONUS when you help relieve the penny shortage. Bring $5 in pennies when you come to the bank for your bicycle pennant and we'll give a $5 bill and the pennant FREE. Supply limited FIRST COME FIRST SERVED

The environment

Probe of Army engineers' policy urged

Barging into canal projects at the taxpayers' expense is a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' practice that should be subject to greater scrutiny, charges a coalition of environmental groups. Based upon the findings of a University of Illinois study released Tuesday, the groups contend that Congress should consider the possibility of abandoning barge canal projects which compete with the railroad industry.

The U of I study indicates that barges consume 38 per cent more energy than railroads in hauling freight. Joining in the call for restraint in barge canal funding are the Sierra Club, the Coalition on American Rivers and the Environmental Policy Center in Washington, D. C. Some $10 billion in waterways projects are under consideration by Congress, they said.

The barge companies are subsidized by taxpayers because the corps maintains canals, and the barge lines do not pay the heavy taxes which railroads contribute, said Ann Fisher of Arlington Heights, conservation chairman for the Great Lakes Chapter of the Sierra Club. "The whole economic basis of the corps' programs should be investigated, if not by Congress then by the office of Management and Budget," she said.

Illinois canal projects planned or operated by the corps include the cross Wabash Valley barge canal and a project on the Kaskaskia River in southern Illinois. The Wabash Valley proposal, for which a $900,000 feasibility study is budgeted in fiscal year 1975, would entail the construction of a canal in Illinois from the mouth of the Ohio River to Mount Carmel. It would destroy a nature preserve at Mount Carmel — Beall Woods — because the water levels would be raised, said Mrs. Fisher. The Kaskaskia River "scandal" involves massive dredging projects because the existing canal is filled with silt, she added.

"We are considering the feasibility of a lawsuit with regard to the replacement of lock and dam No. 26 at the mouth of the Illinois River near Alton," said Mrs. Fisher. She said the suit could block a corps plan to create a 12-foot channel along that stretch of the Illinois river.

2 projects' funds cut

The Illinois Senate appropriations Committee Tuesday cut funds for the controversial Oakley Dam and Middle Fork Reservoir projects from the 1975 fiscal state budget. Sponsors of the move said the two projects will be scrapped — at least temporarily — if the General Assembly goes along with the move. Two amendments sponsored by State Sen. Stanley Weaver, R-Urbana, were tacked on the Department of Transportation's water resource management budget. They cut $200,000 for environmental impact studies for the projects from the budget.

Both projects drew strong opposition from environmental groups and Illinois farmers, who decried flooding of farmland and potential pollution hazards. Gov. Daniel Walker supported the projects.

Strip-mining woes probed

"Unprecedented national effort" will be needed to prevent devastating damage to the landscape in western states where stripmining operations are planned, according to a Ford Foundation-financed study released this week.

The study contends that vast tracts of stripmined land could be reclaimed if coal companies are forced to meet strict rehabilitation standards and to use advanced mining techniques. It cautions that "rehabilitation on this unprecedented scale will not occur simply because society wishes it, but only if society demands it. The mining industry itself should and can readily bear the full expense of rehabilitation in the western coal area with the addition of a few cents per ton to the price of coal."

Coal deposits extend from the Canadian border to the Mexican border. Parts of Arizona, Colorado, Montana, New Mexico, North and South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming are affected.

Doctors often don't follow own advice

I've heard a lot of doctors say that it is wrong to be fat and to get rid of it, but some of them are pretty chubby.

I've heard doctors say to give up smoking and drinking as they are bad for you and shorten your life span. Yet, I read about some man who has smoked a cigar every day of his life, and he lived to be well over 100 years of age.

I've read about women who drank a big glass of beer every day of their lives, and yet they lived to 100 years of age. How do you account for all of this?

First about doctors. Their role is to provide the best available information and advice to their patients, whether or not they are able to follow it themselves. Some doctors are definitely too fat. You are kind to say pretty chubby, but the truth is they are just too fat. Many other doctors are able to control their body weight and do so conscientiously.

Doctors are human, and it's hard for those who have trouble controlling their weight to do so just as it is for other people. This doesn't alter the good advice they give their patients to avoid obesity. Just because they have trouble following this good advice is no reason that they shouldn't make this useful information available to their patients.

Regarding smoking, many doctors who used to smoke have quit because of the medical problems they've seen from cigaret smoking. The popular saying is that there must be some reason why 100,000 doctors have quit smoking. There is. And the number, incidentally, is much greater than 100,000.

SOME PEOPLE live very long life spans though they ignore very good health advice. You heard about them because they are the exception. Nobody writes about the person who smoked two or three packs of cigarettes a day and died of a heart attack in his early 40s. That's not news. A cigar is not nearly as harmful as smoking cigarettes except in the former cigaret smoker. Often when he smokes cigars he will inhale them and may be worse off than he was to begin with. Most normal cigar smokers, though, do not inhale smoke, and this makes a major difference.

A glass of beer a day isn't a great deal of alcohol. I don't recommend it, but it isn't going to have a major impact on one's longevity and health, provided there are no medical problems such as ulcers or liver disease.

THE BEST studies of groups who have had long life spans show they do things usually recommended. The life style of the Abkhazians in the Caucasus of Russia is relatively simple. Most of them do not by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Alka-Seltzer gets FDA approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After more than a year of controversy the Food and Drug Administration has given Alka-Seltzer a clean bill of health, rejecting contentions that it should be banned because its aspirin content could be dangerous for ulcer victims.

The FDA published its final regulations governing the safety and effectiveness of all over-the-counter antacid products which were subjected to a review beginning nearly two years ago.

"The record does not contain any significant number of case histories of such acute bleeding caused by this widely marketed type of product consumed in large quantities by a substantial body of the public for many years," said FDA Comr. Dr. Alexander M. Schmy.

Ralph Nader's Health Research Group had urged FDA to ban Alka-Seltzer's antacid-aspirin combination because it said an ulcer patient could mistake ulcer pains for an upset stomach and take the product, causing more bleeding of the ulcer.

MILES LABORATORIES earlier this year began to market a second variety of Alka-Seltzer with a "gold label" and without aspirin, billed as being for relief of only acid indigestion, heartburn or upset stomach. Regular Alka-Seltzer, in the blue label, still is offered for relief of headache in addition to the other symptoms.

Miles said its decision to offer the second product was not prompted by the Nader organization's complaints but by the new FDA rule specifying that antacid-antacid combinations should be used only for the concurrent symptoms of upset stomach and headache — not for stomach problems alone.

Miles said it was "gratified" at the FDA's decision, adding that Alka-Seltzer now has been studied more extensively than any other similar product.

But even as the FDA was publishing its final regulations, the product was being attacked during a congressional hearing into the FDA study.

Dr. Morton I. Grossman, a professor of medicine at UCLA, said the aspirin-antacid combination is "irrational" and advertising for its treatment of indigestion should be forbidden. A similar comment came from Dr. Stewart C. Harvey of the University of Utah.

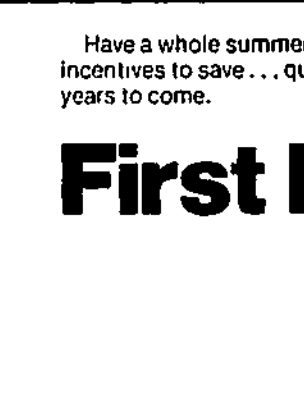

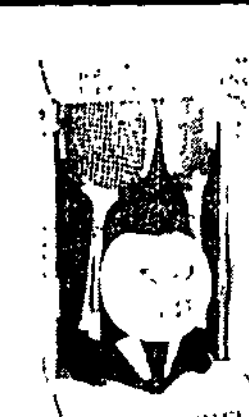

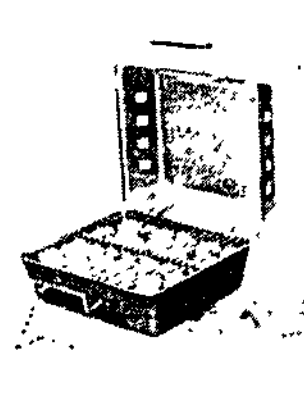

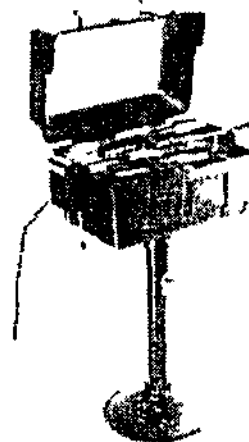

these individuals live the long life spans that have been observed.

Herald opinion

Where's that openness?

It was as if Dr. Carter had died of a liver ailment. Or Orville Wright had fallen from the sky in flames. Or the captain of the Titanic had stepped into a lifeboat with a leak.

It was one of those ironic turns of fate that skewer the heroic and the profane and cause common folk to be thankful for their anonymity from publicity.

This week Anthony Scariano, the author of one of the state's toughest laws governing the way public bodies perform in open, was accused of breaking his own law.

Scariano, long a champion of the freedom of the press and thus of the inquiring public, was accused of allowing the Illinois Racing Board which he now heads to deliberate by telephone and decide privately on a public matter.

At issue was the weekend decision of the Illinois Racing Board to allow Arlington Park Race Track to hold double header meets. The double card would mean night racing here in the Northwest suburbs, thus opening once again the controversial matter of a lighted and congested race track, something local suburbs have long opposed.

Somebody challenged Scariano on the way the board had conducted itself and changed for a little while the decision of the Racing Board. And who was that someone? Well, remember when we mentioned irony? Ironically, the man who made Mr. Open Meetings blush was none other than the mayor of Rolling Meadows, Roland Meyer.

Over the years we have often commented on the obvious need for rigid adherence to the Illinois Open Meeting law and we have pointed to instances in the City of Rolling Meadows where we thought the law was bruised. And now Roland Meyer and City Atty. Donald Rose with one adroit move turned the point of that law deftly between the ribs of Mr. Scariano. Atty. Rose threatened to sue the Illinois Racing Board for acting outside the province of the Open Meeting Law. Although that point of law was not contested, the point of Rose's argument was well taken. The board quickly convened in public and deliberated before the public instead of over the telephone.

If the threat of the provisions of the Illinois Open Meeting Law is so strong as to make even Tony Scariano pause, and if the law can be applied vigorously by Meyer for the benefit of the interests of his community, then its purpose has been fulfilled.

Caught him last weekend near the track!

Bob Lahey's column

Cause opens up Congress

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

The best and surest way to assure that political officeholders act in the public interest is to keep track of what they are doing.

That statement started to come out on paper as "to simply keep track," but the fact is that keeping track of all the actions of all the elected officeholders is not simple at all.

It is a job of great magnitude, for an obvious example, to keep track of how the 435 members of the U. S. Congress vote, not only on major issues on the floor of the House, but on committee recommendations and matters involving procedures.

In the last of these, Common Cause, the organization which describes itself as the "people's lobby," has performed what appears to be a substantial public service by keeping close track of which congressman vote for or against closed sessions of their various House committees.

In 1973, the House commendably adopted a rule which states that committee meetings may be closed to the public only if a majority of the committee votes, on the record, to bar the public.

The immediate effect of the bill was insignificant on committees which had long grown accustomed to conducting the bulk of their business behind closed doors.

Common Cause, however, alertly began an extensive program of monitoring committee meetings to determine how well the rule was being observed. Their activities included sending volunteers to sit in on meetings which ordinarily would attract no public attention whatsoever, simply to learn whether they were requiring record votes in cases where some members felt the sessions should be closed.

After monitoring the meetings for one year, Common Cause made the records of each of the congressmen who voted on open or closed meetings available to the public.

Since publication of those voting records, there have been some significant turnabouts in closed-door policies in congressional committees.

Probably the most notable of these was demonstrated by the powerful Ways and Means Committee. In 1973, Ways and Means conducted 40 closed sessions, and 24 to which the public was admitted. Since Common Cause revealed the records of those who voted for or against open meetings, Ways and Means has held 34 public meetings and only one closed-door session.

The Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, and its subcommittees, has also eased up on closed meetings.

In 1973, it held 82 open meetings and closed the doors on 33. So far this year, it has had 38 open meetings and only 4 which were closed.

The House Administration Committee had 18 meetings in 1973, all in secret. Through May 15 of this year, it has held 7 open meetings and three closed sessions.

Not all the committees have reversed their records. The Armed Services Committee — perhaps for good reason — has had 18 closed meetings of the full committee or subcommittees this year, and only eight public sessions. In 1973, its record was 25 open and 26 closed meetings.

Among those congressmen who have consistently voted for open sessions since the rule was adopted is Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, a member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has not had occasion to vote on closed sessions.

Two other Illinois congressmen, both members of Ways and Means, are near the top of the list of those voting for closed sessions. Rep. Harold Collier, R-Lake Bluff, cast 40 votes for closed sessions, and only one for an open meeting. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Chicago, widely known as Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's chief spokesman in Congress, had a perfect record of 41 votes for closed sessions and none for open meetings.

School superintendent hit

Dear Supt. Ervitt, Dist. 59.

All of us have been supporters of you in the past. We are well aware that you have done some great things for the district — things which desperately needed to be done for Dist. 59.

Thus we have noted with sadness the deterioration of relations between the office of the superintendent and the local school administrators. Our sadness has not kept us from observing, however, that many of the local administrators have had to spend an increasing amount of time and energy trying to deal with the central office. And that it is self evident that more and more of your time — and that of the central office staff — has been spent trying to deal with the local administrators. However it may have been that this situation came about, it is our children who suffer when everyone's attention is diverted in this manner from their prime responsibilities. We feel the declining performance in test scores and the recent failure of the state to give instant accreditation to our district provide direct evidence of the harm that has been done.

We have also observed a growing feeling of bitterness on the part of many parents, bitterness which is directed — rightly or wrongly — at both the school board and the superintendent's office. This, too, greatly concerns us. Many of us suspect that you are right in feeling that a tax referendum will be needed in the near future if we are to maintain and improve the quality of education in Dist. 59; needed not only to maintain the status quo but hopefully to restore some of the programs which have been cut back or dropped in recent years and to restore Dist. 59 to the reputation for extraordinary excellence it once enjoyed. We fear that such a referendum will be doomed to failure, however, as long as the present situation continues.

We recognize that it seems to be the

letters to the editor

Great American Pastime to fix blame, to find a scapegoat for whatever difficulties we find ourselves in. If we were to make that attempt, the fact that the average tenure of a superintendent in Illinois is only 2-1/2 years indicates that perhaps the fault most often lies with the parents and the school boards rather than the superintendents. Such blame fixing is a recreation, however, that we feel Dist. 59 can ill afford. It accomplishes little except perhaps to absolve our own consciences. Perhaps the wisest comment in this regard was made some 2000 years ago: "Let he who is without blame cast the first stone." The exact cause of the low morale currently existing in Dist. 59 is far less important than the fact that it clearly exists.

As we view the present harm that has come to Dist. 59, and the potentially devastating effect of a further polarization within the district, we have come to the conclusion that the interests of all of us would be better served if you could see fit to resign. We feel that such an action does not have to reflect adversely on your performance as our superintendent. As anyone who has watched a pair of friends end up in divorce court sadly learns, it is all too possible for the relationship between two perfectly reasonable people (or groups, or even nations, for that matter) to deteriorate to the point where a permanent separation is the only solution. We feel the only solution to the present situation is such a separation; a conclusion which is totally independent of the question of "who's to blame."

Only one final remark needs to be made. We do not in any way purport to represent either the parents or the administrators at the schools where our children attend. What we do represent is a group of parents who are deeply concerned about the best possible education for our children, and who feel that the present situation must be corrected before irreparable harm is done.

Aerosol cans attacked

by MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON — Aerosols, so popular with the public and manufacturers that 3 billion spray cans were turned out last year, are caught in a consumer-government crossfire with no armistice in sight.

The attack ranges from the risk of injury from exploding cans, to the chance of death or serious illness from long-term exposure to the fine particles of chemicals sprayed in the air and the gases which propel them.

The discovery that vinyl chloride, a suspected cancer-causing gas, was used in some aerosols prompted the government to move against hair sprays, pesticides and other products. The Consumer Product Safety Commission has banned the chemical from any household items under its jurisdiction.

The latest group to join the critics is Consumers Union, the nonprofit research organization which publishes the magazine Consumer Reports.

In the current issue, Consumer Reports readers are warned to be selective in using aerosols, and those with heart problems, chronic bronchitis, emphysema and asthma are urged to avoid them altogether.

The report said one big problem is that chemicals offered for sale in other forms are often not retested when they are put in aerosol packages to determine their impact on health.

Inhalation is the fastest way — outside of an injection in the vein — to get a chemical into the body, and the tiny particles in aerosol sprays can easily be carried to the bloodstream, the article says.

The same basic arguments were made earlier this year by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a research group. It petitioned the Consumer Product Safety Commission for a broad-scale investigation of aerosols.

The commission held hearings and has compiled a lengthy stack of testimony; but it still has not decided whether it will put forth any guidelines or restraints on the industry.

One commission member said the best advice to consumers in the meantime is to use only those aerosol products which are absolutely necessary, or which are unavailable in other forms — basically the same advice Consumers Union gave its readers.

The commission's hearings produced testimony largely related to immediate injury problems, although the commissioners appeared interested in the long-term health effects. The agency's own figures show there are about 12,000 emergency room cases every year caused by injuries involving aerosol products, including cans that explode.

The industry claims that user abuse is the main culprit in those cases.

The emphasis now, however, has switched away from sudden injury to the long-range problems of aerosol use, with the likelihood of a stepped-up government investigation to determine if consumers are paying too high a price for convenience. (UPI)

Boosts state senator

I would like to commend Senator John Nimrod for his "yes" vote to the Equal Rights Amendment which was considered last week in the Illinois Senate. He had been undecided about how he would vote, being under tremendous pressure from people in the area, on both sides of the issue, and his final decision must have been a difficult one to make.

I want to encourage all those people who wrote or called the Senator urging his support of the amendment, to take the time now, to acknowledge his positive action. We are sometimes guilty of spending a lot of energy needling a legislator to vote for a piece of legislation, and then failing to follow through with words of appreciation, when we are successful in our appeal.

As was reported, 32 senators voted for the amendment, two more than a simple majority. Unfortunately, it did not pass, since Senate leader Bill Harris' ruling that a three-fifths majority is necessary for a constitutional amendment, will prevail until the legal challenge to this opinion is decided in Court. In spite of the loss, which we hope is temporary, we are encouraged that we did gain the support of a few more legislators than had previously been committed.

Thank you, John. Those of us who had an opportunity to speak with you about this issue, appreciated your courtesy and thoughtful questions and comments. Hopefully, your expression of confidence in the ERA will inspire some of the other senators who still do not understand what an important statement this legislation is for the nation, in terms of real sexual equality — so that Illinois may finally become another state to say YES to equal rights!

EDITORIAL: The Democrats' delegate selection process is an example of how a political party can be democratic.

Word a day

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

'Boardsmanship'—an elusive term

"Boardsmanship" is the term applied to the art of being a good board member—whether that board member is running a village, park district, school board or corporation.

It also is an elusive term. Individuals may disagree on what makes a good board member and voters may sometimes be unsure of exactly how to judge a board member's effectiveness—unless, of course, they are angry over some specific issue.

Recently, at a meeting of the newly formed Illinois Board of Education, which as of January will take over the functions of state school Supt. Michael Bakalis, a proposed "code of ethics" was handed out.

The code, drawn up by Robert A. Jamieson of Peoria, a former member of the Peoria Board of Education, relates only in a general way to what is commonly called ethics (which seems to mean income disclosure or campaign finance) but it does provide some pretty good rules for board members, and a pretty good guideline for judging board members.

THE CODE HAS not been adopted by the board, and it may be changed before it is adopted. But as Jamieson presented it, it contains nine points which seem to me to be worthy of some thought.

It proceeds as follows:

"As a member of the state board of education, it shall be my constant endeavor:

• To devote time, thought, and study to the duties and responsibilities of a state board of education member so that I may render effective and creditable service.

• To work with fellow board members in a spirit of harmony and cooperation in spite of differences of opinion that arise during vigorous debate of points at issue.

• To base my personal decision upon all available facts in each situation; to vote my own conviction in every case, unswayed by partisan bias of any kind; thereafter, to abide by and uphold the final majority of the board.

• To remember at all times that as an individual I have no legal authority outside the meetings of the board, and to conduct my relationships with the staff, the citizenry and all the media of communication on the basis of this fact.

• To avoid conflicts of interest and the use of board membership for personal gain or even the appearance of impropriety.

• To refuse to participate in secret or other irregular meetings.

• To bear in mind under all circumstances that the primary function of the board is to establish policy and that the administration and implementation of such policy shall be left to the chief state school officer (superintendent) and his staff.

• To welcome and encourage active cooperation by citizens, organizations and the media of communication throughout the state with respect to establishing policy on current school operations and proposed future developments within the jurisdiction of the board.

• To strive toward ideal conditions for most effective board service to the state, in a spirit of teamwork and devotion to public education as the greatest instrument for the preservation and perpetuation of our representative democracy.

THERE IT IS, and even though many of the references are specifically about schools, that doesn't mean the general points don't apply to other governmental agencies.

A high school student I was talking to recently told me that the effect of recent scandals and convictions of public officials for various crimes would be to "make government a safer place."

I suspect that if all public officials lived up to the letter and spirit of Jamieson's code, government would be even safer still.

Dems try innovative experiment

'Taking the politics out of politics'

by BOB LAHEY
A news analysis

Later at night and longer ago than I care to remember, a political mentor was pool-pooling the theory of "taking the judges out of politics," which was a popular cause at the time.

"If you take 'just you, me and that guy' (who happened to be a bartender by trade and the only other person present at that hour), and say we're going to pick the judges, right away you got politics."

Democrats are in the midst of an innovative experiment to take the selection of delegates to their upcoming national "miniconvention" out of some of the least desirable aspects of politics.

THE DEMOCRATS succeeded in attracting large numbers of candidates for the position of "delegate electors," setting only minimal requirements for candidates who were voted upon Tuesday night in each Chicago ward, Cook County township, and Downstate county.

This encouragement "to open up the party" apparently succeeded fairly well, bringing some new faces into usually set circles of political activists. This was done to the encouragement of some local political leaders and to the dismay of others.

But in most cases, as generally is true in any political endeavor, those who were the best organized to get out the vote were the most successful.

The most notable case in the Northwest suburbs was in Wheeling Township where the regular organization slate, carefully balanced by Committeeman Donald Norman with five men and five women, won all 10 delegate-elect spots.

Donald Norman

IN OTHER TOWNSHIPS, where voter turnout was not as high, non-organization candidates took approximately half the positions.

However, the political smoke immediately thickened after the choosing of the delegate-electors.

In the 12th Congressional District, where the 65 delegate-electors must settle on only two delegates to the national conference, politicking for support of regulars, women, union members and various independents began immediately.

The first two names to emerge as the candidates to head were Norman and Herbert (Hub) Stern, Democratic chairman of Lake County.

UNDER THE WEIGHTED voting system by which delegates will be chosen—based on the township or county's performance in past Democratic elections—Norman's delegation and Stern's Lake County contingent represent more than half the votes to be cast at the election on June 18.

Herbert "Hub" Stern

If each could deliver all their votes to the other—and that is a big if—that would be the ballgame.

There will be a total of 77,238 votes to be cast, with each township delegation and the Lake County electors having an equal share of their home district's total vote.

Wheeling Township will have 17,856 votes; and Lake County will have 22,983.

The first fly in the ointment which might block a Norman-Stern alliance is the determination of the women delegates to send one of their number to the Kansas City conference.

WOMEN ELECTORS chosen in the suburban townships represent a block of more than 15,000 votes.

With help from friends in other townships, Norman estimated Wednesday that he could count on more than 25,000 votes.

There is little question that the Wheeling Township slate will give their votes to Norman. But there is another fly—each elector will be given the same number of votes (say 1,500), and may cast that same number of either one or two candidates (1,500 each).

Supporters of both Norman and Stern assert that they will get the votes of their organization, but express doubt that either man can assign the second vote to "their" candidates.

Also complicating the matter may be a laundry list of candidates. More than a dozen have filed for election as delegates, or are considering it.

With that many candidates, the number of votes needed for election (the top two will win), may be smaller than an absolute majority.

IF THE WOMEN delegates unite behind a single candidate, their voting bloc would have greater significance.

There are at least three likely candidates among the women electors—Julie Sass of Elk Grove Village, Rena Trevor of Rolling Meadows, and Margaret Page-ler of Schaumburg.

The presence of one of them on the ballot, with the support of the third, could attract enough alliance votes from Wheeling, Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships to elect Norman and the choice of the women.

Volunteer Appreciation Week . . .

VOLUNTEERS such as Gary Birginal, center, have given more than 6,000 hours of time to students at the Kirk Center in Palatine this year. The center serves handicapped children such as Steve Cooke and Susan Spivek, shown here with Gary. The Kirk Center is conducting Volunteer Appreciation Week this week for the 70 volunteers who have worked this year, including students from local high schools and Harper College, members of the Palatine Junior Women's League, parents of children in Kirk and other area residents.

70 honored by Kirk Center for 6,000 volunteers hours

Seventy volunteers who have donated more than 6,000 hours to Kirk Center, the school for the handicapped in Palatine, are being honored this week by the school.

The volunteers work with students under the supervision of the school staff. Handicapped students from Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Palatine townships attend Kirk Center.

Among the volunteers are:

Four Harper College students from the Child Development program who have served internships at the school: Jane Kealy, Cynthia Olson, Gail Sorenson and Martha Seltz.

Thirty other Harper students, some in Child Development courses and others using leisure time: Connie Archer, Diane Brodtkorb, Mark Carlson, Linda Gray, Barb Manago, Rich Niemaszyn, Patricia Sullivan, Lorie Bersusson, Judith Fischer, Arleigh Flora, Terry Gold, Celeste Hart, Debbie Jacobs, Judi Jacobson, Marilyn Jacobson, Mildred Jovanovick, Anne Joyner, Laura Kramer, Cathy Krause, Mary Jane Lakowski, Nancy Lange, Anne Lynch, Cathy Mackenna, Rose Anne Munda, Mary Prokaski, Nancy Reek, Patti Shozaki, Pam Sorenson, Pat Voelkel and Marie Walsphal.

Mothers of Kirk students who supervise in the lunchroom three days a week: Betty Kimpol, Ruth Burke, Nancy Dodge, Vera Grader, Gloria Manning and Marion Johnson. Eloise Zambas is an area resident who also volunteered for lunchroom duty.

A marriage ends...association to continue

A Palatine marriage will end next week.

It's not a divorce, you understand. It's more like a separation that both partners knew was inevitable.

They'll continue to see each other because they'll never lose the love they've had since 1948.

This is the lengthy love affair that Dick Welty has carried on with the Palatine Township school system. First as a coach for Palatine High School and later as athletic director at Fremd High School, Welty has been a sports institution in the village. His retirement goes into effect June 11.

Although in good shape and at the peak of productivity at age 61, Dick decided to leave his profession four years ahead of time. One of his main reasons: "I think my philosophy is too old fashioned for today's type of discipline."

The discipline of Dick's day was an unquestioning type. He only taught it the way he had learned it growing up during the Great Depression.

Since over half of the country is under 25, the Depression doesn't mean much to this segment of the population. Besides being a chapter they had to study in history class, probably the only other connection with the 1930s is the popular TV series, "The Waltons."

Dick came from the conservative atmosphere of a small Illinois town of Hoopston, located 25 miles north of Danville. He excelled in football, basketball and track, lettering 11 times on the varsity level.

Despite his proficiency in athletics, no four-year scholarship existed then. Instead, he worked his way through school. Again, discipline was the byword of this self-made man.

A trio of high school positions and a tour of duty in the Air Force in World War II prepared him for his "second" marriage in 1948 with Palatine. His first wife, Esther, his wife, began 35 years ago.

Dick's 28-year career in the Palatine system was honored last week with a surprise party. Along with many fine gifts came recollections of the contributions this man has made to sport.

His excellence as a track coach was his greatest success story. His teams won conference titles for 11 straight years, finally losing in 1959. However, that year saw his crowning track achievement as, ironically, the Pirates finished tied for second in the state with

Paul Logan

LaGrange at 14½ points. Bloom, a perennial power at that time, won the team title with an amazing 20½ points.

Adding to his personal pride at that time was his son's second-place finish in the quarter mile.

Dick's track coaching records are unequalled. In the Herald area, but many people who have come along after his retirement in 1966 are probably not aware of them. They are not aware that he probably deserves the title "Mr. Track" in Palatine, a town that's long been noted for track and field excellence.

He's pleased with those years in coaching as well as the past years as athletic director at Fremd, a job he took on in the mid-1960s.

"We've built a solid program in most sports. We have a solid coaching staff and we've got a guy taking my place who's really a nice guy," said Welty, referring to Al Ratcliff, his replacement.

He has the impression that some people don't think Dick Welty is a nice guy. He's a character, to be sure, but he's also a nice guy.

"Naturally, I have the reputation of being very outspoken and gruff," he said, leaning back in his desk chair, his fox eyes flashing. "That has been the one thing that people have not liked in me. But there's one thing I don't do and that's hold grudges."

In this day of fake friends and wishy-washy people, Dick is refreshing. His self-criticism didn't escape one of those young men who knows the real Dick Welty.

"He's honest and straightforward," said head baseball coach Terry Gelling. "He lets you know where you stand."

Gelling, one of over 100 who honored Welty last week, said those words in a tone of one who respects and loves this man. He, like many others, would have liked to see him stay on until he's 65.

The difficulty relating to today's student was brought across again. Dick recalled the "old days of discipline" when a paddle was used to keep order. He wasn't kidding.

"Oh yeah... two kids I'd catch would have to paddle each other," he explained, chuckling. "If they didn't do a good job, I'd have to instruct them in the art of paddling."

Despite retirement, Dick will keep active in timing state track and wrestling championships, as he's done for over a decade. He also has the new job — created just recently — as part-time executive secretary for the Illinois Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Last year he was honored as the athletic director of the year for the northern district of Illinois. This award and Fremd's state cross country title were the highlights of his AD career.

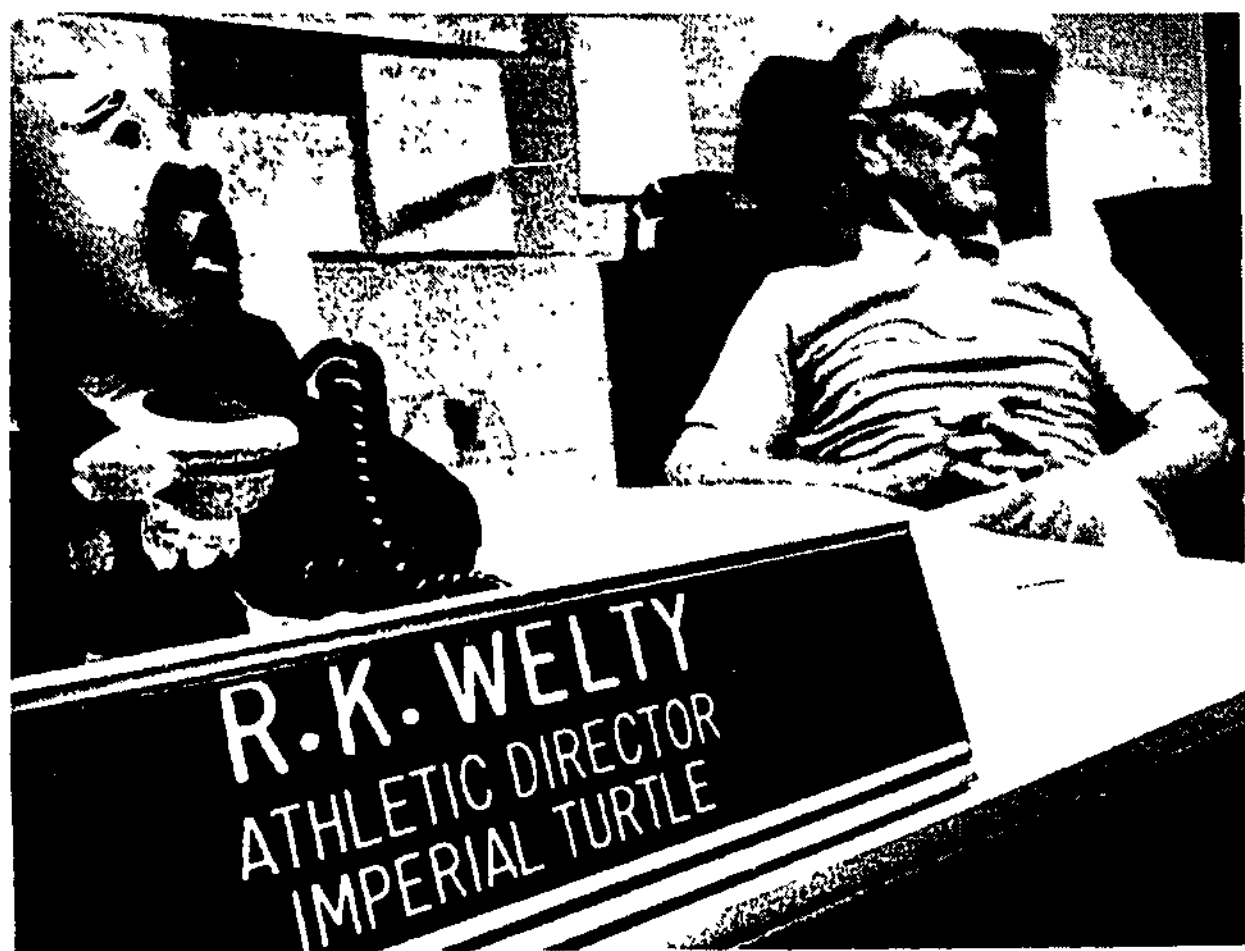

He deserves one remaining honor. When somebody as successful as Dick Welty retires, something is usually named in his honor. However, both Palatine high schools already have names for their track-football fields.

One possibility remains if the proposed third high school is built in Palatine in a few years. When administrators look for a name for the new stadium field, maybe they'll remember Dick Welty.

That would be a fitting way to thank a man who served the students of his community for almost half his life.

It would make his marriage to Palatine immortal.

White Sox pick Forest View's Monroe in first round

by MIKE KLEIN

Larry Monroe, yet to claim his high school diploma, became public property and a mini-celebrity Wednesday morning when the Chicago White Sox made him their first round choice in baseball's free agent draft, held in New York. He was the eighth player taken nationwide.

With general manager Roland Hemond calling the shots, the White Sox took Monroe after Chicago's crosstown Cubs had chosen outfielder Vernon Thompson of Renfrew, Penn. Monroe, 26-7 lifetime at Forest View High School, was the fourth and last pitcher tabbed in the first round.

Selected No. 4 nationwide by the Cleveland Indians was pitcher Tom Brennan, a Lewis College senior who played high school ball in Oak Lawn south of Chicago.

Pitchers comprised four of the first seven White Sox choices. But only Monroe, among the four, was taken off a high school roster. Chicago's No. 2 and 3 picks were righthanded pitchers John Kueck from Miami of Ohio University and Peter Vukovich from Clarion (Penn.) State.

Hemond then named one catcher and two outfielders before taking lefthanded pitcher Tony Komadina of Arizona State.

White Sox manager Chuck Tanner, reached by the Herald at the Executive House hotel downtown, said no plans exist to put Monroe in a major league uniform this summer, a la David Clyde who went immediately to the Texas Rangers last year.

"Oh, no, he's just a young boy," Tanner began. "He has to go out and pitch. You're asking too much of him." But that's okay with Monroe who was at home when a television newsman called with the good news. "I wouldn't prefer it anyway," he said.

His selection yesterday has probably altered Monroe's young life for years to come. Playing major league baseball is a dream within realistic grasp. But it's almost too good to be true.

"Not complete surprise, but shock," Monroe remembered of his initial reaction. "No matter how prepared I was, it was still shock. Fifty people could have told me, but I'd still have to see it to believe."

Then he broke off into phrases. "Shock, excitement, happy to be a White Sox. I've been a White Sox fan... awe and excitement, I guess. It really did happen. It's kind of hard to believe."

Bidding will start between the White

Sox, with Hemond to negotiate the contract, and the University of Arizona where Monroe has signed an NCAA letter-of-intent. College is still very high upon his priority list.

"Only he can make the decision on that," said Tanner. "We'll give him an offer. He can weigh it and make up his mind." Tanner does not expect to be involved with negotiations "unless they ask me. Roland will handle it."

Monroe said he has never spoken to Tanner or Hemond and was in contact with neither by Wednesday afternoon. He emphasized that only a very positive contract will sway him from Arizona.

"I've been thinking about it for over a year now and I've got a pretty good idea of the situation," Monroe said. "I'm pretty high on Arizona. It'd have to be an offer above the scholarship. I value the scholarship to Arizona. For the last two years I've been trying to get one and I got it."

FAMILIAR STORY. Hersey High School captured its third straight Paddock Cup in the 1973-74 school year and retired this award in special ceremonies Tuesday evening. Although official Paddock Cup results have not been released because of the length of the league baseball season, Her-

President Eric Nelson, Principal Roland Goins, and Howard Lester, Dist. 214 Coordinator of Health, Physical Education, Girls and Boys Athletics and Driver Education, and a special guest at the banquet.

College World Series features area products

Special to The Herald
CARBONDALE — Pitcher Jim Bokelmann and infielder Bert Newman are among four former northwest suburban baseball standouts who will wear Southern Illinois University colors this weekend when the Salukis compete for the College World Series title in Omaha, Neb.

Bokelmann hails from Arlington High School as do his college teammates Mike Wilbins and Jim Locascio. Wheeling's Bert Newman, younger brother of SIU assistant coach Mark Newman, rounds out the list of local talent.

SIU swept a doubleheader from host Minnesota on the final day of the NCAA District 4 double elimination tournament to earn a ticket to Omaha.

Bokelmann carries an 8-2 season mark with a 2.23 earned-run-average for 76 innings of work into the Series which extends through Friday, June 11.

Newman, the Salukis' designated hitter and leadoff man, sports a season batting average of .362 and was a District 4 All-Tournament selection.

First baseman Wilbins hit .300 to gain membership on the All-Tournament squad and tied an SIU standard with a pair of triples against Murray State. His season average is .266.

Locascio's season batting mark stands at .302, including a sparkling .348 in tournament play. This is Locascio's rookie season as SIU's third sacker.

Ranked ninth nationally with an impressive 47-10 record, the Salukis open World Series play this Saturday at 8 p.m. against unranked Seton Hall. In three previous visits to Omaha, SIU's best finish was second place behind the University of Southern California in 1971.

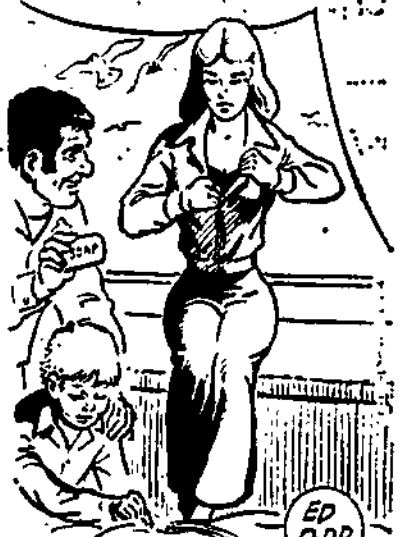

Eight teams are entered in this year's classic, traditionally played in Omaha's Rosenblatt Stadium. Head Coach Richard "Ick" Jones will be taking his second SIU team to the championships. In five years at the helm, he has compiled a magnificent 189-41 record.

Rebels capture first win, 6-2

The Northwest Rebels cracked the win column for the first time in their young season with a doubleheader split against the Chicago Stars Sunday afternoon at Amundsen Field.

Twelve Rebel hits went for naught in the opener as the Arlington-based entry was shut out 6-0 before rebounding to take the nightcap 6-2. The Stars punched across a trio of runs in both the first and sixth innings to hand the visitors their third loss.

Wally Weiner paced the losers with 3-3, while Kim Boey, Bill Maffey and red-hot Dave Lundstedt collected two safeties each.

Northwest got its revenge as Rick Mariano scattered eight hits on a yield of singletons in the second and fifth innings.

The Rebel attack ignited in their half of the second frame when designated hitter John Slack doubled home Bob Andrews. Slack then tallied on a single by Boey.

Four more Rebel runs in the following stanza sealed the Stars' fate. Two rode home on a Lundstedt double, and after Dean Sheridan singled leaving runners on first and third, Bruce Eberle's two-bagger provided welcome insurance.

This Sunday, the Rebels are slated to take on the Chicago Yankees in another twin bill at a yet undetermined location in the area.

Three Lions honored on all-conference team

Three St. Viator baseball players were named this week to the 25-man East Division All-Star squad of the Suburban Catholic Conference.

Shortstop Jim Bucaro and pitchers Steve Bobowski and Paul Kastner were the honored Lions, according to the balloting of the league's coaches.

Bobowski won five games, including three shutouts, during the regular season with an earned run average hovering right around 1.00. The big righthander also saw action at first base and was one of the Lions' heavy hitters throughout the year.

White Sox pick Monroe

Sox publicity director Buck Peden reacted this way. "You can always go to college in the winter months. You cannot get the attention playing college baseball that you can get in any minor league system that has more money to invest in coaches and plays more games."

Peden then alluded to Komadina, Chicago's No. 7 pick, who's just getting his professional start at 21 years old. "When Terry Forster was 21, he'd already pitched three years in the majors. If Larry has any ability to make it in the major leagues, he can make it fast."

The major leagues currently have a $13,000 minimum salary. "For three years in the majors, that's $39,000 that he wouldn't be making in college. If he does well, of course, he gets raises all the way along," Peden said.

Reading the club's scouting reports, Peden said, "Larry displays a good slider and he's a pitcher who seems to set the hitters up well. That's important. You can throw that fastball all the time but these professional ballplayers will hit you."

Who would select Monroe and how soon were the questions when Wednesday's draft opened. There was no doubt he would be an early pick.

Monroe thought he would be selected by the Cubs, White Sox, Montreal Expos or California Angels who picked seventh-to-10th in the opening round.

He's not expecting "any big hassles" over a contract. "I've got a pretty good idea what I can do," Monroe said. Should he not reach agreement with the White Sox, Monroe will probably play American Legion ball this summer. He has abandoned most semi-pro ideas.

Woodfield Babe Ruth League

The Palatine Cubs of the Woodfield Babe Ruth League are the early division leaders after the opening weekend of play. The Cubs beat the Hoffman Estates White Sox 5-3 on Saturday; then on Sunday the Cubs shutout the Elk Grove A's 4-0 behind the four hit pitching of right-hander Kevin McKenna. McKenna fanned 16 A's enroute to his first win.
 In other league action, the Rolling Meadows Cardinals edged the Hoffman Estates Giants 2-1 behind the five-hit pitching of Lou Citron. Tom Gray doubled for the Cardinals in leading his team's offensive attack.

Palatine Celtic soccer report

PALATINE CELTIC SOCCER
 The Palatine Celtic Soccer Club wound up the Spring Season of the 1974 season with a week of makeup games, a highly profitable dance, a picnic, and a mothers' game. Registration day for the fall season has not yet been set, but current players will be notified by letter and there will be a notice in this paper. Play will resume after Labor Day.
RESULTS
 Duffield 1, Blue Devils 1
 Laura Francis pulled off a hat trick and La Juan Gregory scored once as the Blues kept control of their match against the Duffields whose only tally was by Lorraine Noyes.
 Duffield 1, Blue Devils 1
 This was a very evenly matched game with both teams playing good ball. The Duffield unit was by Lori Sullivan and the Blue Devils by Karen Kelly.
 Blues 3, Celtics 0
 The Celtics put up a great team effort with strong play by forwards Sheila and Martha Kennedy and halfback Jo Barrett, but the Blues took over the scoring on strong defense by fullback Sue Voe and goals by La Juan Gregory, Laura Francis and Sharon White.
INTERMEDIATES
 Celtics 1, Wildcats 2
 The Wildcats gave the Celtics one of their toughest matches to date with hard play by Rick David at center forward, Martin Kuerz at fullback and goals by Tom Chase (2) and Eric Hoffmann. Craig Harding, Mike Diamond, Jim Renne and Mark McLean shared the Cougar goals evenly amongst themselves while fullback Jeff Arvonen and Bill Scott did a superior job of defending their net.

COUGARS 5, TIGERS 1
 The Tiger hawks spearheaded by Lars Bergstrom and Mike Domingue (who played with two broken toes) plus goalie Bill Brandt could not hold back the Cougars from their second win of the day. They dominated play with strong work from George Hayman at goal and Steve Smith at wing plus a hat trick by Craig Harding and additional goals by Jim Renne and Mike Hough. Keith LaFosse booted in the lone Tiger tally.
SHARKS 3, ALLIGATORS 0
 Chris Kingsborough (assisted by John Pelech) and Mike Jennings (on a penalty kick) booted in the Shark goals. Grant Pfister was outstanding at fullback as Tom Sauer was at halfback.
SHARKS 3, GOLDEN BEARS 1
 John Pelech led the Shark scoring with one goal and one assist. Tom Kerns made two assists, and Chris Kingsborough and Kevin Ruxusan both scored once. They were supported by the kicking of fullbacks Jim Sheilander and Scott Malloy, halfback Jim Lindsey and wing Steve Pelech. Paul Haddock made the Bear tally on an assist by Dan Murphy and with the help of outstanding field play by Kevin D'Amico, Paul Burgess and Mark Damines.
TRAVELERS 1, HYDE PARK SOCCER CLUB 1
 Arteshir Azarburzin scored the only Palatine goal on an assist by Brad Hyker.

Legion team sells decals to help with '74 expenses

A membership drive is underway for Arlington Baseball Boosters, Inc.

The newly-formed organization, which was put together by a group of people concerned with the propagation of legion baseball, is selling decals to assist with the finances of the 1974 program.

The decals, emblematical of membership in the organization, carry a likeness of three former Arlington legion players now in the major leagues — Dave Kingman of the San Francisco Giants, Paul Spittorf of the Kansas City Royals and Tom Lundstedt of the Chicago Cubs.

"This is an accomplishment in itself," explained Darwin Townsend, president of Arlington Baseball Boosters, "but more important the emblem represents an untold number of opportunities for our youth of the area to further their education and extend their athletic activities beyond high school."

The booster group was formed when legion sponsorship was dropped off the Arlington baseball program in November. Des Plaines Post 36 has agreed to endorse the Arlington area team, but Arlington Baseball Boosters, Inc. will provide the finances, coaching, equipment and the boys on the field.

"We have incorporated as a not-for-profit organization with the primary purpose of raising funds to help support athletic programs," said Townsend. "Our initial effort in this, our first year, is aimed toward the continuation of legion baseball representation from the Arlington area."

"We solicit contributions," he continued, "because this is our first year and we have to start from scratch financially. No maximum contribution is requested and no minimum will be refused."

Any questions may be directed to the group at 398-7100 or by writing Arlington Baseball Boosters, Inc., 1850 North Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights 60004.

Briefly on business

Anti-kidnaping seminar slated

An anti-kidnaping seminar is planned for June 13 at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago. Business executives can minimize the dangers of kidnapings, which totaled some $90 million to $100 million in corporate ransoms in 1973, according to Burns International Investigation Bureau. The bureau, an arm of Burns International Security Services Inc., is sponsor of the seminar.

World Planners to meet

Why meeting planners should use a group travel specialist for all off-shore movements will be discussed this weekend by Daniel Moody at the World Meeting Planners' first annual group and incentive travel session. Moody is vice president of Around the World Travel Incentives in Palatine. He will be among the speakers at the Sheraton-O'Hare Hotel in Rosemont.

Health test gear display

A new series of the Computa-Lab automated health-testing system will be on display through June 10 at the international exhibition, "Public health, medical equipment and drugs" in Moscow. The health data system developed by International Health Systems Inc. of Rolling Meadows is exhibited by IHS and Getz Bros. & Co. Inc., of San Francisco, Calif., a Trans Union affiliate. The Computa-Lab provides comprehensive patient health histories and test data to assist physicians in early detection and treatment of disease.

Land-use law seminar

Land-use litigation: critical issues for attorneys, developers and public officials, is a seminar to be presented today and Friday at the Hyatt Regency O'Hare hotel in Rosemont. It is sponsored by the American Law Institute, American Bar Assn. and Urban Land Institute.

Retail dealers meeting

Retail Dealers Group, a retail advisory committee to the Federal Energy Administration, will meet Friday at the La-Salle Hotel in Chicago. The meeting will be conducted in the Century Room starting at 9 a.m. The session is open to the public. It will be chaired by Charles Owens, deputy assistant administrator of the FEA's office of Policy, Planning and Regulations.

Free checking offered

Free checking service to persons 60 and older is offered by the First National Bank of Des Plaines. Arthur Weiss, president, said no minimum balance is required. "We hope our free checking service will help take at least one money burden off the shoulders of the many who contributed so much in the past to our community," he said.

Interest rates to remain high: exec

Business today

While the United States remains in a period of near "double-digit" inflation, interest rates are going to remain at high levels, said George B. Preston, president of the United States League of Savings Associations.

Preston, who will address the 39th annual meeting of the League's Pacific Northwest Conference today in Lake Tahoe, Nev., told his audience of savings and loan executives that there is no way of telling how long the present interest rate crisis will last.

"The simplest answer is to say if you know how long the United States faces a period of near 'double-digit' inflation, then you have a pretty good idea how long the present unusually high interest rates will last," he said. "Historically, as everyone knows, the interest rates tend to move with the inflation spiral."

THE LEAGUE president, also president of Fidelity Federal Savings and Loan Assn., West Palm Beach, Fla., said that many economists feel that interest rates are nearing their peak and that some drop is ahead in the coming months. This expectation is based on the fact that the volume of business loans by commercial banks — the primary reason for the high interest rates — has shown signs of "peaking out," he said.

Despite this, Preston said that there are further price increases and some catch-up wage settlements coming along as a result of the end of price and wage controls on April 30.

"When you couple these factors with the fairly substantial federal deficit expected for the fiscal year starting July 1," he said, "it is a little difficult to see any appreciable softening of the present high level interest rates at an early date. It looks like at least the strain in the money markets will be around for a while."

Preston noted in great part because of high market interest rates, savings and loan associations had a net loss of more than $300 million in savings during April. Preliminary figures suggest that May was pretty much of a "break-even" month with inflows of savings matched by withdrawals.

2 consumer price indexes planned

Two consumer price indexes will be issued by the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, beginning in April, 1977, it was announced this week.

The present consumer price index for urban wage earners and clerical workers will be updated and continued. A second, broader consumer price index for urban households will be published. Both indexes will be "as good or better than the present index," the Labor Department says.

The CPI for Wage Earners and Clerical Workers now covers about 45 per cent of the total population and is widely used for the escalation of wages under collective bargaining agreements.

The new CPI for Urban Households will cover about 80 per cent of the population and will provide a comprehensive measure of consumer price trends for the entire economy.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said that the plan for producing two indexes was developed "because the BLS is now convinced that a single index cannot fully meet the diverse needs of users in business, labor and government."

Spokesmen for organized labor have stressed that continuation of the CPI for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers is necessary for collective bargaining, noting that escalator agreements now cover more than 5 million union workers.

Trade union officers said the availability of this index for collective bargaining promotes industrial peace and that failure to continue the index would cause confusion and disrupt collective bargaining.

Industrial council sets dinner dance

The annual spring dinner dance sponsored by the Northwest Industrial Council will be held Friday at the Nordic Hills Country Club near Itasca.

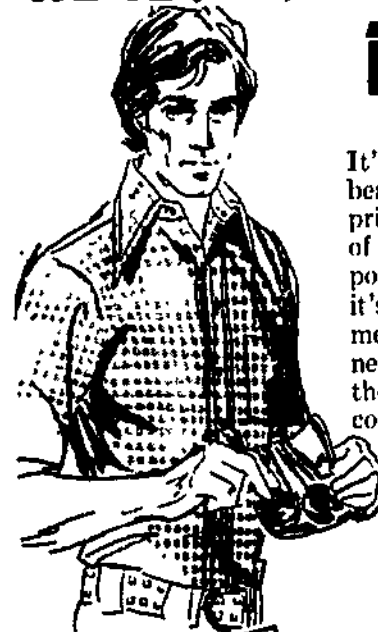

The 7:30 p.m. dinner will follow a 6:30 p.m. reception and cocktail hour. For additional information contact Alan Boltz of Kemper Insurance Companies in Long Grove.

PRESTON SAID that in the face of uncertain savings flows, savings and loan institutions should pursue cautious policies on loan commitments. He noted that loan commitments grew rapidly during the first part of the year, but more recently had begun to show signs of leveling out.

"If you want to maintain a high lending volume in the face of uncertain savings gains, you have that choice. The Federal Home Loan Bank System has money to lend — but the price on the advances from banks is very, very expensive indeed. The bank system raises the bulk of its funds in the short-term market and there is no real hope of the cost of these funds being reduced until there is a general drop in short-term interest rates," he concluded.

Kentucky, Union's 15th state to be honored with new issue

The 200th anniversary of the settlement of Kentucky will be commemorated June 15 with the release of a 10-cent U.S. postage stamp.

The settlement was at Fort Harrod from which developed the town of Harrodsburg where the stamp will be issued. Fort Harrod was the first English settlement west of the Allegheny Mountains.

James Harrod and 32 other men from Pennsylvania began construction of the fort 24 years after the discovery of the Cumberland Gap opened the territory west of the Alleghenies to explorers.

In 1775 wives and children of the founders arrived and Kentucky's first school was built inside Fort Harrod's walls. By 1776, the first physician's office in Kentucky had been established at Fort Harrod and in 1777 the first court convened there.

The settlement served as a safe base for Daniel Boone and from the fort's blockhouse, George Rogers Clark planned the campaign that led to the founding of Louisville and the capture of the Northwest Territory.

Only 18 years after the founding of the settlement, Kentucky was admitted to the Union as the 15th state.

The Fort Harrod stamp was designed by David K. Stone of Port Washington, N.Y., who also designed the Fort Snelling issue of 1970.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to Fort Harrod Stamp, Postmaster, Harrodsburg, Ky. 40330 enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

THE UNITED NATIONS Postal Administration (UNPA) on June 10 will release three new definitive stamps in denominations of 2 cents, 10 cents and 18 cents.

The 2-cent and 10-cent issues replace existing stamps which have been in circulation since 1964. The new 18-cent stamp is being issued to meet revised postage rates.

First-day cancellation requests should go to FDC/New Definitive Stamps,

THE UNPA will remove from sale the Universal Postal Union Centenary souvenir card at the close of business June 22.

THE NORTHWEST Stamp Club will sponsor a swapping session and mini-auction at its next meeting Wednesday, June 10. The group meets from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at St. Mark's Youth Center, 205 S. Wille, Mount Prospect.

Kissinger, 'most admired man,' cited with medallion

Sec. of State Henry Kissinger is being honored with a new art medallion published by The International Numismatics Agency. The medal is being struck by the Medallic Art Co. after a model sculptured by Joseph Di Lorenzo, noted medalist and member of the National Sculpture Society.

It portrays a full portrait of Kissinger on the obverse with a Dove of Peace encircling the work on the reverse.

The most recent Gallup Poll named Kissinger as the first choice by Americans as the man they most admired in the world. His special brand of "shuttle diplomacy" personal brilliance, and tireless energy have made him the contemporary symbol of American diplomacy and enabled him to serve with distinction under Kennedy, Rockefeller and Nixon.

AS A SCHOLAR, statesman and diplomat, Kissinger has become a vital national resource who opened better relations with China, soothed the way for a detente with the Soviet Union and brought a cease fire in Vietnam and the Middle East.

The new medallion will be issued in June, 1974 in the following editions: 2.5-inch Gold Vermell — limited to 1,000 serially numbered pieces minted in high relief. It is 24-karat gold on five ounces of pure silver at $85 each.

to 5,000 serially numbered and hallmarked specimens minted in high relief. Contents five ounces pure silver at $85 each. And a 2.5-inch Bronze in high relief; serially numbered at $7.50 each.

All medals will be accompanied by a metal desk display easel and the three silver editions will have certificates of registration.

Orders of requests for additional information on the Henry A. Kissinger Medal should be addressed to: Neil S. Cooper, The International Numismatic Agency, 96 Prince St., New York, N.Y. 10012.

ISRAEL'S WILDLIFE COMMEMORATIVE

The State of Israel has just announced the release of the first official medal associated with conservation. The silver medal commemorates the 10th anniversary of the Nature Reserves Authority, Israel's conservation agency founded in 1963.

Proceeds from the sale will benefit the Holy Land Conservation Fund's programs in support of conservation in Israel, particularly the campaign to acquire rare and endangered biblical animals and to create breeding herds for them in natural reserves in the Holy Land.

Designed by Shamir Brothers of Israel, the dies were engraved by Moshe Nov of Jerusalem and minted by Moshe Hecht of Jerusalem of Israel Government Coins and Medals Corp.

IT WEIGHS 47 grams and contains 935 parts silver. The obverse features a sculpture of the extremely rare Arabian oryx — an endangered species — and the words "Wild Life" in English and Hebrew.

The reverse carries a stylized rendition of the Nubian ibex, a rare wild goat, the symbol of the Nature Reserve Authority and the legend "Hai Bar (Wild Life) for re-introduction of Biblical animals into the Holy Land."

Cost of the medal is $30, including shipping, of which $15 is a tax deductible gift to the Holy Land Conservation Fund.

Orders may be sent to: Holy Land Conservation Fund, 150 East 58th St., New York, N.Y. 10022.

Telly Savalas, quality made the difference

Kojak beat odds to become top show

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — The returns are all in and the ballots have been counted. There's no longer any doubt — the biggest hit of the '73-'74 TV season, by far, is CBS "Kojak." It couldn't have happened to a more surprising show.

The Telly Savalas series was in the Top Ten most of the season and hit the No. 1 spot several times. And all this for a show that started with two strikes against it.

One was a real strike — the writers' strike of last fall which delayed all the new shows, but particularly "Kojak." Because of that it was the last new show to hit the home screen last season, not appearing until the end of October.

The other strike against "Kojak" was the fact that its star was an unlikely leading man. Telly Savalas is far from handsome, not young, completely bald. And yet there seems to be something about him — and his show — the public adores.

ONE PROBLEM "Kojak" faced was that, by the time it got on the air, there already had been a dozen or so cop shows holding forth in the TV precincts. Maybe that turned out to be in its favor. At the time it seemed an insurmountable handicap. The public had already gotten acquainted with cops and private eyes in all shapes, sizes and colors.

Tonight's best...

"The CBS Thursday Night Movies" screens the world television premiere of 1970's "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," starring Maggie Smith and Roger Stephens in a drama about the conflicts of an eccentric teacher in a conservative private Scottish school. 8 p.m. Channel 2.

"ABC Wide World of Entertainment" has another "Gerald Rivera: Good Night America" show. This one features an interview and other activities involving magazine publisher Hugh Hefner and an interview with actress Jane Fonda in Santa Monica, Calif. 10:30 p.m. Channel 7.

But what "Kojak" had, as it turned out, was something the others didn't have — quality. It sprang from a first-rate movie-for-TV, "The Marcus-Nelson Murders," which was good enough to have been a theatrical feature.

"Kojak is honest," Savalas says.

"If some hood has a gun, Kojak will go hide somewhere. If Kojak sees a prostitute on the street, he'll kick her in the rear and tell her to get lost. He'll behave like a real cop behaves, not like some of these TV cop boys Scouts."

TO SAVALAS, honesty is the key thing in any part he does. He won't accept roles he doesn't believe in. For a long time, he wouldn't consider taking a series lead, but they more or less tricked him into the Kojak deal.

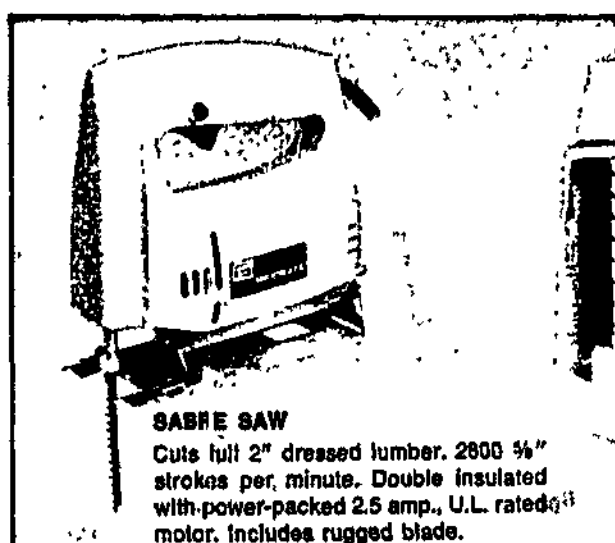

"They did it sneaky," he says. "There was a contingency thing in my contract for 'The Marcus-Nelson Murders.' That forced me to do it if it became a series. I didn't want to do it. I hoped it wouldn't sell. I like variety too much."

"I also like the insecurity of not knowing what I'm going to be doing next week. Being in a series is too secure a life. My father made a million in the tobacco business, then lost it and piled his five kids in a truck and peddled cakes. He was happy broke. So were we."

Telly enjoyed the gamble of an actor's insecure life. Now, despite himself, he's saddled with security. It looks like he's going to be a rich man. Kojak seems to be headed for a long and prosperous run.

In recapping their first year in operation, Langos & Christian, Realtors are seeing double.

Since Al Langos and Margaret Christian opened the office in June of 1973, the sales staff and sales volume have doubled in 1974. Also expanded was the office space at 701 W. Golf Rd. in Mount Prospect.

"Much of the business growth comes from satisfied customers who refer clients to us. They know we care about people," noted Margaret Christian.

Part of that feeling for people is evidenced in the sales staff at Langos & Christian. These experienced sales associates all live in the northwest suburbs. Some were born and raised here, while others have been in the local business arena for some 35 years.

The sales associates are active in civic, social and educational programs in the area. They come from different generations and varied backgrounds, and are members of the Chambers of Commerce, Kiwanis Clubs and League of Women Voters among numerous other groups.

"This makes us especially qualified to explain the life style of the towns and the benefits they have to offer," said Al Langos. "We can advise about neighborhood amenities, property values, taxes, schools, shopping and transportation — all the facts needed for home buying decisions."

The sales staff is always learning, always keeping abreast of trends in the real estate field. Weekly staff meetings bring owners and associates together to explore problems and offer suggestions. Experts in the areas of market evaluation, appraisals, insurance, mortgage financing, advertising, architecture and city planning are invited to the staff sessions.

In addition, salesmen participate in seminars and educational programs planned by professional real estate organizations.

Langos & Christian follow a hard hitting method of home selling. "We are experts in pricing homes realistically to attract a maximum number of prospective buyers," said the two owners. Once listed by Langos & Christian, a home is advertised every week until it is sold. Homes are also listed through MAP, multiple listing service.

We're growing rapidly and have a place for talented sales associates . . .

One of the greatest intangibles in the real estate business is the ability to feel when the right person walks into the right house. You know the home is just perfect for that family, and then you proceed to show them how to buy it.

We value that empathy and seek enthusiastic, experienced men and women to join our staff of professionals.

If you fit that mold, call us today.

Lender outlines guidelines used in mortgage decisions

A glide path for 747s passes over at treetop level.

There's a 24-hour truck stop next door. A busy freight yard is two blocks away.

If any of those or similar conditions applies to the house you want to buy or sell, financing will be hard to find, observes Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston.

"A prospective buyer may be euphoric over finding the house of his dreams," Goss contends, "but after the entire picture is seen, it may be up to the lending institution to bring his feet back to the ground."

He says he is surprised at the number of people who overlook basic lender guidelines before setting out to buy a house.

"Even if the house and grounds are suitable and the prospective purchaser has both the desire and financial standing to buy, his application for financing can be turned down for any one of a number of reasons," Goss notes.

He offers the following checklist for potential buyers:

Where is the nearest airport, and is the property proximate to a glide path?

Is the house on a major thoroughfare?

Is the neighborhood stable or in transition? A single house in an area where multi-family dwellings are sprouting can be a liability, as can a good house in a decaying neighborhood.

Is the house too close to commercial areas? Zoning laws can change quickly in areas of rapid growth.

Does the area have a history of natural disasters such as mudslides, earthquakes or floods?

Is the house an architectural "sore thumb"? Futuristic designs are fine for those who like them, but they often have a narrow appeal for resale.

What is the trend of property values in the area? Declining ones are an obvious damper on investment.

"All of these are factors in the lender's decision on whether or not to grant a mortgage."

"The alert buyer should ask about them and be satisfied that his investment is a sound one, or else he will find his dream house may be only a mirage," Goss concludes.

Seagram to build on Des Plaines site

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates announces the sale of a five-and-a-half-acre site on the south side of Algonquin Road, just east of Mount Prospect Road in Des Plaines to the Algonquin Group for $430,000.

The purchaser will construct a two-story, 70,000-square-foot regional office and warehouse building for Seagram Corp. of New York on a long-term lease basis.

Brokers were Donald W. Schaumberger and Robert A. Stone of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates representing the seller, Universal Oil Products, and the Algonquin Group was represented by Edwin Tweedie of Strobeck, Reiss, Universal Oil Products was represented by house counsel and John F. Salmon of Etelson, O'Hagan, Ehrlich & Frankel was attorney for the Algonquin Group.

New condo complex in Rolling Meadows offers savings advantages

Condo complex under construction in Rolling Meadows

SUMMER OCCUPANCY is expected as the first of two construction phases continues on Eton Square, a $10-million condominium development in Rolling Meadows.

Eton Square is being completed under labor and construction contracts that do not include many of the spiraling costs prevalent in the home-building industry today. Therefore, prospective buyers will find opening prices considerably lower than those projected for the latter part of '74. An additional savings incentive being offered until June 30 is a $1,500 reduction of opening prices.

Developer Bernard Gold of Metropolitan Development Co., 57 W. Grand Ave., said construction was held up for about six months by a variety of delays, some caused by materials shortages. "Today," he said, "delays are the norm."

ONE-BEDROOM condominiums with 850 square feet will sell for up to $27,900, while models with a den (1,050 square feet) will go for up to $31,900. Two-bedroom units will go for $38,000 (with a 1,200 square-foot floor plan) to $43,000 (for models with 1,350 square feet). Three-bedroom condominiums, with 1,550 square feet, will cost up to $48,000.

The developers say condominium assessments will average about $45 a month.

All apartments are to have wall-to-wall carpeting, tiled baths, and kitchens equipped with oven, range, dishwasher, and disposal. Sliding doors of thermal insulating glass will lead to private patios or balconies averaging about 150 square feet.

Included in the purchase price will be one enclosed parking space per unit and one outdoor space.

Phase one includes two four-story buildings, each with 15 one-bedroom, 48 two-bedroom, and six three-bedroom apartments. Also included in phase one construction is a recreational center, a two-story building that will have a bar, billiard area, card room, golf practice range, saunas, and whirlpool.

An upper level lounge will have a sunken "conversation level" centered around a see-thru fireplace.

A swimming pool with sundeck and two tennis courts will be constructed outside the clubhouse, which will border a man-made lake of about two acres where residents will be able to sail small boats.

PHASE TWO development will see construction of two residential buildings that will bring to 275 the number of units in Eton Square. Completion is expected in summer, 1975. The project is being built on a 13 1/2-acre site at Algonquin and New Wilke Roads, one mile north of Golf Road. Ph: 398-4555

Baird & Warner reports 3rd quarter net earnings

Baird & Warner Mortgage and Realty Investors (OTC), Chicago, has reported net earnings for the third quarter which ended April 30, 1974, of $410,888, equivalent to 40 cents per share. This compares to $517,297 or 49 cents per share for the year-ago quarter.

According to John W. Baird, president of the Chicago-based real estate investment trust, net earnings for the first nine months of the current year are $1,461,819 or $1.41 per share, compared to $1,386,630 or $1.47 per share for the year-ago period. The trust has paid $1.33 in dividends for the first three quarters, compared with $1.43 a year ago.

Baird said total loan commitments at April 30 stood at $82,386,000 compared with $86,640,000 a year earlier. The total was down $2,413,000 from $83,801,000 at the end of the fiscal quarter ended Jan. 31, 1974. Funds advanced against closed commitments at the end of the current quarter were $49,377,841. A year-ago the figure stood at $54,402,275 and was $48,159,185 at the end of the Jan. 31 quarter, he said.

Baird reported the trust is not recognizing interest income on seven delinquent loans aggregating $2,320,000. In the case of two of these loans involving a subsidiary of Building Systems, Inc., which has filed for relief under Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act, the trust has been attempting to arrange a satisfactory solution with the bankruptcy court. Of the remaining loans Baird stated the trust is working with the respective parties involved to bring about acceptable settlements and in certain cases, he stated, the trust has proceeded with foreclosure. "In all cases we feel the delinquent loans are supported by adequate security," he added.

Baird also noted that two FHA loans totaling $4,860,000 continue to be in default. Negotiations are progressing satisfactorily toward attaining settlements on a timely basis, he said. The total principal amounts and interest up to the FHA prescribed rates are covered by FHA mortgage guarantee insurance. Interest income is continuing to be accrued at the FHA prescribed rates.

The current quarter's lower net earnings and dividend declaration reflect the omission of income recognition on the delinquent loans, Baird stated. As loan settlements are finalized income will be recognized as received. He further added that under these circumstances measurement of earnings performance becomes more meaningful on a longer term basis than quarter-to-quarter comparisons.

Arlington Realty names manager

Arlington Realty has announced the appointment of Cliff Johnson as manager of the Hoffman-Schaumburg office.

Johnson, 41, is a fifteen-year resident of Schaumburg and has sold more than 600 homes in the Schaumburg area. He was formerly a sales associate with Campanelli Brothers in Weathersfield and later with Levitt & Sons in Sheffield.

He served on the school board of District 54 for three years in addition to three years on the board of Christian education at St. Peter's Lutheran School in Schaumburg. He was a member of the founding committee and served on the original board of directors for the Schaumburg Chamber of Commerce.

Johnson lives with his wife Marjorie Ann, and four children.

Arlington Realty is observing its 24th year of business in the northwest suburban area. There are four Arlington Realty offices; the Hoffman-Schaumburg area office is the newest. It is located in the Crossroads Shopping Center on Golf Rd. just West of Higgins Rd. The firm is a charter member of M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service and holds the M.A.P. area franchise for Homerica, the nation's oldest and largest executive relocation homefinding service. Sales last year exceeded $19 million.

Throw away vapor barrier if old insulation stays on floor

Here's a tip if you're adding new insulation on top of old in the attic floor of a home.

Be careful where you put the vapor barrier. Best of all, put it in the trash can.

The National Mineral Wool Insulation Association, an organization of companies that make rock wool and fiber glass, says that insulation being added on top of existing insulation shouldn't have a vapor barrier at all.

The only place to have a vapor barrier in an attic floor, or top-floor ceiling, as some people think of it, is on the bottom of the total thickness of insulation, new and old combined. In that position it effectively stops vapor transmission and the possibility of condensation on the roof.

But a vapor barrier on top of the insulation or midway between old and new insulation layers traps moisture, possibly diminishing the insulation's resistance to heat flow.

The association recommends slashing the vapor barrier liberally with a sharp knife to allow vapor to pass through. Or slice the vapor barrier off (it's easy to do) and discard it.

Unfaced blankets (made with vapor barriers) also can be used. So can "pouring wool," a loose insulation which, as the name implies, is simply poured out of a bag.

Modernization industry picks up construction slack

Building management personnel face more pressing problems and challenges today than at any other time in history. Tight money, supply shortages, the shrinking dollar, plus soaring operational costs have created a whole new trend to modernize and preventively maintain commercial buildings as efficiently as possible.

Already, the $30 billion modernization-maintenance market has overtaken the new construction market in many areas with nearly 67 per cent of all existing commercial, industrial, governmental and institutional buildings as well as large apartment complexes continuously undergoing modernization.

An example of the scope of this booming segment of the construction industry is the recently commenced Chicago Public School $330,000,000 rehabilitation program for 385 schools, the largest urban rehabilitation program in U.S. history. Milton Kiver, Chairman of the 1974 Building Modernization and Maintenance Exhibition, predicts this "courageous municipal commitment" will be an example for all U.S. urban centers to emulate. He further opines this rehabilitation attitude will trigger commercial, industrial and residential affirmative action in U.S. Cities.

The Building Modernization and Maintenance Exhibition at McCormick Place, Chicago, June 11 through 13, will present a comprehensive abstract exhibit of the Chicago Public School Program.

Kiver said at a recent Chicago news conference that the exhibit will include planning work flow charts, organizational control charts, progress report systems, supervision techniques, bidding procedures, overall control and implementation plans and before and after photographs. A comprehensive report will also be distributed to all Exhibition attendees.

The Building Modernization and Maintenance Exhibition is the only national exhibition to concentrate exclusively on the specific requirements of maintenance and modernization programs in America's commercial, industrial, governmental and apartment building complexes. The first-time exhibition, established to meet the demands of a burgeoning $30 billion market, will consist of an extensive display of the latest equipment, supplies and services needed for building maintenance and modernization operations, coupled with a timely and informative seminar program. The seminar topics are life-cycle costing, life safety, renewing the building shell for better appearance and reduced operating costs, physical maintenance and many other subjects. The entire program contains all the ingredients necessary for building management to work effectively and efficiently in meeting their modernization and/or preventive maintenance needs.

In addition, there will be a special tour of some of Chicago's most famous institutional and commercial buildings, giving attendees a first-hand look at some of the most efficient and highly regarded management operations in modernization and maintenance in the nation.

Over 10,000 building managers and owners, contractors, architects, engineers and housekeeping, custodial and purchasing executives are expected to attend.

The Building Modernization and Maintenance Exhibition is produced by Industrial and Scientific Conference Management, Inc., 222 W. Adams, Chicago, 60606; 263-4866.

Professional realtors help in obtaining mortgage money

The present, much-publicized tight money mortgage situation for the purchase of real estate is a reality, but not a dire situation as some journalists and economists have led the public to believe.

"Mortgage money is available," declared Bob Love, vice president of Continental Real Estate, Inc., "but it requires the knowledge of a professional real estate person to find the proper source to meet the needs of purchasers."

In reviewing the mortgage situation, he stated there are many factors that are necessary to put a real estate transaction together at any time with today's market requiring extra effort and knowledge. The two most important factors are proper pricing of the property to be sold so that it will attract buyers and also qualify for the mortgage that the majority of buyers would need and careful qualification of the buyer so that his economic status is such to be able to purchase the home of his choice.

The accomplishment of these two factors requires the expertise of a professional who has a thorough knowledge of the over-all economic situation and the local mortgage market.

The professional can, if ordinary financing is impossible, find a solution by working out other satisfactory methods, such as a contract sale, mortgage assumptions, part purchase money mortgages or pledges, Love noted. "It is the unusual buyer or seller who can go it alone in this market. Both need the help of a professional."

Wheeling real estate firm started by Berth, Durnan

A real estate firm has opened an office in Wheeling, V.I.P. Real Estate, Inc., is owned by two local residents, Wallace "Bud" Berth and Thomas Durnan. The office is located at 47 S. Milwaukee Ave. near Dundee Rd. The owners said they plan to open an office in Buffalo Grove this fall.

Both Berth and Durnan bring experience in the real estate field to their new company.

Both Berth and Durnan bring experience in the real estate field to their new company. They are trained real estate salesmen and have both been managers of other real estate firms in the area prior to opening their own business.

Berth is a lifetime member of the MAP Million Dollar Sales Club having topped the million dollar sales figure for three years in a row. He is also a Graduate of the Realtors Institute (G.R.I.) of Illinois, and is an active member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

Berth has a masters degree from the University of Wisconsin and lives in Buffalo Grove with his wife, Dorothy. Berth is a past chairman of the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission, was a lighting specialist with General Electric Co. and is a member of the Buffalo Grove Chamber of Commerce.

Durnan is a member of the Northwest Suburban Board and the MAP Million Dollar Sales Clubs having sold over a million dollars worth of real estate last year. Durnan has attended the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers (N.I.R.E.B.) investment courses and is currently taking courses for the G.R.I. and Certified Commercial Investment Member (C.C.I.M.) designations. He is also an active member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

Durnan has lived in the Wheeling area since 1968. Durnan is also an active member of the Wheeling Jaycees. Also with V.I.P. Real Estate is Marilee F. Anderson. She is an associate broker and a member of the Associate Committee of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors. She recently completed her second course in investment and commercial real estate sponsored by the N.I.R.E.B. Mrs. Anderson is also a Million Dollar Saleswoman.

According to Berth, President of the firm, they plan an intensive program of personalized service in all fields of real estate — residential, commercial and investment.

Berth added, "The name V.I.P. Real Estate was carefully selected. We didn't want to emphasize our own names, but did want to emphasize the philosophy of our company. Instead, we offer very important people, very important property, handled by vitally interested professionals."

Wallace "Bud" Berth

Arlington Heights executive to speak at Chicago show

Frank J. Dawson of Arlington Heights, director of marketing service, Peoples Gas Light and Coke Co., will address the 1974 Building Modernization and Maintenance Exhibition's session at Chicago's McCormick Place, June 11 through 13.

Dawson's address, "Energy Conservation — Today's Concern for Tomorrow," will examine the steps building managers can take to conserve energy. The steps include proper adjustment of the heating equipment, proper operation of ventilation fans and control of lighting levels. Building modernization offers many opportunities to incorporate energy savings in these days of energy shortages.

The Building Modernization and Maintenance Exhibition is the only national exhibition to concentrate exclusively on the specific requirements of maintenance and modernization programs in America's commercial, industrial, institutional, governmental and apartment building complexes.

The first-time exhibition, established to meet the demands of a burgeoning $30 billion market, will consist of an extensive display of the latest equipment, supplies and services needed for building maintenance and modernization operations, coupled with a timely and informative seminar program.

In addition, there will be a special tour of some of Chicago's most famous industrial and commercial buildings, giving attendees a first-hand look at some of the most efficient and highly regarded management operations in modernization-maintenance in the nation.

Over 10,000 building managers and owners, contractors, architects, engineers and housekeeping, custodial and purchasing supervisors are expected to attend.

Maybe we're not the "largest" BUT we are the FRIENDLIEST

Construction activity still depressed

It may sound like a broken record, but construction activity continued depressed last month, down 82 per cent according to the Bell Federal six-county survey of building.

All housing, including single family and apartments, reached only 2,175 from the 4,238 reported in April, 1973.

Single family units declined 12 per cent (1,728 to 1,523) and multiple permits decreased 74 per cent (2,530 to 633).

For the second consecutive month the sharpest decline was noted in apartment activity in the city of Chicago which dropped from 893 units in April, 1973, to only 18 units last month.

The combined total of permits issued for single family and apartments in the first four months of 1974 were 48 per cent lower than figures reported for the same period last year, reaching only 7,953 compared to 15,346 in 1973.

THE FIRST PHASE of Woodfield Place business center, called One Woodfield Place, is now ready for occupancy. The building is eleven stories with 180,000 square feet of space. Rents vary from $7.50 to $8 per square foot.

Office space now available at One Woodfield Place

One Woodfield Place, first phase of the Woodfield Place business center in Schaumburg, is now ready for occupancy. The eleven-story, 180,000-square-foot office building is located directly south of Woodfield Mall at the crossroads of Route 63 and I-90 and the Northwest Tollway.

Equity Control Corp. is developer of Woodfield Place. Leasing and management agent is IDC Real Estate. Robert A. Wislow, vice president of IDC Real Estate and director of the One Woodfield Place leasing team, said that the objective of the office center is to create the convenience of downtown Chicago in this suburban setting. The building's textured concrete exterior is complemented by bronze anodized aluminum window framing and floor to ceiling bronze tinted glass. Generous parking in the ratio of five cars for each 1,000 square feet of office space is provided in a private lighted and landscaped area separated and protected from Woodfield Mall traffic. Gardens and a landscaped plaza will lead from the private parking area to the glass enclosed lobby. Architects for One Woodfield Place are Hammond Beeby and Associates with the cooperation of Carson/Oda Associates.

One Woodfield Place has a 16,000-square-foot floor size designed for maximum flexibility for tenants' size and needs through use of a five foot planning module. "Constant volume" heating, ventilating and air conditioning will provide maximum energy conservation through a solar compensation system, which automatically adjusts the temperature for varying sun loads independently on every face of the building. In addition, each floor has 26 independent temperature zones, adjusted for tenants and balanced by the solar compensators. Tenants are supplied with full height solid oak entrance doors, wall to wall carpeting, partitioning and electric and phone outlets. Wislow said that rents range from $7.50 to $8 per square foot depending upon tenant size and location within the building.

A twin office tower is planned for future development.

Woodfield Place also features a Victoria Station restaurant opening in conjunction with the office building. Victoria Station, a national operation begun in San Francisco, designs its restaurants with a British Railway theme. The Woodfield Place Victoria Station is a 258-seat restaurant featuring decorations such as antique lanterns, baggage carts and an authentic cast-iron telephone booth brought from the United Kingdom. Victoria Station serves a complete lunch and dinner menu.

Northern Gas offers tips to keep utility bills down

Keep yourself and your home cooler during the hot days ahead and save on energy and your utility bills by following this "summer-lization" checklist from Northern Illinois Gas Co.

Shield out summer heat with insulation, weatherstripping and caulking. The same thermal principles which keep your home warm in winter help to keep hot air outside in summer, so don't wait until fall to prepare your dwelling against heat transfer.

Even if you have air conditioning, the insulating qualities of storm windows and doors can be put to good use in summer, too. Leave storms on.

Shade is everyone's friend. Create indoor shade by closing draperies and blinds. And why not plant trees and bushes for additional future shade around your home?

Use air conditioning only when necessary. When in use, set the thermostat slightly higher than normal and generally no more than 10 degrees cooler than outside temperatures. Keep window and central air conditioning units working properly by cleaning or replacing filters regularly.

Bake or run your automatic dishwasher only during the cooler hours of morning and evening. Try to plan meals that don't require much cooking, cover saucepans, use lower range settings or cook outdoors. Avoid using the self-cleaning feature of ovens during mid-day.

Keep opening your refrigerator and freezer to a minimum.

When laundering, wash only full loads, again avoiding the hottest hours. Many summer fabrics require cold water washing and cool drying temperatures — a plus to look for when shopping for family clothes.

Encourage your family to bathe or shower during the cooler hours. Expel heat and water vapor with exhaust fans, but flick them off when not in use.

Throughout your home, turn off heat-generating appliances and lights wherever possible. Close off unused rooms, except when they provide needed ventilation.

Despite tight mortgage money, buying home is wise, says exec

Quinlan and Tyson is finding homes for buyers despite a general "tightness" of mortgage money, according to Richard G. Rutledge, executive vice president.

Rutledge said the north shore and northwest suburban real estate firm takes an active role in arranging financing for home buyers.

That's why business, although slightly under Q&T's levels of 1973, continues to be good. In fact, Quinlan and Tyson had the second best quarter in its 60-year history during 1974, Rutledge pointed out.

The Q&T executive said, "Mortgage money is available. If you know where to find it. We pride ourselves on having expertise in this vital aspect of the real estate business."

"In addition, Q&T's sales staff has demonstrated a proven ability to put transactions together under all economic conditions."

Rutledge urged potential home buyers not to be discouraged because of currently higher interest rates and loan fees. He said, "The important question, as always, is: Is a home a good investment now?"

"The answer is 'yes.' For example, the value of homes in the north shore and northwest suburban areas has increased by 18 per cent in just the last two years. This price appreciation benefits the homeowner and is one of the best means of keeping pace with inflation."

Apartment sharing is on the upswing

In these days of rising rents and a growing shortage of prime apartments, sharing an apartment makes good sense to more and more people. And, in fact, the number of people sharing apartments is increasing, according to Chicago area property managers.

At the same time, these managers urge that apartment roommates be aware of the responsibilities and pitfalls that go with apartment sharing. Otherwise, it's very likely that one of them could be stuck with the entire rent.

Practically all ages and walks of life are represented by apartment-sharers: stewardesses, nurses, students, artists, politicians and public relations account executives, secretaries — you name it. The trend is particularly noticeable among young people who often lack the financial resources to rent an apartment on their own.

The number is increasing, according to William D. Sally, vice president and general manager of the property management division of Baird & Warner, Inc., because:

—Much of the multi-family construction in the Chicago area the past two years has been for-sale condominiums, not rental units.

—Many existing rental buildings are being converted to condominiums because high taxes and operating costs make rental buildings difficult to run at a profit.

—The remaining rental buildings have increased rents to remain in the black.

Sanford Ross, an assistant vice president at Baird & Warner and manager of its Evanston and Rogers Park property management offices, reports that graduate students at Northwestern University are one group experiencing a drastic shortage of apartment in Evanston. "We recently had to place 39 students in Rogers Park because there was nothing available in Evanston."

He said that 75 per cent of the students asked for a roommate and that all of them, whether they asked for it or not are doubling up or tripling up.

Will Luther, who is leasing manager at Campus Green, an apartment and townhouse complex on the Near West Side near the University of Illinois Medical Center, estimates that apartment-sharing has about doubled in the last year.

"Both medical students and professional personnel, such as nurses and technicians at nearby institutions, have been asking us to help them find somebody to share an apartment," said Luther.

Sally observes that as long as they get along together and behave as responsible tenants, there are no significant problems with people who share apartments. But there is more at stake than compatibility.

"Practically every management company in town requires that when unrelated people share an apartment, each must sign a joint lease. That makes him responsible for the full rent if his or her roommate splits," said Sally.

That's why management firms are required to check out each party to a joint lease.

Until Illinois lowered the age of legal responsibility to 18, persons under 21 couldn't sign any apartment lease; their parents had to sign for them, and then if the young person moved out, the parents were responsible for the rent payments.

"That's no longer true today," Sally said. "If we qualify the young person to sign the lease, we and the law hold him responsible for the rent. He can't escape any more on the grounds that he's a minor."

"In effect you are entering a legal partnership in which you are responsible for each others rental debts," observes Sally.

Because a person signing a joint lease for an apartment to be shared may be assuming responsibility to pay thousands of dollars, depending on the length of the lease, he should be aware of his obligations and also of the problems of living with a roommate, Sally said.

Here are some things to think about:

How are you going to buy and pay for furnishings?

Are your interests compatible with those of your roommate? Or will you wind up trying to enjoy a serious novel while your roommate has the stereo going full blast?

Are your working hours compatible? Some times it's best if you have staggered hours, which permits you full use of the apartment while your roommate is away.

What about food? Who will do the buying, the cooking, the cleaning up? Do you have similar tastes?

Do you share the same circle of friends? Or at least are you willing to put up with your roommate's guests?

Are you on the same moral plane? Or are your roommate's preferences in sex, religion, drugs and similar matters vastly different from your, or likely to lead to practices which offend you?

How much do you really know about your roommate's honesty and sense of responsibility? Is there a chance he or she will ask you to pay a month's rent, promise to pay you back later, and then renege?

What advance arrangements have you made to pay the rent in case your roommate loses a job, moves to another city, leaves to get married, or otherwise has to fly the coop?

How would you handle the security deposit if your roommate leaves? Since most leases require both you and your partner to pay half of the deposit, the agent cannot legally return the full deposit to you if your partner leaves. You must get a written note from your partner notifying the agent to return his portion of the deposit to you.

Is your roommate likely to stay in one place long? Changing roommates often can be expensive because some agents charge $50 or more for the leave revisions involved.

"Because of these and many other considerations, it's not good to rely on just a good feeling about your proposed roommate to see you through," the Baird & Warner executive said. "Take the time to investigate. And be aware that even though you share the rent, you may wind up with all of the responsibility for the lease on your shoulders."

TWO FLOORS of the Tollway Arlington National Bank Building at Arlington Heights and Algonquin Roads in Arlington Heights are designed for one-man business operations. Each one-man business tenant can take advantage of already-existing business services such as central switchboard, receptionist, secretarial service, answering service, conference room, copy machine and collating and mailing.

Bank building introduces execu-suite office space

Tollway Arlington National Bank Building, a new five-story steel and glass office building at Arlington Heights and Algonquin Roads in Arlington Heights, will have two floors of individual offices designed for the needs of one-man business operations.

Execu-suite offices are designed primarily for manufacturers reps, district salesmen, accountants, bookkeepers, lawyers and consultants that need not only the atmosphere but the facilities of a large operation to effectively conduct business and meet customers.

The offices are decorated and fully carpeted. Unfurnished they range from $175 monthly for a 12'x12' to $370 for a 20'x15'. Furnished offices run from $215 to $450 monthly.

The second and third floors of the Tollway Arlington building will be reserved for Execu-suite offices. The first floor and basement have already been leased to the Tollway Arlington National Bank.

Each Execu-suite floor will be a self-contained office complex. All of the services a business normally needs will be available to those leasing the individual offices, including central switchboard, receptionist, secretarial service, answering service, furnished conference room, copy machine, collating and mailing, 24-hour fast print service and coffee service.

The Tollway Arlington National Bank Building, which will be completed by July 15 of this year, has 10,000 square feet of available space on each of its five floors. It has central air conditioning, acoustical ceilings, high-speed elevators and a 200-car parking lot.

It is close to restaurants and motels and the Busse and Ned Brown forest preserves. There is nearby access to the Northwest tollway and other tollways and expressways. O'Hare airport is 15 minutes away and downtown Chicago about 40.

The $2.16 million Tollway Arlington National Bank Building is a joint venture of Ralph L. Edgar and Dennis J. Rintz. Leasing and management is being handled by Ralph Edgar's company, Investment Development, Inc., Palatine. D. J. Rintz & Co. is the builder.

AFTER A LONG, HOT SUMMER, THE LAST THING YOU NEED IS A LONG, COLD WINTER.

If the pilot light on your furnace has been turned off all summer, send it back to work before summer wanes. How do you light the pilot? There should be a plate attached to your furnace to tell you. If there are no instructions in sight, check with your heating contractor or utility company. Don't attempt to light the pilot unless you know what you're doing! Check your furnace to be sure the burner valves and electricity are turned on. Once you've got the pilot burning, set your thermostat at the lowest temperature.

Now, turn the thermostat way up to start the furnace. Let it run long enough to be sure it is working properly. Then, check all heat registers and radiators to be sure they are producing heat. Don't put it off! If you wait for the first cold day to discover that your furnace is not operating properly, your neighbors may have called in their S.O.S. requests ahead of yours. Obviously, even the most efficient heating and utility companies can't service an entire neighborhood instantly. Be first come, if you want to be first served!

education schools. Patty Zoremba of Des Plaines, middle, and Denise King, right, a member of the play cast, also get in on the mad hatter's fun.

MGM treats handicapped to play about Chicago history

Handicapped children from two special education schools saw special performances of Children's Theater 63's play "Please Don't Call the El the Subway," sponsored by MGM Realtors, Inc.

A morning performance given at Julia S. Molloy Educational Center, Morton Grove, was attended by approximately 200 children from Skokie, Niles, Morton Grove, Lincolnwood, Des Plaines, Glenview and Park Ridge. Following, at 1:30 p.m., 500 children who attend Spaulding School, Chicago, saw the second performance.

MGM Realtors has previously sponsored a special performance of the Shrine Circus for Spaulding School children and of "Don't Bother Me I Can't Cope" for the Spaulding High School students.

Robert B. Green, president of MGM

Realtors provided the play as part of his on-going community relations program aimed at contributing to the communities served by his real estate firm.

"Please Don't Call the El the Subway" presents in song and story the sights and sounds, comedies, and tragedies of Chicago since its discovery. The busy atmosphere of the windy city is symbolized by the El from which the title is taken. Over 100 hats are worn in the show. As each performer changes character he switches the hat he wears.

Heatilator Fireplace gets contract for over a million

A million dollars buys a lot of fireplaces, and that's only part of a contract awarded to Heatilator Fireplace, a Division of Vega Industries, Inc.

In announcing the award, R. W. Cranshaw, executive vice-president, said that the contract, actually totalling $1,100,000, is for a minimum of 1,500 Heatilator Mark 123 wood-burning fireplaces to be installed at Lake Barrington Shores, a luxury condominium development of 1,350 homes now under construction in the Barrington area.

Since some units are designed for as many as three fireplaces at the buyer's option, the total number of fireplaces could be appreciably greater than the original contract.

Distributor is Builders Fireplace and Supply, Crystal Lake. The first 98 units of Phase I will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1974.

Ranging in size from one-bedroom to three-bedroom homes with library and two-and-a-half baths, each will have from one to three fireplaces. Prices range from $49,900 to more than $100,000.

Developers of the community are Lake Barrington Associates, a partnership of James Building Corp. (managing partner), a wholly-owned subsidiary of James Investment Corp., and Amoco Realty Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Heatilator Fireplace Division of Vega Industries, Inc. is a leading manufacturer of a broad line of factory-built fireplaces. The company's corporate headquarters are in Syracuse, N.Y. Its fireplace manufacturing and marketing facilities are located in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa.

Nardi completes industrial lease

Completion of lease arrangements for Universal Instruments Corp. was announced today by Nardi and Co., Chicago-based industrial realtors. Universal Instruments will occupy the 10,000-square-foot facility at 327 Erie Drive in Palatine.

The facility is located on a 40,000-square-foot land site. It was the former headquarters of Heritage Plumbing Co. Universal plans to use the building for assembly of computers and related products.

Sole broker in the transaction was Michael E. Bagan of Nardi and Co. John Fielding was counsel for Heritage Plumbing Co. and Universal Instruments was represented by its house counsel.

HAWTHORN REALTY GROUP has announced that Inc., International distillers and marketers of liquors. Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc. signed a 25-year, $6,000,000 lease on the building which is being built to their specifications.

Announce $130,000 transaction

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates reports the leasing of a $9,450 square foot unit in the building at 2200 Elmhurst Rd., Elk Grove Village, to Chicago Brass and Copper Co. The facility will be used as a regional warehouse and converting plant. Vernon Schultz of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates was the sole broker in the $130,000 lease transaction. The lessor was represented by Joseph Palmisano Jr. and the lessee was represented by house counsel.

Sievert Corp. buys 2.7-acre lot

Daniel J. O'Neill, executive vice president of Podolsky and Associates, Ltd., announced that Sievert Corp., a heating and ventilation contractor of Rosemont, has just purchased Lot 11, Plum Grove Industrial Estates (a Miller Builders Development) in Schaumburg. Of the original 450-acre industrial development, 26 acres remain for sale. The vacant parcel is located immediately west of the home headquarters of Motorola, Inc. The sale comprised 2.7 acres. The sale price was not disclosed.

Homefinders names new sales associate

Marie Catalano has joined Homefinders Realtors as a sales associate, announces Robert L. Zawn, president of the Palatine-based firm. A resident of Norridge, Mrs. Catalano will work out of the Schaumburg office of Homefinders at 133 Town Square. Mrs. Catalano was born in Chicago and graduated from Wells High School. She and her husband, Nicholas, are the parents of three.

Used computer firm moves main office

Evergreen Computer and Financial, Inc., a used computer sales and leasing firm, will be relocating their corporate offices to One Appletree Square, Bloomington, Minn., near the Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport. Evergreen also maintains regional offices in Des Plaines and Palo Alto, Calif. to provide personal services to its customers nationwide.

Why our rents are 20% lower.

If you could rent a brand new apartment today at 1972 prices, would you do it? You bet! With prices what they are today, a saving of more than $600 per year in rent is worth looking into.

How can we offer you such a saving? First, our financing was arranged more than two years ago when interest rates were low. (Would you believe 6 1/2%?) Second, our construction contracts were let 15 months ago when prices were 20% less than today.

Third, we have eliminated superfluous amenities such as saunas, conversation pits and putting greens, so that you are not paying for something that you never use.

We do, however, offer everything you expect in a quality apartment community. Included in the rents below are walk-to-wall carpeting, heating, central air conditioning, parking and membership in our private swim club. Solid, sturdy brick construction (concrete floors so you can hear your neighbor), and 22 beautiful landscaped acres to roam in.

Tinning named accountant unit program head

Herbert P. Tinning, engineer and administrator, has been appointed manager, Socio-Economic Program of the National Assn. of Accountants.

Tinning's past experience involved national organization work, as the assistant technical director of the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers in Chicago through 1969 and as director of technical services for the American Society of Heating, Air Conditioning and Refrigerating Engineers, for the previous eight years. Prior to his association involvement, he served as test engineer and assistant editor for the Good Housekeeping Institute following his graduation from the Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken, N.J., where he received a degree of mechanical engineer. There, he also earned graduate credit for a degree of management science and chemical engineering.

Tinning now resides in Arlington Heights, with his wife, Lorraine, and his two children, Christian and Kirsten, and has been active in alumni, civic and homeowners' associations. He was recently elected Trustee of the Seabury-

Western Theological seminary of Evanston and is a Vestryman at St. Simon's Episcopal Church of Arlington Heights.

He also is a member of Sherlockian organizations in Chicago and a contributor to its affiliated journals.

Mayer named publicity manager

Robert E. Mayer of Arlington Heights has been named manager of publicity for Bell & Howell's Consumer & Audio Visual Products Group, according to an announcement by Robert C. Lundquist, director, marketing services.

Mayer joined Bell & Howell in 1969 as manager of photographic services. Prior to that time, he was supervisor of photo education and publicity for the GAF Corporation and has also worked with Argus Cameras and served as an instructor at Arizona State University.

Mayer attended Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, and holds a B.F.A. and an M.F.A. degree in photography. He is a member of the Photographic Society of America, the Professional Photographers Association of America, and the National Press Photographers Association and he has served on the Chicago Advisory Group for the Photography for Youth Foundation.

Name district rep for aid organization

Dudley T. Lancaster, 4 Beechwood Court West, Buffalo Grove, now is a member of the David J. Modene Agency, Mount Prospect, as a district representative in this area for Aid Association for Lutherans.

AAL is a fraternal life and health insurance society with headquarters in Appleton, Wis. It has more than one million members throughout the U.S. and ordinary life insurance in force exceeds $5 billion.

Completes 20 years with Prudential

Frank B. Shadel of Wauconda, an agent in the Prudential Insurance Co.'s Palatine district agency, 800 E. Northwest Highway, recently observed his 20th anniversary of service.

According to manager Leo M. Ruefer Jr., Shadel began his Prudential career in the Evanston District. He was transferred to the Palatine office in 1957.

A native of South Bend, he was graduated from LaPorte High School in 1934 and from Indiana University in 1939.

During World War II, Shadel served in the Army Air Force. He participated in 32 missions in the Pacific Theatre as a navigator and was awarded five battle stars.

After his return to civilian life in 1946, he owned and managed a men's clothing store.

Rainer marks 25 years with Centel

Louis S. Rainer recently completed 25 years of service with Central Telephone Co. of Illinois.

Rainer joined Central in 1949 as a combinationman. Through the years he has served in various capacities, including central office switchman and foreman. He assumed his present responsibilities as central office equipment supervisor in 1967, and since that year has worked closely with Western Electric personnel as Central's coordinator in the conversion of Park Ridge-Des Plaines area switching facilities from Step to Crossbar equipment.

He had the experience of a lifetime as a fireman, first class, on submarine duty off the coast of Japan during World War II. In terms of excitement, he and his shipmates took on enemy freighters, got rattled by close calls with depth charges, and surfaced many times in hostile waters to pick up our downed pilots.

Today, Rainer leads a somewhat more relaxed life with hobbies like fishing and golf, and is an active member of the Central Bowling league. He lives with his wife Florence, and son and daughter Thomas and Peggy, at 259 Edgewood Dr., Wheeling. The Rainers also have three married sons, and four grandchildren.

Edward Tully

Tully gets new post with Wards

Edward J. Tully has been appointed national catalog merchandise manager of the automotive, home modernization and recreation departments of Montgomery Ward. He previously was national catalog sales manager in the company's building materials department.

Tully joined the company in 1950 in the Chicago catalog house. During the ensuing years, he held numerous positions including senior merchandiser in the building materials department in the catalog house. In 1960 he was appointed administrative assistant in the national merchandise department for building materials, and in 1962 was appointed buyer of insulation and wallboard, a position he held until becoming national catalog sales manager in 1968.

A native Chicagoan, Tully attended both Wright Junior College and Loyola. He and his wife, Rosemarie, have five children and are residents of Arlington Heights.

Zenith promotes Schaumburg resident

Wayne C. Luplow of Schaumburg has been promoted to director of quality, reliability and safety engineering for Zenith Radio Corp., it was announced recently.

Formerly a section manager in the TV advanced development group of the Engineering and Research Division, Luplow will direct activities that monitor the quality and reliability of all Zenith products from an engineering and design standpoint, and accelerate the introduction of design improvements in new products.

Joining Zenith 10 years ago as a research engineer, Luplow was promoted in 1968 to group leader of circuit applications for hybrid integrated circuits, and to his most recent position in 1972. Before coming to Zenith, he was associated with RCA in Princeton, N.J.

Luplow received a B.S. degree in electrical engineering from the University of Wisconsin in 1962, and an M.S. degree in electrical engineering from the University of Pennsylvania in 1964. He is a member of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, and has contributed technical articles to its Transactions on Broadcast and Television Receivers magazine. In 1966, he was the recipient of the BTR Best Paper Award.

CCA elects Katovich a VP

Robert J. Katovich, 228 N. Dunton, Ave., Arlington Heights, has been elected a vice president of Container Corp. of America in a major realignment of executive responsibilities at the Chicago-based packaging company.

Katovich will be responsible for the operations of the company's paper stock and trucking divisions.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, Katovich joined the firm in 1946, following service in the U.S. Army during World War II. After holding a number of managerial positions in CCA's Pioneer Paper Stock Co., he became general manager in 1961. In 1967, he was advanced to the post of division general manager responsible for the paper stock and trucking divisions.

Katovich currently serves as the National Chairman of the Paper Stock Conservation Committee of the American Paper Institute, and is a past Director of the National Association of Recycling Industries.

Suburban Living

Especially for the Family

IT'S EASY TO put new life into home decors for spring and summer living. Hallways, left, are enhanced by mirrors, greenery and natural branches. Scandinavian inspired hanging lamps, right, can be used to brighten dining areas, stairways and family rooms.

Inexpensive ideas

by FRAN HECKART

Paint is the cheapest, brightest uplift for any room, according to Cassandra Blake Cohee, interior designer with Scandinavian Design in the Woodfield Mall.

"Don't be afraid of the most brilliant colors with clear intensity," she said. "If it's too much, you can always cool the color."

Even the most imaginative decors begin to look a bit drab after a long exhausting winter. It's possible, though, to revitalize and freshen interiors without a lot of expense or a complete re-do.

Accent colors, suggests Cassandra, can change the effect of a room for a more spring-like atmosphere. For example, if you have a blue and white decor with orange accents, recover a chair with a sunny floral fabric. Paint one or more walls lemony yellow to complete the inexpensive uplift.

ALTHOUGH PERSONALLY against color trends, Cassandra considers leaf green a cheery accent color. "Yellows, too, are sunny and summery," she said. "Any color except the muted, earthy tones will highlight a room."

Jerry Zientz, decorator for John M. Smyth in Arlington Heights, also feels that new color treatments will give rooms a lift.

"Apricots and bright yellows add springtime accents to a decor," she offered.

Area rugs are great for apartments where residents are often reluctant to use paint. New floor and toss pillows in gay prints also add a colorful touch.

BOXES OF fresh flowers are one way to brighten a stale kitchen according to Cassandra. This is one room, too, where the accent colors can be easily changed with new tablecloths, towels and paint.

Clear Plexiglas shelves filled with plants add a fresh look to small windows — whether in the kitchen, bath or bedroom. Used in place of more conventional window treatments, the shelves are suspended from chains. When filled with colorful floral plants the shelves lend an outdoorsy feeling to the room.

Along the same line, Cassandra feels that generally to bring the outdoors in uplifts a room. "Go out and chop down a branch and put it in a vase or spray it with lacquer for a delightful accent," she said.

It's the simple touches that often do the most. For instance, consider ordinary white ceilings. "Don't forget the ceiling when considering wall treatments," reminded Cassandra. "Paint one or more walls, then wallpaper the ceiling for a unique effect." Grass cloth, commonly used as a wall covering, can also cover the ceiling for a new, natural look.

PATIO TORCH LAMPS, flower boxes and casual, fun furniture add highlights to outdoor living areas. Cassandra suggests using inexpensive director's chairs. If you tire of them, simply change the covers.

Framed posters can also add color as wall accents. Colorful mod graphics and nature themes are some of the more popular ones. The variety of the posters is limitless — but a good looking frame is essential for a professional look.

Fabric, too, can be used as wall hangings. Some prints are specially designed for wall hangings and can be stretched over inexpensive frames designed for canvases.

"Don't overlook the bathroom either, when considering new looks," said Cassandra. She feels that bathrooms are one of the easiest, most inexpensive rooms to decorate, but often the most neglected if not completely ignored. A new set of towels will do wonders. In fact, suggests Cassandra, buy two or three sets in different colors and change them every couple of weeks. She also recommends using a clear plastic shower curtain liner and changing the outer drape to suit your mood.

"DON'T BE AFRAID of bright, bold colors in small rooms," she said. "And don't limit yourself. Creativity should be the only design limitation."

Bathroom ceilings can be fun to decorate because of their smallness. Paint it, wallpaper it or paint murals on it, advised Cassandra, but most importantly, include it in the decor.

Mobles, too, are great for bathrooms. The steam from the shower moves them along with the fan. Matching shower curtain and ceiling treatments also offer a unique effect.

"Here's one room with no limits," said Cassandra, "and you can do a complete re-do for about $30."

A DESIGNER who thinks of everything, Cassandra feels that even closets can be fun. When doing the spring cleaning, follow up with a bright coat of paint for the closet's interior.

Both designers agree that plants of all types, ferns, terrariums and fresh flowers can create a refreshing, often romantic garden-like effect. Hanging plants hold special appeal and can be used in any room. If the rooms happen to lack adequate light such as bath room areas, rotate the greenery for enjoyment in every room. Plants of all kinds and sizes can brighten decors but throw out the plastic ones. Even the most life-like ones lack character and true naturalness.

Retire the bedspread and use designer sheets for a "nice cottony uplift," said Cassandra. Take down the shades and use Levelor blinds which come in a rainbow of colors. Or go natural with bamboo-like roll-up shades.

If you have a bathroom off the bedroom, use the same sheet design for a shower curtain with colorful accent towels.

Perhaps the most important aspect for freshening interiors is to simply use imagination. A bowl of fresh fruit makes a colorful as well as nutritious accent for any family room. Other simple, inexpensive ideas include new light fixtures, a rattan or wicker umbrella holder for entryways, mirrors and using accessories found at garage sales. You may even want to paint the front door a bright lacquer color and line your walkway with flowers.

Sheets do double duty

by JOANNE SCHREIBER

Sheets are getting prettier every day. Formerly the plain-Janes of the linen closet, they are now receiving the loving attention of top designers and blossoming into the glamor leagues.

The fact is, they are too pretty now to hide under blankets and bedspreads. Consequently, sheets are getting out of bed and showing off new personalities in all sorts of guises. And well-behaved stars they are, too, with crisp no-iron finishes which defy muggy-weather droopiness, and keep their crisp through countless washer-and-dryer expeditions.

The pretty new sheets work up beautifully for slipcovers and curtains, as well as for bedspreads.

Even though the glamor sheets are more expensive than plain ones, the width of the goods makes them good budget buys in by-the-yard terms. Draperies can be made of single sheets with no seaming; the sheet is wide enough for a coverlet; valances require no piecing; even slipcovers are easier because of the width of the goods. Naturally, single white sheets may be used as drapery linings to preserve the easy-livin' no-iron quality.

NEW SHEETS are available in all sorts of motifs, from beguiling children's prints to sophisticated geometrics to campy comics to gentle florals. All have coordinated solids to use as accents, trims and linings; many have matching towels for texture contrast.

Best of all, sheets are wonderfully easy to sew. The close-woven fabric won't ravel or shift, and seam-puckering is practically impossible. If you haven't tried decorating with sheets, make this your summer for a new and rewarding sewing experience.

One of the problems bugging beginners (and old hands, too) is whether or not to preshrink materials. It's such a temptation to jump right in and cut out that crisp, new fabric — but you do run the danger of having it draw up on you after washing, and even shrink completely out of fit!

In general, you should be sure everything is pre-shrunk! If the fabric label says the material has been shrunk and is needle-ready, go ahead and cut. If it doesn't say, play safe and soak it in cool water. Then let it run through the dryer, or hang it over the shower rod.

You won't need to pre-shrink all-polyester or all-nylon or all-Dacron fabrics. And though most blends are pretty stable, it's safer to preshrink the cotton/Dacron combinations.

And don't forget about the zipper tape, the rickrack or seam binding, the trims and contrasting fabrics. If you expect to wash the garment after it's made, do take the time to preshrink everything that goes into it, so it will hold its fit and finish through many washings!

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

FLOURISHING PLANTS are an asset to any room of the home. Their natural beauty blends with any decor scheme which contributes to their versatility. Area rugs, too, are important for a complete new look over dull carpets.

Closet with no heat draws mildew

Dear Dorothy: Would you know what to do with closet walls that have become gray with mildew? The room was closed up to conserve energy, and with no ventilation and several days of rain, the walls are unbelievably discolored.

—Mrs. Mary Miller
Scrub the walls with a solution of either washing soda or trisodium phosphate (four to six tablespoons to a gallon of water). Rinse well with clear water and allow the room to dry thoroughly. If the mold has grown into the wood under paint or varnish, it may be necessary to scrub first with an abrasive cleaner. Then wash with a solution containing four to six tablespoons of trisodium phosphate and one cup of household bleach to a gallon of water. Finally, rinse the wall well with clear water. Dry thoroughly and apply a preservative before repainting.

cheese is always at hand, but a trip to the store is needed when the occasional recipe calls for grated swiss. Recently tried a new Swiss made of partially skim milk (it may interest those on diets) and it turned out to be the first Swiss my husband has gone for. It's called Jarlsberg and now I'm ready for any recipe that calls for grated swiss.

Newcomers donate to paramedics

A donation of $1000 was recently given to the Arlington Heights paramedics by Arlington Heights Newcomers Club. The money represents profits earned by the Newcomers at their Las Vegas Night Party and spring salad luncheon.

The check was presented to Captain Jack Benson and Fire Chief John Hayden at the Newcomers May business meeting by Mrs. Ted Zemper, public affairs chairman and president-elect for the 1974-75 club year. A demonstration of equipment used by the paramedics was presented at the program.

FTC claims all aspirin ARE alike

Anyone who buys a particular brand product at four to eight times the price of virtually the same product under a different name is crazy, right? No amount of advertising could persuade you to do such a thing, right?

If you buy Bayer Aspirin, Anacin, Excedrin, or any of the popular pain relievers instead of plain aspirin, you are doing just that.

And the high-powered advertising that lured you to do it is finally being challenged by the Federal Trade Commission some 10 years after clinical studies paid for by the FTC indicated that the advertising claims are not true.

The FTC last year issued complaints against Bristol-Myers (Bufferin, Excedrin, Excedrin PM); American Home Products Corp. (Anacin, Arthritis Pain Formula); and Sterling Drug (Bayer Aspirin, Bayer Children's Aspirin, Cope, Vanquish, Midol) charging that the advertising claims these companies have pounded into American TV viewers for the last decade are unsubstantiated and misleading.

All three companies have chosen to contest the action, claiming, variously, that the advertisements are based on medical fact; that the FTC has no authority to require corrective advertising; and — the most interesting line of defense — that an order to stop such advertising would infringe upon the manufacturer's (Bristol-Myers) "freedom to express its views, thoughts, opinions or position upon such subjects."

OF COURSE, Bristol-Myers does not tell you in its ads that it's simply their OPINION that Excedrin is twice as effective a pain reliever as aspirin. No, they have David Janassen telling you that "a new clinical study" has proven this.

But the FTC declared that some 20 to 30 claims made by Bristol-Myers for the pain relief capabilities of Bufferin, Excedrin and Excedrin PM are subject to "a substantial question" of validity, and that claims for the products' relief of nervous tension were totally without a

"reasonable basis."

As to the much touted special ingredients in the products, the FTC blasted the manufacturer for implying that the pain reliever is anything other than plain aspirin, and that the "anti-depressant" is other than plain caffeine.

THE OTHER TWO companies received similar chastisements for their claims, with Sterling distinguishing itself for making "mutually inconsistent representations." In other words, Sterling's Bayer Aspirin Cope, and Vanquish can't all bring "more effective relief of headache pain than any other analgesic."

Moreover, the FTC exploded the myth that Bayer Aspirin is any better than any other aspirin. Or for that matter, any different at all.

The complaint against American Home Products' Anacin and Arthritis Pain Formula is a rerun of the other two cases. It points out that what the advertiser calls "the ingredient doctors recommend most" is simply aspirin.

UNFORTUNATELY, this is all quite an old story. The FTC has known since 1962, when it financed a study of these analgesics, that the claims were false and misleading. According to one of the researchers, Dr. Thomas Dekorfeld of the University of Michigan Medical Center, the FTC tried several times to obtain injunctions, but was unsuccessful.

In the meantime, he noted, "the profit on these drugs is so high that the companies utilize every possible avenue to keep their ads before the public until the last possible moment."

The pharmaceutical drug industry grew from $4.5 billion to over $7 billion during this time.

Buyers of Anacin and Arthritis Pain Formula are contributing to American Home Products' $73 million packaged drug income. Buyers of Bristol-Myers' Bufferin and Excedrin are padding that companies' $58 million consumer product income. And buyers of Bayer Aspirin boost Sterling's net sales of medical products to a whopping $460 million.

So, the next time you visit the drug counter for a pain reliever, don't be sucked in by the advertising claims. Instead, compare prices:

Product	No. tabs.	Price
Bayer Aspirin	100	$1.17
Vanquish	60	1.17
Cope	60	1.39
Midol	60	1.79
Anacin	100	1.79
Bufferin	100	1.75
Excedrin	100	1.77
Excedrin PM	80	2.25
Arthritis Pain Form.	100	2.39
Supreme aspirin	100	.29
Norwich aspirin	500	1.69
Osco	100	.45

Bayer Aspirin and Vanquish are priced over four times as much as the cheapest aspirin surveyed (Supreme—29 cents per 100), while Cope is five times as much; Anacin, Bufferin and Excedrin are six times as much; and Excedrin PM and Arthritis Pain Formula are eight times as much.

Bride, groom write vows

Janet A. Hayes and Clarence Costello wrote their own vows for their May 18 wedding ceremony. Included in the ceremony was a bible verse read by the groom's brother, Joseph, who also served as best man.

Janet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Hayes, 3731 N. Kennicott Ave., Arlington Heights, and Bud, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alban C. Valius, Palos Heights, met when Janet was a stewardess with Air Illinois, Carbondale. The groom is a captain with Air Illinois.

A '71 graduate of Wheeling High School, Janet is now a senior in special education at Southern Illinois University. Bud studied two years at Southeast Junior College, Chicago.

THEIR NOON TIME double ring wedding was held in the Christian Church of Arlington Heights with Janet wearing a silk organza and re-embroidered organza gown with high neckline and ruffled yoke edged in lace and yellow ribbon trim. The sleeves were also edged in lace and ribbon as was the ruffle border of the hem and chapel train.

She wore a garden hat with veil and carried white and yellow Sweetheart roses, stephanotis and baby's breath. She also carried the hanky carried by her mother at her wedding.

Lin McAlley of Harvey, college roommate of the bride, was maid of honor wearing a mint green knit gown with high-waisted sash. She carried a nosegay of mint green carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids Pat Hayes, sister of the bride, and Diane Heinzel, Carbondale, were in peach gowns identical to the maid of honor's and they carried peach-tinged carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

Ushers were the groom's brothers, James of Calumet City and Gerald of Darien, Ill., and Eugene Bulety, Beecher, Ill.

A reception for 80 guests was held at the Plum Grove Club, Palatine, after which the newlyweds honeymooned four days in Memphis, Tenn. They are now at home in Carbondale.

Couples start Quester club

The Questers organization in the north-west suburbs is no longer for "women only." It now included the men who are also antique buffs.

A new chapter has been formed for couples in the area, and its name is the Barn Raisers.

The first organizational meeting was held recently in Hoffman Estates at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Rapp.

THE FIRST OFFICIAL meeting is scheduled for Friday at 8 p.m. at the Klaus Neukirch home in Arlington Heights. Mr. Neukirch will give the program, entitled "Porch Talk or What Is It."

Officers of the chapter are Dale E. Rapp, president; Marian B. Gebhardt, vice president; Caroline A. Rapp, secretary; and Fran Neukirch, treasurer.

MT. PROSPECT NEWCOMERS

The June meeting of Mount Prospect Newcomers Club will be an Italian dinner featuring a buffet of the ethnic cuisine at Corrado's Restaurant, Arlington Heights.

The club will go to dinner there next Wednesday, beginning with cocktails at 6:30.

Tickets, at $5.75, should be made by Friday with Mrs. James McCrocy, 439-3991, or Mrs. David Norby, 392-6645.

HOLY ROSARY AUXILIARY

Officers of Holy Rosary Auxiliary, Knights of Columbus Council 4483, Arlington Heights, were installed at a recent dinner at the Brasserie Restaurant. William Reinert, grand knight of the council, welcomed Joan Reinert of Mount Prospect as president, along with her new board of officers.

A gift was presented to Pat Anderson, retiring president. Plans were also made for the Auxiliary to prepare dinner for the council's golf day which was held Sunday.

Do heed cautions when toasting in the hot sun

You've heard the warning: Don't try to be the toastiest tan of all the first day you go for your place in the sun.

Do you heed the caution? You should — to avoid sun poisoning, painful sunburn or even more severe burning from a combination of sun and wind.

Medical authorities suggest you begin the first day with about 15 to 20 minutes of exposure — especially if it is between the hours of 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., when the sun is hottest.

Too much exposure to the sun also may cause sunstroke or heat prostration. Anyone can be affected but older persons, persons with high blood pressure, and chronic drinkers are most likely to be affected, according to an American Medical Association book on recreation and relaxation.

The advice includes:

"Usually sunstroke or heat prostration can be prevented by wearing head coverings in hot sun, avoiding strenuous exercise on hot days, wearing light, loose clothing and avoiding too much to eat or drink. Take sufficient liquids and salt foods freely."

Grow your own strawberry plants

If you've started your garden, I hope you've included some strawberry plants in the scheme. How can you resist the lure of strawberry pie, jam, syrup and your own home-grown strawberry wine?

One of my favorite strawberry wine recipes is in the W. F. Allen Company catalog (Sallsbury, Maryland 21801) "Book of Berries." The Allen people call it "Merry Berries." (You can make 200 gallons of wine each year, tax free, for your own personal use, write for Form 1541 to Alcohol Tax Unit, Internal Revenue Service, U.S. Treasury Dept., Washington, D.C.)

MERRY BERRIES

8 quarts strawberries
6 to 8 pounds of sugar
2 lemons
2 gallons water
½ pound raisins
¾ oz. yeast (3 pkgs)

WASH THE BERRIES under cold water, put them into a crock. Mash them thoroughly with a wooden spoon. Add the water and let stand for three days, mashing and stirring the berries at least three times a day. Strain the liquid through a kitchen towel, squeezing the juice out — every drop. Add the sugar, six to 8 pounds, depending on how sweet you want the wine to be, and dissolve it thoroughly. Add the cut-up raisins and the thin rinds of the lemons. Heat half of the liquid and return it to the cold, so that the whole becomes lukewarm. Dissolve the yeast in ½ cup water (warm) and put that in. Cover and let it ferment. When the fermentation is ended, strain the wine into gallon jars and let it rest for two weeks until clear. Then siphon into bottles.

NEW STRAWBERRY plants set out this season will bear the best crop in May or June of next year. If you want berries this year, buy Everbearing varieties (like Ozark Beauty or Gem-Superfection) and you'll get berries in late summer or fall. Possible frost damage during blossom time can be prevented by setting a sprinkler in the berry patch and allowing a small BUT CONTINUOUS flow of water over the foliage. This water mulch idea, used also by commercial cranberry growers and other fruit producers and vegetable growers, will protect the blossoms even if the temperature dips as low as 25 degrees.

Strawberry roots grow very slowly and fertilizer applied to each side of the row does not become available to the plant until long after it has been applied. (Don't hoe to apply fertilizer or control weeds within an inch of the plant, as strawberries are shallow rooted). If you want to stimulate plant growth, apply plant food over the top of the plant one to three weeks after planting and BRUSH OFF IMMEDIATELY. Application of too much cow dung in the ground will create too much foliage and not enough berries. The maximum amount of manure you should use is two bushels per 100 square feet.

THE FIRST NEW runners that emerge should be trained out like spokes from a wheel, and rooted until a row two feet wide is established. Five or six plants per square foot is plenty. Later formed plants should be pulled out.

Here are two more recipes for your eating pleasure:

STRAWBERRY PANCAKE SYRUP

4 cups strawberries and 1 cup water. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and cook 10 minutes exactly, no more, no less. Strain through cheese cloth. Add 1 cup sugar to each cup juice. Cook over low heat, stirring until all sugar is dissolved and until syrup comes to a boil. Allow to boil two minutes, no more. Skim off froth, pour hot syrup into hot jars and seal, waiting for opportunity to use on hot, buttered flapjacks.

And if you want to have a jam session, here's the simplest type of jam to make — freezer jam.

FREEZER STRAWBERRY-ORANGE JAM

1½ cups prepared berries (about 1½ pt.)
1 medium orange
4 cups sugar

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ bottle Certo fruit pectin
¼ teaspoon orange rind,
grated

Prepare fruit: crush fully ripe berries; measure 1½ cups into large bowl. Grate rind. Add ¼ teaspoons of rind to berries. Section and chop orange, removing membrane and seeds; measure ¼ cup into bowl. Mix sugar into fruit. Mix lemon juice and pectin; stir into fruit. Continue stirring about three minutes. Ladle into jars, leaving about ¼ inch space at top. Cover at once with tight lids. When jam is set (it may take up to 24 hours) store in freezer. Makes 5 jelly glasses.

And if you drop by the special program I am giving June 10 at 8 p.m. in Frontier Park, Arlington Heights, I'll give you all kinds of special tips on growing not only strawberries, but tomatoes, cucumbers, carrots, and other luscious garden goodies.

Elk Grover takes district office in VFW auxiliary

Mrs. Lillian Mayer of Elk Grove Village was installed as senior vice president of 4th District, VFW Auxiliary, at a dance Saturday evening at the local Veterans Club.

The Elk Grove VFW Post and Auxiliary hosted the event for the district posts and auxiliaries.

Mrs. Mayer, who has held four other offices in the district and was on the State of Illinois Color Guard team, is also a member of the national convention committee making plans for the gathering in Chicago in August.

Mrs. Florence Rooney of Brookfield was named district president; Mrs. Margaret Spevacek, Central Leyden, is junior vice president.

Joseph Corona
Certified Hearing Aid Technologist

Do Not Rent! Do Not Buy! Any Hearing Aid!

Do you want to hear better? Do you want to be sure and not risk one cent? If you will let us test and evaluate your hearing free and we decide you can be helped by these tests, then here's what we will do. We will order what you need "custom fitted." We will let you wear this for one week. You do not pay one cent. You do not sign anything. We will ask your name and address. THAT'S ALL! Then you decide. Fair enough? Call today for your free appointment. You will be glad you did! (This offer may be withdrawn at any time.)

MONEY-BACK OR EXCHANGE

We guarantee any audio or electronic equipment we sell can't be bought anywhere else for less, or return it within 30 days and we'll return your money, or give you the difference in price. As for the Lafayette brand, we guarantee you can't buy comparable equipment anywhere else for less, regardless of the name. Or return it within 30 days and we'll return your money. You can exchange anything you buy at Lafayette within 60 days for any reason, for an item of equal or higher price simply by paying the difference if any. All items must be in original carton, like-new condition, with your receipt.

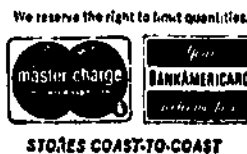

The Lafayette Guarantee

HI-FI-SPEAKER GUARANTEE

We guarantee any Lafayette amplifier, tuner and receiver for two years, and any Criterion speaker for five years, to be free of defects in material and workmanship. We will repair, or replace, your unit without charge, for labor or material. Unit must not be abused; sales receipt required.

RAIN CHECK GUARANTEE

Advertised items will be available at the advertised price during the sale period. If an item sells out, we'll get it for you for the advertised price ("limited quantity" items excepted).

USE HERALD CLASSIFIEDS

There's more than one way to serve Lasagna!

Sunny Italy, with its gregarious people, luxuriant gardens, orchards and vineyards and the wealth of fish from its surrounding waters, has inspired a robust cuisine. Lasagna, perhaps better than any other Italian dish, reflects their love of distinctly flavored, brightly colored, lusty foods.

Lasagna is a meal in a dish, packed with good nutrition. Many hearty lasagna recipes have foods from all of the Basic Four Food Groups . . . fresh meats, cheeses, noodles and vegetable sauces, plus more! There's sure to be a lasagna to suit every family's budget and taste.

Balance your meal with buttered crusty Italian bread and crisp salad greens of contrasting iceberg, red leaf and bibb lettuce with piquant Italian dressing. Or, splurge with an antipasto tray, that popular Italian appetizer smorgasbord. Fresh fruit or Spumoni ice cream complete the Italian dinner.

CHEESY CORNED BEEF LASAGNA

With apologies to our Italian friends, here's Uncle Sam's version of that all-Italian favorite! All Basic Four Food Groups are represented. Corned beef from the Meat Group supplies essential protein. Thiamine, riboflavin and other vitamins and minerals from the Bread-Cereal Group are in the noodles. Sharp cheddar cheese supplies necessary calcium from the Milk Group. The vacuum-pack golden whole kernel corn, golden cream-style corn, onion, green pepper and black olives all add valuable vitamins and minerals from the Vegetable-Fruit Group.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 9 to 12 lasagna noodles | One 2½-oz. jar sliced mushrooms, drained |
| 9 ounces corned beef slices, coarsely cut up | ½ cup chopped onion |
| One 17-oz. can cream-style corn | ½ cup coarsely chopped black olives |
| One 7-oz. can whole kernel corn, drained | ½ cup chopped green pepper |
| One 10¼-oz. can condensed cream of chicken soup | ½ teaspoon pepper |
| | 2½ cups shredded sharp process American cheese |

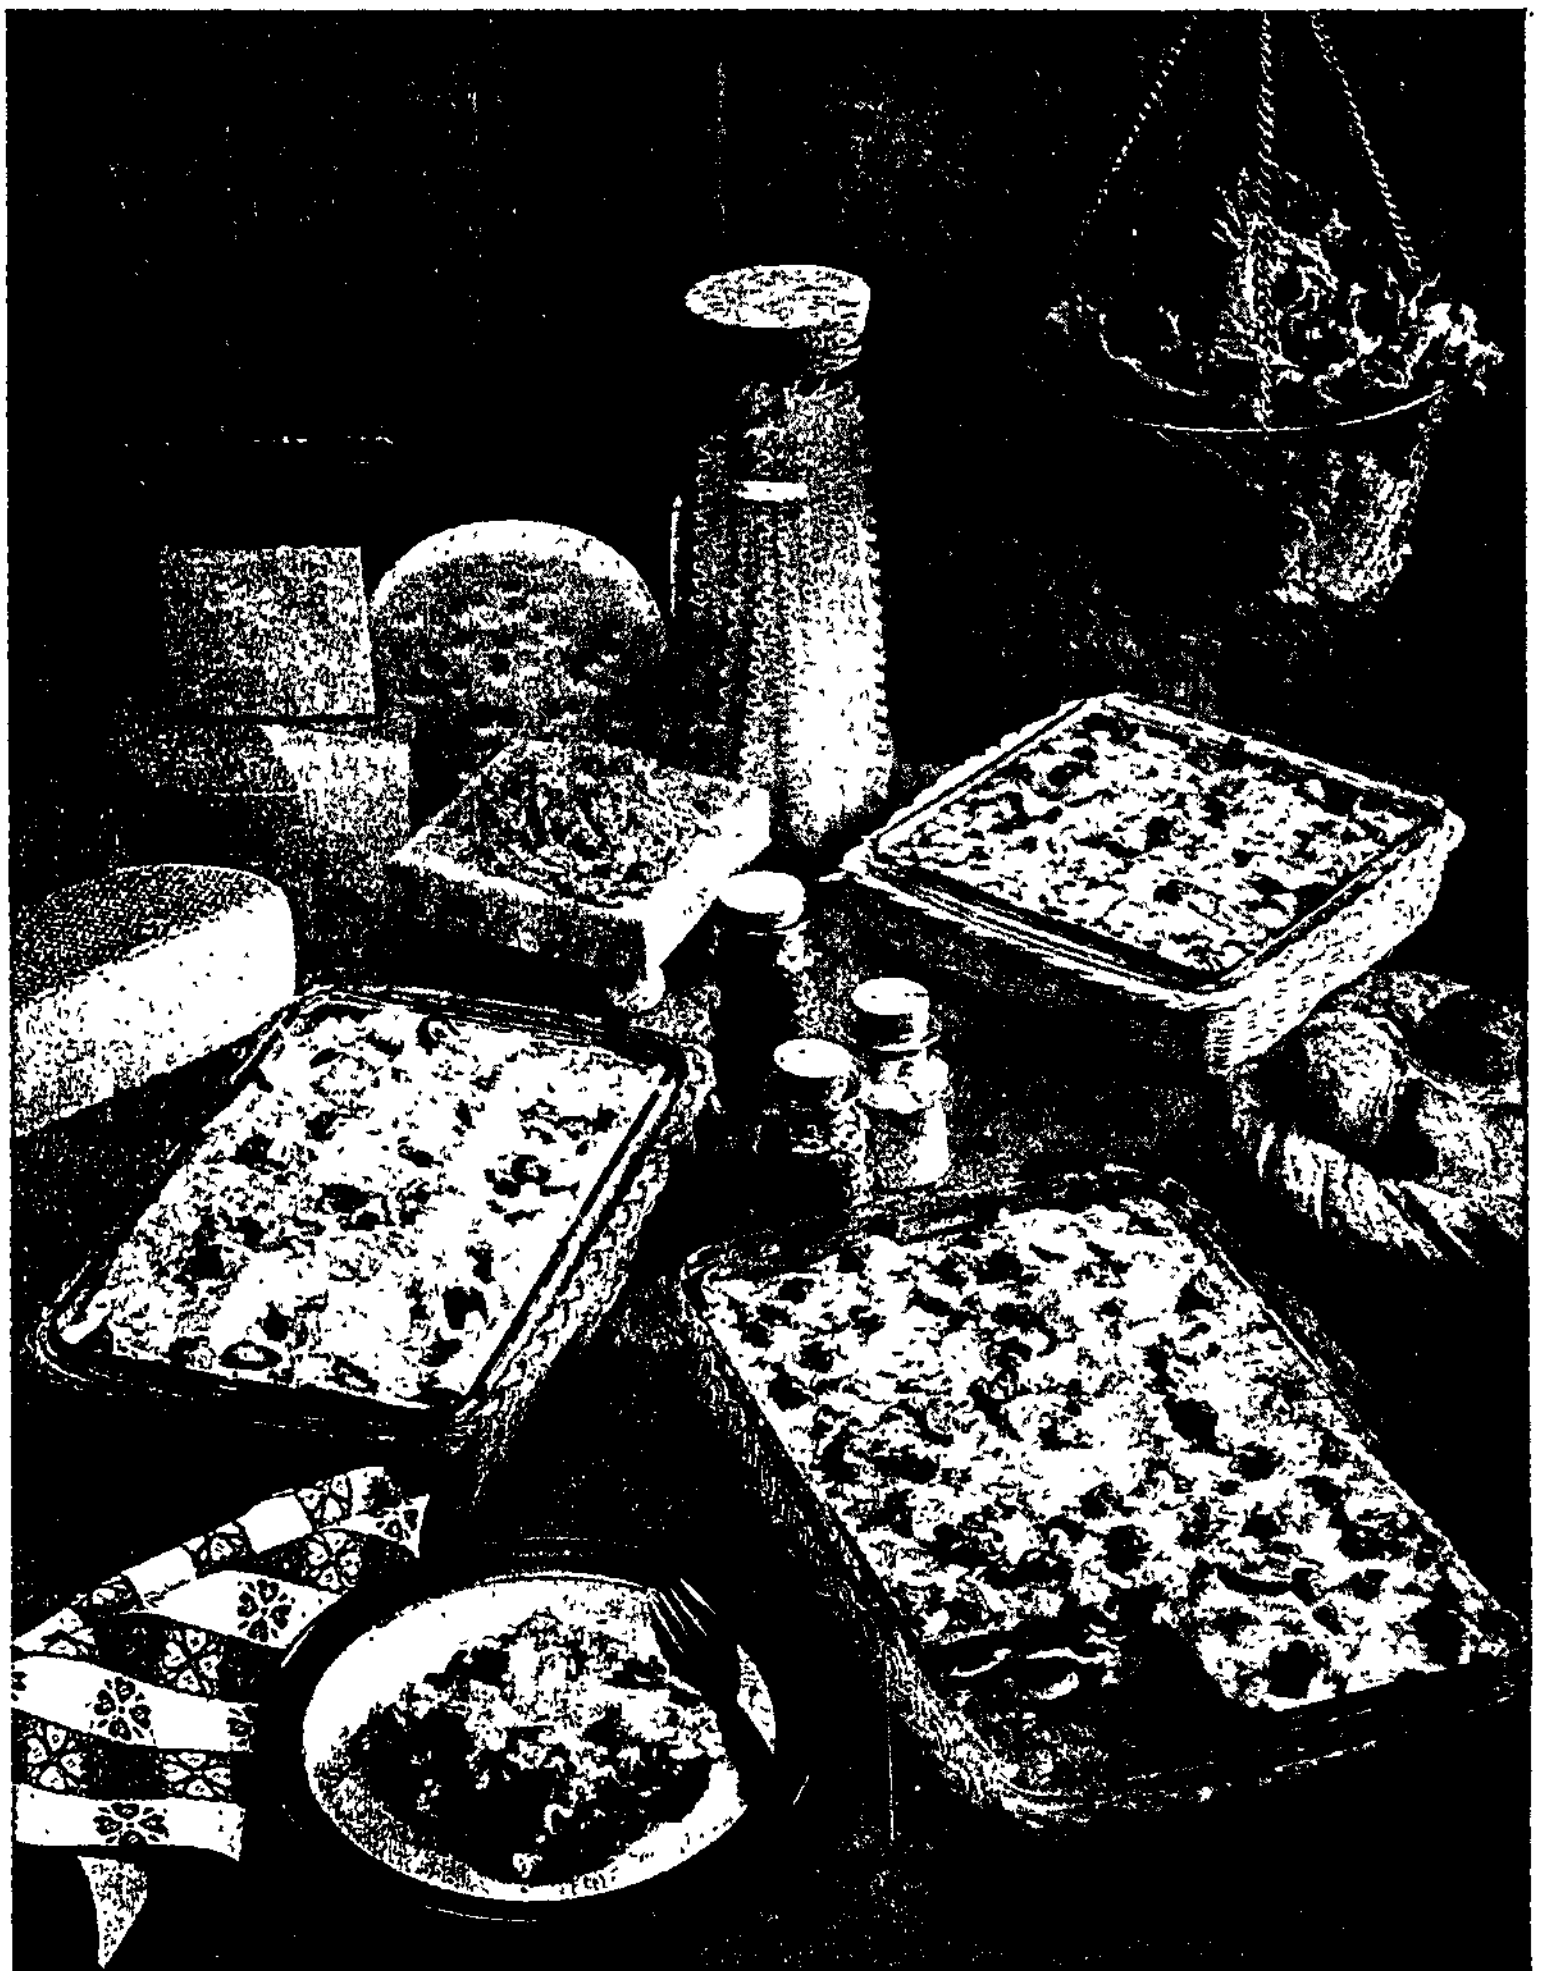

Cook noodles according to package directions; rinse and drain. Combine corned beef, corn, soup, mushrooms, onion, olives, green pepper and pepper in a large bowl. Cover the bottom of an 11x7-inch baking pan with a layer of noodles; top with ½ of the corned beef mixture and sprinkle with cheese. Repeat the noodle, corned beef mixture and cheese layers twice, ending with cheese. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 25 minutes. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes before cutting. Serves 4 to 6.

TANGY TUNA LASAGNA

Pasta and fish are Italy's two staples. Nutritious lasagna noodles and protein-rich, economical tuna are enlivened with sliced mushrooms and bathed in a rich tomatoey-cheese sauce in Tangy Tuna Lasagna.

- | | |
|---|---|
| 9 to 12 lasagna noodles | ½ teaspoon salt |
| Two 2½-oz. jars or One 4½-oz. jar sliced mushrooms, drained | ½ teaspoon sugar |
| ½ cup chopped green pepper | Dash crushed red pepper |
| ½ cup chopped onion | Two 7-oz. cans tuna, drained and flaked |
| 3 tablespoons butter or margarine | 2 cups shredded Mozzarella cheese |
| One 8-oz. can tomato sauce | Grated Parmesan cheese |
| One 8-oz. can tomato paste | Chopped parsley |
| 1 cup water | |
| 1 teaspoon oregano, crushed | |

Cook noodles according to package directions; rinse and drain. Sauté mushrooms, green pepper and onion in butter until tender. Add tomato sauce, tomato paste and water; stir until smooth. Stir in seasonings. Simmer 15 minutes. Stir in tuna. Cover the bottom of a 9-inch-square pan with a layer of noodles. Top with ½ of the tuna-tomato sauce and sprinkle with Mozzarella and Parmesan cheese. Repeat the noodle, sauce and cheese layers twice, ending with the cheese. Sprinkle lightly with chopped parsley. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes before cutting. Serves 4 to 6.

FAVORITE FLORENTINE LASAGNA

To Italians, a recipe identified as Florentine is simply one prepared in the special manner in which a Florence cook might make the dish. To everyone else, however, "Florentine" refers to a recipe in which spinach gives an extra touch. The Italians have a wonderful way with spinach and this Favorite Florentine Lasagna boasts frozen cut leaf spinach in butter sauce that clings.

- | | |
|--|----------------------------------|
| One 10-oz. package frozen cut leaf spinach | ¾ teaspoon oregano, crushed |
| 8 to 10 lasagna noodles | ¾ teaspoon basil, crushed |
| 1 pound ground beef | ½ teaspoon salt |
| ½ cup chopped onion | ½ teaspoon sugar |
| ¼ teaspoon garlic salt | ½ teaspoon crushed red pepper |
| One 8-oz. can tomato sauce | Dash pepper |
| One 8-oz. can tomato paste | 1 egg |
| 1 cup water | ¾ cup small curd cottage cheese |
| One 2½-oz. jar sliced mushrooms | ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese |
| 1 teaspoon garlic salt | ½ cup shredded Mozzarella cheese |
| | 1 cup shredded Mozzarella cheese |

Cook spinach according to package directions only until thawed. Cook noodles according to package directions; rinse and drain. In large skillet, brown ground beef with onion and garlic salt; drain off fat. Reduce heat and add tomato sauce, tomato paste and water; stir until smooth. Add mushrooms and their liquid. Stir in seasonings. Simmer 20 minutes. In small bowl, combine spinach, egg, cottage cheese, Parmesan cheese and ½ cup Mozzarella cheese. Pour ½ of the meat sauce into a 9x13-inch pan. Cover with a layer of noodles. Spread spinach-cottage cheese mixture over noodles. Top with another layer of noodles followed by the remaining meat sauce. Sprinkle with Mozzarella cheese. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes before cutting. Serves 6 to 8.

SAUCY LASAGNA

Saucy Lasagna is everything a truly authentic dish should be, layers of noodles bubbling over with zesty tomato sauce, chunks of ground beef, tawny brown mushroom steak sauce and sliced mushrooms for rich flavor appeal . . . plus Mozzarella and cottage cheese.

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|--|
| 9 to 12 lasagna noodles | 1 teaspoon sugar |
| 1 pound ground beef | ½ teaspoon salt |
| ½ cup chopped onion | ½ teaspoon crushed red pepper |
| One 8-oz. can tomato sauce | Dash pepper |
| One 6-oz. can tomato paste | 1 egg |
| One 5¼-oz. can mushroom steak sauce | ¾ cup small curd cottage cheese |
| 1 cup water | ½ cup shredded Mozzarella cheese |
| One 2½-oz. jar sliced mushrooms | One 8-oz. package sliced Mozzarella cheese |
| 1 teaspoon oregano, crushed | Grated Parmesan cheese |
| 1 teaspoon basil, crushed | |
| 1 teaspoon garlic salt | |

Cook noodles according to package directions; rinse and drain. In large skillet, brown ground beef and onion; drain off fat. Reduce heat and add tomato sauce, tomato paste, mushroom steak sauce and water; stir until smooth. Add mushrooms and their liquid. Stir in seasonings and simmer 15 minutes. In a small bowl, combine egg, cottage cheese and shredded Mozzarella. Cover the bottom of an 11x7-inch pan with a layer of noodles. Top with ½ of the meat sauce followed by ½ of the cheese slices. Cover with another layer of noodles. ½ of the meat sauce and all of the cottage cheese mixture. Top with another layer of noodles, the remaining meat sauce and cheese slices. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake in a preheated 350, degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes before cutting. Serves 4 to 6.

VIVA ANTIPASTO

A colorful tasty antipasto tray is a must for any Italian meal. Meaning "before the meal," the many items on your antipasto tray along with crisp bread-sticks will whet everyone's appetite for a feast of robust lasagna.

Forget the rules . . . favor your imagination when you assemble an antipasto tray. Mound a large platter with several of the following and be sure to include Zesty Asparagus and Mushrooms Gourmet.

- | | | |
|------------------------|-----------------------|------------------|
| ripe or stuffed olives | Mozzarella strips | radish roses |
| anchovies | scallions | celery hearts |
| artichoke hearts | whole figs | pepperoni slices |
| pepperoni strips | rolled prosciutto ham | hard-cooked eggs |
| | cherry tomatoes | |

Black Sam's chicken recipe lives on as family favorite

Years ago my favorite place for fried chicken was called Black Sam's located in a little coal mining town of Zoligler, Ill. When anyone asked the proprietor for white meat, Sam's inevitable reply was "All my chicken is white meat." And it was.

Sam's secret was that after meticulously cleaning the chicken he soaked it in icy cold water with salt and white wine and the product was as fine as one could desire. Unfortunately, Black Sam's is no more, but I still use this method. This time I was doing an outdoor barbecue for 16.

Purchase 8 chickens of uniform size, about 2½ pounds each and split them down the middle, reserving giblets and necks for other use. After thorough cleaning, put them down in cold water with a tablespoon of salt and a cup of dry white wine.

While the chickens are soaking, prepare the fire and the baste. For large groups I use a barrel cooker and lay a charcoal fire which is allowed to burn down well. In a bucket soak two large pieces of apple wood (or other fruit wood).

For the baste, melt 1 pound of margarine, then stir in 1 cup lemon juice and 1 cup dry white wine, 1 teaspoon Hungarian paprika, and ¼ teaspoon powdered thyme. A long-handled brush is good for basting.

When ready to cook, drain and pat dry chicken halves and salt and pepper both sides. Put moistened apple wood at each end of the fire box to generate smoke and quell any flareups with water.

START CHICKEN with the cut side down and baste skin side immediately. Cook for 15 minutes. Turn and baste. From this point on, turn chickens every 10 minutes, basting each time. Use smooth tongs for turning to avoid breaking skin which helps keep in juices.

If the fire is right, perfect cooking time will be 1 hour and 15 minutes. Chicken will be beautifully browned and done. If necessary, you can hold on a rack in a roasting pan, but they're at their best coming right from the grill onto a plate.

The rest of the menu was hot German potato salad, cole slaw, raw summer vegetables on a relish tray, and garlic bread.

Do you have a favorite barbecue recipe or a question about food? Write Chuck Flynn, care of Padlock Publications, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. For personal reply, please enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Budget steak is still possible

Americans are addicted to beef and everyone, except strict vegetarians, likes to have an occasional steak. This is possible without strapping the budget. Merely buy the less expensive, less tender cuts of beef and marinate them. Select cuts that have the least amount of fat to trim off and no bone. Such cuts means more edible beef per portion with little waste.

BUDGET STEAK

1½ pounds (1½-inch thick) boneless beef round or chuck steak

1½ teaspoons unseasoned meat tenderizer

½ cup freshly squeezed orange juice

1 cup soy sauce

2 teaspoons instant minced onion

Freshly ground pepper, as desired

Sprinkle both sides of meat with tenderizer. Place steak in close fitting dish such as 1½ quart (10x6x4-inch glass baking dish). Mix orange juice, soy sauce, minced onion and pepper; pour over steak. Cover dish and place in refrigerator to marinate at least 8 hours but not longer than 2 days. Remove from refrigerator in advance of cooking to allow steak to come to room temperature. Remove steak from marinade and place on rack in shallow roaster or broil pan. Place in preheated broiler about 4 inches from heat and broil 8- to 9 minutes on each side for rare; slightly longer for medium. Carve thin slices, cutting on the diagonal. Makes 4 servings.

Vegetable cookery

Fresh vegetables, especially the ones you can enjoy raw, are great for reducing diets. But the kind of reducing we are talking about concerns the best way to cook vegetables to preserve their nutrients. The three R's to learn are: reduce the amount of cooking water; reduce the length of cooking time; and reduce the amount of exposed surface area.

To prepare vegetables for cooking, remove damaged leaves or inedible material. However, keep it to a minimum. When preparing a dark green leafy vegetable for cooking, the outer leaves, if good, should be used because they contain more vitamin A than the pale inner leaves. The stems and ribs of such a vegetable are less palatable and have less nutrients than the leaf blade, so don't feel guilty discarding them.

Try to estimate as closely as possible the amount of cooked vegetable you will need so you won't have any leftovers. Cooked vegetables lose valuable ascorbic acid (vitamin C) the longer they are kept. After a day in the refrigerator, they have about 75 per cent as much ascorbic acid as when freshly cooked; after two days, about 60 per cent. Reheated vegetables have only 31 per cent to 50 per cent as much ascorbic acid as when you first served them.

To cook vegetables properly and save a lot of their good taste, crisp texture, vitamins and minerals, the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association suggests you follow these basic cooking principles:

- Use as little water as possible
- Bring to a boil rapidly
- Lower the heat to keep vegetables simmering
- Cover the pot
- Cook only until tender, not mushy

Outdoor cooking tips

Briquets stacked in a pyramid light faster because the shape allows good air circulation.

Generally speaking, 20 to 40 minutes are needed for lighted charcoal to reach the proper stage for cooking.

Never use gasoline to start a charcoal fire.

A side of beef is half a carcass split lengthwise from front to back, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

A forequarter of beef is the front half of a side of beef. A forequarter contains rib cuts. It has more usable lean meat and generally is cheaper per pound than the hindquarter.

Vets. Big in nutrition. Small in price.

We say it right on the label, "NUTRITION RICH."

We're able to say it because Vets canned and dry dog food provides complete and balanced nutrition for the maintenance of adult dogs. In fact, Vets meets or exceeds the nutritional requirements established by the National Research Council.

Yet, Vets costs less than almost all the dog foods on your supermarket shelf.

Try Vets. You'll find it does a lot for your dog. And your budget.

TACOS OLE
(great for summer parties)
8 servings

• 2 lbs. ground chuck • 2 onions, chopped
• 8 oz. tomato sauce • 2 T. tomato paste
• 2 green chiles, chopped • 1/4 t. oregano
• 2 t. salt or Lawry's • 2 cloves garlic, minced
• 2 T. Mexican chili powder • dash of hot salsa

Brown meat, drain fat. Add all ingredients, cook 10 minutes, stirring often. Use taco shells or make your own from tortillas. Fill with your choice—shredded lettuce, grated cheddar cheese, tomatoes, onions, green pepper, cucumbers, avocado, hard boiled egg or chopped, sliced olives. Garnishes are colorful served in separate dishes. A great accompaniment is canned jalapeños, refritos (refried beans). For a sauce, use either green taco sauce or salsa.

Serve with cold Yago Sani Gria or Mexican beer. Olat.

COUNTRYSIDE MALL) PALATINE N.W. Hwy. & 1216 Baldwin Rd.

STORE HOURS: Mon. thru Fri. 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. • Sat. 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. • Sun. 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Ground beef, down 10 cents, and frozen ocean perch fillets accounted for the largest average decreases of foods surveyed on Friday. Pork chops were up 12 cents from a week ago.

Margarine and eggs showed increases of six and two cents, respectively. Other dairy prices remained near stable.

A nine-cent increase was recorded for iceberg lettuce. With the exception of orange juice, up three cents, other fruit and vegetables prices remained the same.

Spaghetti rose six cents from a week ago.

Recorded food prices are based on averages obtained from four area stores each week.

USDA reports turkey, eggs currently good protein buys

With the largest birds selling for as low as 40 cents a pound, turkey is currently one of the best high quality protein buys.

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) marketing specialists report record large quantities for this month. New-crop turkeys will be marketed in 10 per cent greater volume than June of last year, according to USDA.

Big turkeys are generally the best buy. You can serve a family or five or six people several different meals from a large turkey. Serve sliced turkey with dressing, gravy and all the trimmings. Then try a turkey casserole followed with a hearty turkey chowder, or a salad for still another meal.

If your family tires of turkey quickly, have the butcher split the bird in half. Cook one half now and freeze the rest for another time.

EGGS HAVE also been cited by USDA as another good seasonal buy. Plentiful supplies have brought prices down as much as 30 cents a dozen from early March.

Egg prices will vary by size for the same grade. Generally speaking, if there is less than a seven-cent price spread per dozen eggs between one size and the next smaller size in the same grade, you will get more for your money by buying the largest size.

When considering cost, remember that one dozen large eggs represents 1 1/2 pounds in the shell. If the large eggs are selling for 60 cents per dozen, that's the equivalent of 40 cents per pound — and very reasonable for a pound of protein-rich food. At this price, a serving of two large eggs (weighing 1/4 pound) would cost only 10 cents.

Buy only fresh, clean, sound-shelled eggs. Cracked or dirty eggs may contain

by Fran Heckart

bacteria that might cause food poisoning. If, by chance you find either cracked or dirty eggs in a carton, they will be safe if used in thoroughly cooked dishes.

Be sure to purchase eggs from a refrigerated display case and refrigerate them promptly at home large end up to help maintain quality. Shell eggs kept at temperatures between 70 and 80 degrees will lose more quality in one day than in one week under refrigeration. At refrigerator temperatures, shell eggs will maintain quality for several weeks.

Generally, area retail prices for pork products are lower than a month ago. Bacon, smoked shoulders, hams and pork chops are currently available at reasonable prices.

Mrs. Dan O'Brien

She relies on easy one-dish meals

by LOIS SEILER

While handiwork is her first love, Mrs. Dan O'Brien, a part-owner of a yarn shop in Mount Prospect, also enjoys cooking. On her days off she concentrates on concocting interesting meals for her family or guests.

Because of her business interests and the many needlework projects she has going at all times, Judy O'Brien is partial to one-dish meals but insists on quality and flavor. One of her favorites is Beef and Dumplings, made with round steak or sirloin. Judy prefers the latter, but in either case the meat needs to be browned first. It is baked in a mixture of cream of chicken soup, onion soup, mushrooms and onions. When the meat is done, peas and green pepper rings are added and dumplings are dropped on top.

"This makes the best gravy imaginable," Judy said. "The meat is tender, the dumplings light and tasty, and the whole meal is in one dish and easy to serve." She also recommends it for company as there is no watching or stirring and she can enjoy her guests. A green salad and hot rolls are ample accompaniments.

If preparing this meal for company, Judy is likely to serve a crabmeat dip and tiny meat balls with cocktails.

EXPENSIVE BUT elegant, the dip consists of crabmeat mixed with cream cheese, mayonnaise and seasonings. Chili sauce and bits of green onion add color and flavor. It is particularly good on cocktail rye, or may be served with crackers.

Her meat balls are simmered in a savory sauce which gives them an appealing flavor. They are served from a chafing dish and speared with toothpicks.

For dessert this cook recommends a recipe which she enjoyed all through her childhood and that is now a favorite of her own children, Kathy, 18, Patty 17, Susie, 15, and David 6.

Called Louisiana Dark Cherry Cake, it is very rich and moist, well-flavored with chocolate, walnuts and maraschino cherries. Judy frosts it with a chocolate butter cream icing, or it may be served plain with a dab of whipped cream.

CRABMEAT DIP

- 1 8-ounce package cream cheese
- 1 7½-ounce can crabmeat, flaked
- 1½ teaspoons mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons chili sauce
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Fresh mushrooms for any occasion

There is an Irish saying that advises one never to pick a mushroom that a leprechaun is using for an umbrella. You need not concern yourself with having to face this dilemma, however, since the vegetable is generally available in markets all year round.

The French, who perhaps have always known their way around a kitchen better than anybody, were the first to record the cultivation of mushrooms. It was during the reign of Louis XIV (1638-1715), when the art of French cuisine was developing and mushrooms were much in demand.

Mushrooms are elegant, a patrician delight for parties or everyday meals. They give a lift to plain foods, adding succulent flavor to gravies, soups, sauces, and many casserole dishes. Try them sliced raw in salads — particularly fresh spinach salad. Sliced and sautéed a few minutes in butter or margarine, they're magnificent with steak. They'll really dress up an omelet if it's one of those low-budget days! How about making your own fresh mushroom soup? Don't overcook mushrooms; excessive cooking toughens this low calorie delicacy.

Look for mushrooms that are clean, fresh in appearance, white to creamy white, and free from open caps, pitting, discoloration, wilting or other injury. Keep them cold and humid and use as soon as possible.

- ½ teaspoon lemon juice
- 3 whole green onions, minced
- Cream cheese until light and fluffy. Blend in remaining ingredients and chill. Serve with cocktail rye or crackers. Serves 12 for cocktails.

COCKTAIL MEAT BALLS

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 egg
- ¼ cup bread crumbs or cracker meal
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 bottle Bennett's Chili Sauce
- 1 bottle water
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Mix meat, egg, bread crumbs and seasonings in a bowl. Blend thoroughly. Form into tiny meat balls.

Put remaining ingredients into a saucepan and heat to boiling. Lower heat and drop meat balls into sauce. Cover and simmer for one hour.

Serve from a chafing dish with just enough sauce to half-cover meat balls. Spear with toothpicks.

BEEF AND DUMPLINGS

- 2 pounds round steak or sirloin steak, cut into one-inch cubes
- 2 medium onions, sliced
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- 1 can onion soup
- 1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms, or fresh mushrooms
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/3 cup flour
- 1 10-ounce package frozen peas, thawed
- 1 large green pepper, cut into rings

If fresh mushrooms are used, sauté them in a little butter in a large skillet.

To this add the two cans soup, Worcestershire and flour. Blend in skillet, stirring and mixing for a few minutes. Don't worry about lumps, they will disappear during baking. If canned mushrooms are used, all ingredients may be mixed in a bowl.

Place raw meat in a 9 by 13-inch casserole or small roasting pan. Lay raw onion slices on top and add bay leaf. Pour soup mixture over meat and onions. Cover tightly and bake at 350 degrees until meat is tender, about 1½ hours for sirloin or 2 hours for round steak.

Remove from oven and set temperature to 400 degrees. Remove bay leaf from casserole. Sprinkle thawed peas on top. Place green pepper rings in center. Make the following dumpling mixture:

- 1 egg
- 1/3 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- ¼ teaspoon sage
- 1 cup flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt

Combine ingredients and stir just until dry particles are moistened. Do not beat. Drop by teaspoonsful around outside edges of casserole. Cover again and bake for 20 to 25 minutes at 400 degrees.

Charcoal broiling

Steaks for charcoal broiling should be at least one and a half inches thick, and hamburger patties, at least three-fourths inch. They will be juicier than thinner ones.

Make your own marinade for charcoal broiled meat or poultry. Add your favorite seasonings to a half and half mixture of oil and vinegar or lemon juice.

Steaks at least one and a half inches thick need 15 to 40 minutes over charcoal. The time depends on the desired doneness — rare, medium or well.

Hamburgers about three quarters to one inch thick cook in about eight to 14 minutes over charcoal. Turn them about halfway through the cooking period.

Before you douse a charcoal grill flare-up with water, remove the food from the grid to keep from splattering it with ashes or steam.

The leaner the meat or poultry, the more briquets you need for charcoal.

BEEF AND DUMPLINGS, a flavorful one-dish meal, is a boon for working homemakers like Judy O'Brien of Mount Prospect. Beef cubes are baked in a combination of cream of chicken and onion soup with mushrooms and onions.

Serves 6.

LOUISIANA DARK CHERRY CAKE

- ½ cup butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1 4-ounce bottle maraschino cherries, quartered and juice
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- 1 ounce unsweetened chocolate, melted

Cream butter and sugar together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Add dry ingredients alternately with sour cream, beating until smooth after each addition. Add melted chocolate and blend. Gently mix in cherries, juice and nuts.

Grease an 8-inch square pan. Line with waxed paper and grease paper. Pour in batter and bake at 350 degrees for 45 to 55 minutes.

Frost with the following chocolate butter cream icing: 6 tablespoons butter 2 cups confectioners' sugar 1 envelope melted chocolate Little milk Combine butter, sugar and chocolate. Add enough milk to make frosting a spreading consistency. Spread over cake. Cut in small slices. Serves 12.

Menu variety with fresh tomatoes

Fresh tomatoes add color and flavor to spring and summer menus. A thick slice of fresh tomato, for instance, pleases the eye at the same time that it adds flavor to other foods served with it. Tomatoes may be served cool as a salad, or hot from the broiler, depending on the temperature contrast desired.

Although tomatoes are available all year long, spring affords an unusually good supply from Florida fields. Florida tomato growers remind us that mature, well-formed tomatoes must be slightly underripe to travel well. For that reason it's best to buy tomatoes about three days before using them. Let them sit at kitchen temperature during that time. Then, when they have turned fully red and feel tender, keep them in the refrigerator until needed. But, for best flavor and texture let them come back to room temperature before eating them.

Deviled Tomatoes and Broiler Cheese-topped Tomatoes are two new recipes featuring fresh tomatoes.

DEVILED TOMATOES

6 medium-sized tomatoes
1/2 teaspoon salt, divided
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup diced green pepper
1/2 cup minced onion
1/8 teaspoon ground red pepper
6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
Hold tomatoes at room temperature until fully ripe. Cut out stem end and cores from tomatoes; place stem end down on board. Cut into 6 wedges almost to the bottom; open up slightly; sprinkle with 1/4 teaspoon of the salt; set aside. In a medium bowl mix mayonnaise with green pepper, onion, red pepper and remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt. Stir in eggs. Use about 1/3 cup of the egg mixture to fill each tomato. Top with a swirl of mayonnaise and chopped chives, if desired. Yield: 6 portions.

BROILED CHEESE-TOPPED TOMATOES

3 large tomatoes
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
1/2 cup grated Cheddar cheese
1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
1/4 teaspoon basil leaves, crumbled
6 rounds hot, buttered toast
Hold tomatoes at room temperature until fully ripe. Cut tomatoes in half; place in shallow pan, cut side up. Dribble 1 teaspoon of the lemon juice over each half; sprinkle halves with salt and black pepper. Dot each half with 1/2 teaspoon of the butter. Place under preheated broiler for 5 minutes. Melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Stir in cheese, bread crumbs and basil; sprinkle over tomatoes. Return to broiler; brown lightly, about 2 minutes. Serve on toast rounds. Garnish with anchovies, if desired. Yield: 6 portions.

Easy meatless lasagna offers nutrition, flavor

Pasta or macaroni dishes are popular with all ages. A meatless lasagna filled with cottage and cream cheese offers a balanced dish containing essential protein plus other vitamins. Nutritional considerations aside, it also tastes good and a delectable concoction is always welcome.

MEATLESS LASAGNA

6 lasagna noodles
1 tablespoon salad oil
1/2 cup minced onion
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes, broken up
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 tablespoon original Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon oregano leaves
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup cream-style cottage cheese
1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan Cheese, divided Cook noodles as package label directs; drain. Set aside. In medium saucepan, heat salad oil. Add onion and saute 5 minutes. Add tomatoes, tomato paste, Worcestershire sauce, oregano and salt. Simmer, uncovered 15 minutes, stirring frequently until sauce has thickened. Combine cottage cheese, cream cheese and 1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese. Beat until well blended. Arrange 3 of the noodles in bottom of 10x6x2 inch baking dish. Spread with half of cheese mixture. Top with half of tomato sauce. Repeat layering, ending with tomato sauce. Sprinkle with remaining Parmesan cheese. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 40 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Makes 6 portions. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Foil-baked apples

Foil-baked apples cook in 45 to 55 minutes on a charcoal grill. Pare about one inch of peel from the stem ends of four apples and core them. Stand each apple on a piece of heavy duty foil or a double layer of regular strength foil large enough to cover each apple completely. Fill each apple with 1 to 2 tablespoons of brown sugar, 1/2 teaspoon of butter and a few raisins. Bring corners of foil together on apples and spoon one and a half tablespoons of water into each pack. With apples standing upright, seal edges of foil. Place them on the floor of the grill around edge of coals, and rotate two or three times during cooking period, leaving apples upright. Test for doneness by unwrapping foil carefully and piercing apples with fork. To serve, remove from foil and serve in bowls with syrup and cream.

Veterans' news

Full 36-month entitlement due

Q. I was honorably discharged after a full two-year tour in military service. The Veterans Administration paid me GI Bill benefits while I went to high school nine months to get my diploma. How much entitlement do I have left?

A. Your full entitlement of 36 months. A veteran earns that maximum after 18 months or more of service provided he completed his obligated tour of service. High school training is not charged against basic entitlement.

Q. As a veteran's widow, I was drawing Veterans Administration until my remarriage. My second husband died recently, and I wonder if I'm again entitled to pension?

A. Yes. Current law allows a formerly eligible widow to regain her pension eligibility if the subsequent remarriage ends in death or divorce — provided she is not above income and net worth limitations.

Q. I plan to travel this summer and won't have a mailing address. What can I do to help the Veterans Administration get my compensation check to me?

A. Make arrangements with your bank (usually through power of attorney) to receive your checks for deposit. After notification VA will mail your monthly check to the bank.

Q. I was honorably discharged about 20 years ago after four years of military service. Am I still eligible for a GI loan?

A. Yes. The Veterans' Housing Act of 1970 removed deadlines for using GI loan entitlement for veterans of World War II and later periods.

Q. I am a veteran with a 60 per cent service connected disability. Will the Veterans Administration pay me additional compensation for my son who was born two months ago?

A. Yes, provided you file a claim within one year of your son's birth.

Q. The Veterans Administration turned down my disability claim, and I'd like to contest the decision. How do I go about doing this?

A. You should, within a year, file a notice of disagreement with your state VA regional office, which will review the claim and provide a statement of facts. If still not satisfied with the decision, you may appeal it to the VA Board of Appeals in Washington. You may appear in person, or have someone or an organization represent you.

Israeli Golan goes for gangster photos

HOLLYWOOD — Time was when the way to spot a director on a movie set was to listen for the guy with the foreign accent.

Most of the great ones were from Europe. But American directors have largely taken over, making Menahem Golan of Israel something of a throwback.

Golan is also a runaway. He has departed his native land to make three gangster pictures in Hollywood starring three definitely American actors: "Lepke" with Tony Curtis, "The Four Deuces" with Jack Palance, and "Hit the Dutchman" with Elliott Gould.

THE MAFIA ISN'T that big in Haifa, but Golan spent every afternoon when he was a schoolboy sitting in the single theater of his small Israeli town watching Bogart, Cagney, Edward G. Robinson and the rest mow down cops and other hoodlums.

"I loved the era of the 1920s and '30s in movies," Golan said. "I have a special feeling for the mood and the times and the gangsters. So now I am realizing a boyhood ambition.

"I made 20 pictures in Israel and Eu-

The Hollywood scene

by Vernon Scott

ropo. There are no borders among moviemakers. You must film wherever you find the proper setting. There is no proper setting in Israel for gangster films of the '30s.

"Like painters who are drawn to Paris, filmmakers are enticed by Hollywood.

"I GOT HERE because I made 'Kazablan.' It was a big, colorful musical. People here couldn't believe I made it for less than $3 million. It looked like four times that much.

"Everybody in Hollywood, including the financiers, loves a man who can make budget movies and give them the look of quality.

"These three gangster films all will be made for less than $1 million. We've already finished 'Lepke'."

Golan is a heavyset man with a thick brush of hair. His features are strong and so is his patriotism. He has fought in three Israeli wars, first as a pilot and in the last two in the infantry.

"YOU WILL NOTICE my first gangster is Lepke, a Jew," he said. "This way I am reducing the chances of making mistakes and dealing with a familiar background for authenticity.

"In the marriage scene of Lepke I make sure everything in the synagogue is right. What's more I've got Curtis playing the title role. His real name is Bernie Schwartz.

"This movie must make a lot of money to prove I can make films to meet Hollywood standards on a modest budget. When my backers saw the first rushes of this film they gave me the go-ahead on 'Four Deuces'."

Man continues his merry way into the past

WASHINGTON — With the approach of the air conditioning season, power companies are again warning of possible shortages and brownouts.

Is there any way to keep the demand for cool air from swamping the capacity to generate it?

With that question in mind, I paid another visit to The Future Is Yesterday Foundation, a research center and think tank that specializes in solving the problems of modern living.

"YOU'RE IN luck," Sam Harkenback, the project manager told me. "You are just in time to witness the first test of an air cooler designed to operate without electric current."

We adjourned to a laboratory where a number of technicians in white smocks were making notations on clipboards.

Seated in their midst was a man, bare from the waist up, with several electrodes attached to his skin. In his right hand he clutched what appeared to be a round piece of cardboard with a small wooden handle.

"What's the reading?" Harkenback barked.

"Eighty-seven-point-six Fahrenheit," one of the technicians called out.

"Roger. Begin the countdown."

The lighter side

by Dick West

A technician named Roger began counting backward . . . 10-9-8 . . . and so on. When he reached zero, the man in the chair commenced waving the object in his hand back and forth before his face.

The technicians clustered excitedly around the dials of an instrument that was wired to the electrodes. After a few tense moments, Harkenback leaped up and clicked his heels in jubilation.

"It's working!" he shouted. "We've got it down to eighty-seven-point-four."

After the round of congratulations had died down, Harkenback explained the significance of what I had just seen.

"We have proved it is possible to lower the temperature by stirring the air with a small hand-held agitator," he said triumphantly.

"Now imagine a room full of people, say in the auditorium of a church. Instead of being cooled by central air conditioning, each person has his own little agitator with which he cools himself."

I said, "That's beautiful! Are they very expensive?"

"Not at all," Harkenback said. "A funeral home or some such establishment likely would provide the agitators free just for the advertising space."

I don't know whether they will get all the bugs worked out in time for this summer's heat waves. But if energy shortages persist, agitator cooling may be the coming thing.

Grand Spaulding refuses to release records: city clerk

Chicago probe of car-lease firm's tie to village stymied

by JOE FRANZ

Chicago officials apparently have reached a standstill in their investigation of Buffalo Grove vehicle license sales to a Chicago-based auto-leasing firm, The Herald has learned.

A report from the Chicago city clerk's office states that Grand Spaulding Auto Leasing, 3300 W. Grand Ave., Chicago, has refused to release its records for investigation. A copy of that report was received by Buffalo Grove officials Wednesday, but both they and city officials said they would not release its contents to the public.

Sprinkling ban stays in effect

The village's lawn-sprinkling ban remains in effect, despite village contentions that the water supply situation this year should be better than last.

William Davis, general superintendent of public works, said the ordinance is intended to ensure adequate water supply during summer months. "Barring an unseen drought we should have enough water this summer," he said. "But the ordinance is meant to control the use in the event water runs short."

Under the ordinance, residents living in homes with odd-numbered addresses can sprinkle on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays and those with even addresses can water on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays. Sprinkling is not allowed on Fridays.

Residents who have just seeded or sodded lawns can obtain a special two-week permit which will allow them to sprinkle during restricted periods.

Davis said the main reason the village's water supply will be improved this year is because of an addition to the reservoir on Arlington Heights Road, north of Checker Drive. The capacity of the reservoir recently was increased from 500,000 gallons to 1.5 million gallons. In addition, a new pump has increased the pumping capacity of the nearby well to 3,500 gallons per minute.

The Herald, which obtained access to the report independently, disclosed in April that Grand Spaulding was allowed to purchase 10 vehicle licenses, apparently to avoid buying Chicago licenses, which cost $20 to $50 each.

GRAND SPAULDING purchased more than 200 Buffalo Grove stickers in each of the last two years and has been allowed to buy village stickers since 1971. The arrangement may be illegal since the firm does not house the autos in the village.

City investigators are attempting to determine whether Grand Spaulding is in violation of Chicago's wheel tax ordinance. City officials, however, are having difficulty finding Grand Spaulding cars with Buffalo Grove stickers.

Chicago investigators have been able to find only one car with a village sticker at the Grand Spaulding address, the report states. Grand Spaulding was requested to supply investigators with information on where the autos are leased, but has not complied, according to the report.

Chicago officials said in the report they can't proceed further until Grand Spaulding provides information on its leasing fleet. The company told the Chicago investigators it has 400 cars in the fleet. According to village records, 207 of the cars have Buffalo Grove stickers.

Ken Krause, president of Grand

Spaulding, was asked Wednesday if his firm planned to release information to investigators, but also refused comment.

KRAUSE HAS SAID the purchase of vehicle stickers from the village is legal because his firm owns property at Arlington Heights and Dundee roads. The village recently approved plans for an auto dealership on the property.

Village Atty. Richard Raysa, however, has said the purchase of the stickers by the firm apparently was illegal because it does not yet have a branch office in Buffalo Grove. Raysa said since Grand Spaulding submitted a village address in order to obtain village stickers, the village is not at fault.

The firm gave the village a Buffalo Grove post office box as an address, but a random check of state license numbers revealed all the autos were registered at Grand Spaulding's Chicago address.

Some village officials said they were aware the stickers were being sold to the firm, but thought it was legal since Grand Spaulding owns land in the village. Once the sale of stickers was disclosed officials banned the further sale of village stickers to Grand Spaulding.

A federal grand jury has subpoenaed village sticker records and is reportedly seeking evidence of mail fraud in the sale of the stickers. Officials in the U. S. Attorney's office refused Wednesday to comment on the probe.

Kassuba must sell 75% of Chicago-area holdings

About 75 per cent of all completed Kassuba Development Corp. apartments in the Chicago area will be included in the sale of about half of Kassuba's nationwide holdings to an investor group led by the Los Angeles-based Income Equities Corp.

Although Kassuba officials refuse to name the properties intended for sale until deeds are signed, the firm's Chicago regional director, Vincent Donile, said Wednesday 5,800 of the approximately 8,000 Chicago area apartments are included. Several of Kassuba's apartment complexes are in the Northwest suburbs, and it appears certain at least some of them will be sold.

Donile said the sale will include only apartments finished and available for occupancy, and not those under construction at the time of closing. Currently 25,000 units are in construction stages, he said. Either Kassuba or Income Equities will notify tenants in solid complexes

Four stores on Dundee Road OKd

Developer Ray Brozio has received final approval from the Buffalo Grove Village Board for construction of four stores on Dundee Road.

The board approved the project 5 to 0 earlier this week. Brozio plans to construct the one-story building on a half-acre site on the south side of the road at Betty Drive.

Brozio said he hopes to begin construction as soon as possible, but will have to wait until a strike by construction material truck drivers is settled.

Prior to approval of the final plan there was a lengthy discussion between board members and the developer concerning landscaping of the property. Brozio said he had met with the appearance control commission several times, but did not reach agreement on all points.

He said he thought he had reached agreement with the commission, but then several members changed their minds about the landscaping. After some discussion, the board agreed to a landscape plan.

In making the motion to approve the project, Trustee Randall Rathjen said, "I think the appearance control commission has shown poor judgment and put these people through a lot of unnecessary hoops."

The board's action is contingent on final approval of the plan by the village engineer.

Brozio said a real estate firm has made a commitment to rent one of his stores and he expects to have the others rented by the time construction is finished.

And the 'Duke' recalls...

'We didn't find out we were going until the night before . . . we just loaded up and went'

by BARRY SIGALE

It was the greatest assault in the history of warfare; an assault on a continent, on an opposing army, and on the idea of fascism.

On the Allied side 30 years ago today there were some 2 million men. And of the thousands who died on the beaches and in the hedgerows and of the thousands who came back there was a GI named Duke Kopplin.

William "Duke" Kopplin, who joined the army as a buck private and left it as a major in the combat engineers after the conquest of Europe, stepped onto the beaches of Normandy on D-Day plus one day. He was part of a generation of men for whom the war was something to be part of.

FOR DUKE KOPPLIN, a resident of Arlington Heights and a 60-year-old businessman who works as a cost accountant in Melrose Park, the D-Day invasion was also the time he was notified of the birth of his son.

News that William Kopplin Jr. had been born reached Kopplin at Swans, England, shortly before he sailed for France and the invasion.

He wasn't worried about the possibility of never getting to see his son. "If you go into war with the thought that you might get killed, you're a dead duck already," he said. "I figured if it was my time to go it was going to be."

Kopplin landed at the beachhead at Normandy, France, with a reinforced platoon of 45 men. Though their main task in the Second Engineer Combat Battalion was to build bridges they were acting as front line troops in the face of German resistance.

"I remember they were firing at us with machine guns from a church tower," said platoon commander Kopplin of a skirmish at the village of Vermeille Sur Mer where the invasion began 30 years ago today. "We got off the road and into the ditches." Finally, after a lengthy battle, they took the position and chased the enemy away. It was the first of many such victories that would bring the Germans to their knees.

IT WAS only right that Kopplin should share in a piece of America's greatest victory and come back as a war hero with honors.

WILLIAM "DUKE" KOPPLIN of Arlington Heights was an American war hero during World War II as a platoon commander in the 2nd Engineer Combat Battalion. Entering as a buck private and leaving as a major, Kopplin exemplified the men who battled the Germans with a massive attack that began June 6, 1944. D-Day, as it was called 30 years ago today, was the beginning of the end of Hitler's Germany.

Kopplin, nicknamed Duke when he was a kid because his middle name was Earl, could have easily been tagged that way as a result of his exploits during the war.

He enlisted in 1939, met his wife when he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston in Texas and spent some time in training at Camp McCoy, Wis. They were married in 1942 and shortly after he was shipped overseas in a cloak of secrecy.

He and his men were transported at midnight in a darkened train to the New York harbor and sent by boat off to Belfast, Ireland, to await further instructions. The division might have remained at home a while longer if it hadn't been for radio commentator Walter Winchell, said Kopplin. "Winchell said,

'Where's that famous Second Division?'" Kopplin recalled. "Two days later we had orders to move out."

BEFORE HIS war days were over, Kopplin had earned the Silver Star ("For Gallantry in Action"), the Purple Heart and other medals. He was wounded in action and sent to England to recover and was greeted with a resounding welcome home at a New York celebration at the same harbor he had left to go to war.

During the war he proved to be an outstanding soldier. The main thrust of his war activity began at Normandy.

"We didn't find out we were going until the night before," said Kopplin. "We just loaded up and went. It was the biggest flotilla of boats you've ever seen." Kopplin said he would have taken part in action on D-Day itself if it wasn't for a "snafu" in the

'You'll never see it again,' general says

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Thirty years after the Allied invasion of Normandy in World War II, Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton believes there may never again be a troop movement of the size and scope of D-Day.

"You'll probably never see something of that type," said the general who led the U.S. Eighth Army Corps against the Nazis in the Battle of the Bulge.

"There's been such improvements in the air and in weapons, that I doubt you could concentrate and then transport troops across a channel like that."

"Of course, we didn't have the opposition from the Germans in the air. We had absolute supremacy in the air. When I got into the rendezvous area off the coast of France, I didn't

KOPPLIN RECEIVED the Silver Star for his war exploits. He was part of a two-man detail removing mines from a bridge Americans wanted to cross. Under heavy enemy fire the two men succeeded and the Germans driven out. Of the honor bestowed on him he said in a letter home, "I still don't think I deserved it."

He struck a handsome pose in combat regalia.

Hedlund statement called 'politicking'

Lang to snub WHIP on committee appointments

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling Trustee Al Lang said he probably will ignore Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP) suggestions on the upcoming appointment of village commissioners, saying they are an effort to bring politics into the appointments.

Lang, who heads the village board's judiciary and purchasing committee, is responsible for making recommendations on such appointments.

Otis "Skip" Hedlund, speaking for the WHIP party, has called on the village board to bypass several current commission members in an effort to restore confidence in village government. Hedlund said such action would "remove any suggestion of conflict of interest" from the village commissions.

IN HIS REMARKS, Hedlund said the commissions are currently suffering from "the taint of corruption and the image of a stacked village body." His statements refer to the fact that six former and present Wheeling and Cook County officials were indicted Jan. 31 after a year-long federal grand jury probe into shakedowns of Wheeling developers. Two of the six have pleaded guilty and been sentenced to prison terms.

As a remedy, Hedlund suggested that the village refrain from appointing anyone who served on village commissions during the time of the shakedowns. He specifically cited the control exerted over the village by James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who pleaded guilty to extorting $92,000 from three Wheeling developers. In pleading guilty, Stavros admitted having enough control over village government to prevent construction of those projects if he opposed them.

Stavros control by not reappointing anyone who had served on any commission during the time of his admitted influence, or who have served one or more full term," Hedlund said.

LANG SAID HEDLUND's statements were unfair because he singled out three men from among all of the commissioners who are up for reappointment. The three are plan commissioners Jack Metzger, Herb Lortz and Desere Smet.

"If he was saying all the present members should be replaced, how come he only picked on three," Lang said. "He should have said everybody instead of just naming three."

The trustee said he will not turn his back on Hedlund's request, but said he did not agree with Hedlund's suggestion that the board appoint those persons who applied for commissions but were passed over. He said that according to his records only three persons have applied for commission seats and were not appointed. He said the three are John Cargill, Maurcen Pitt and Jim Poole, and noted they applied for the most popular commissions, zoning, planning and environmental and declined to accept other positions.

Cargill is the son of former plan commission and zoning board member, Douglas Cargill. Mrs. Pitt, a member of the WHIP party, was on the human relations commission but did not seek reappointment. Poole is a former member of the police and fire commission and currently serves as president of the Highland Glen Homeowners Assn.

LANG SAID HE thinks the village board has tried to pick qualified people to do a specific job for the community. He said Hedlund is trying to penalize all commission members for trying to do that job.

Board members already have reappointed two commissioners who sit on boards controlled by state regulations. Robert Olson was reappointed to the police and fire commission for a term ending April 30, 1977. Walter Diens was reappointed to the police pension board for a term ending April 30, 1978.

Other appointments will be considered at an upcoming village board meeting.

Dunton School teacher

She's on way home—to Africa

by BETTY LEE

Barbara Probst's teaching career is keeping her on the move, from continent to continent.

After a year of teaching second grade at Dunton School in Arlington, she's making plans to head for Africa. Miss Probst won't be a stranger when she arrives because Kenya is her home.

She's doing what many suburbanites are accustomed to — the routine of moving from one place to another because of a company transfer or career change. As a veteran of the Arlington Heights School Dist. 25, she took time off last year after teaching at Greenbrier and Westgate schools, to teach in Africa. After a year there she returned to the United States to teach at Dunton School.

BUT SHE YEARNs to be in Africa now. "It was a hard decision," Miss Probst said. "There aren't very many (persons) there to help them. I'm happy here, too, but God wants me to help there for a little while."

She was born and raised there among seven brothers and sisters. Her parents are missionaries, but the stereotype of missionaries disturbs her a little.

"People often think that missionaries do the 'churchy' type stuff," she said.

Barbara Probst

"We can be teachers, nurses, engineers or whatever and still can teach the word of God. We help them in some way. You just can't tell these people about the love of God if they're starving to death."

Her father worked as a medical doctor and as an engineer while she attended American schools there. She comes from a long line of missionaries. Family stories include the one about her great-grandmother bringing a couple of Jersey cows to Africa with her so that they could breed good stock.

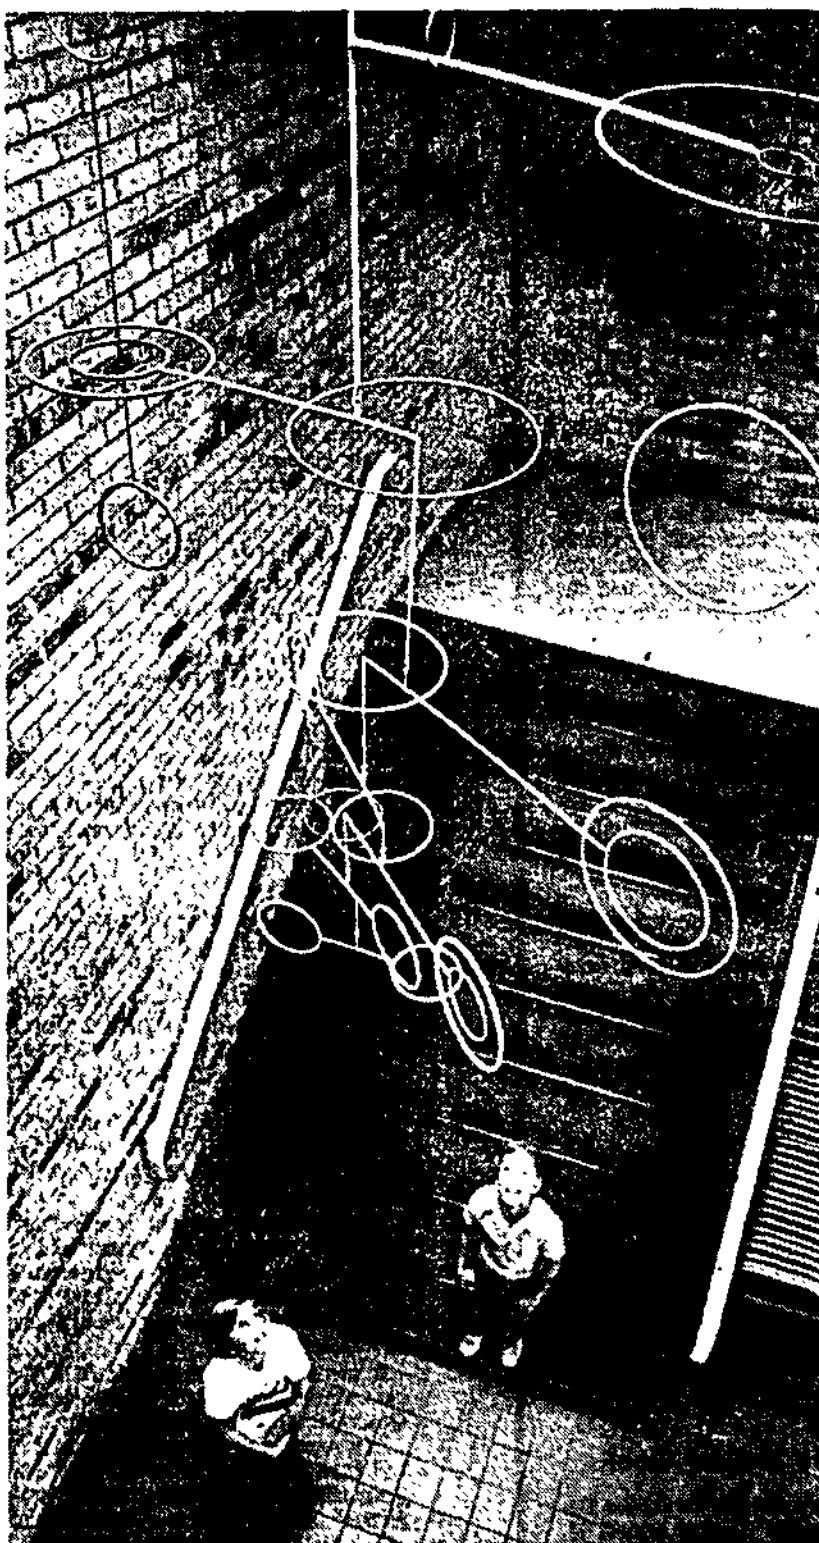

THE ADVENTURE OF teaching in Africa isn't so glamorous because the education available there for youngsters isn't the same as it is here in the United States, she said.

"The children here are so lucky, they have no idea how lucky they are," Miss Probst said.

In Africa there are no modern games or devices to help children learn fundamentals in reading, writing or math. The schools there are government supported and are just beginning to be a part of African life. Educational programs are just beginning, she said.

Miss Probst will be teaching in a school for American children whose parents are missionaries there. Rift Valley Academy is a school mainly supported by churches and Christians from the United States.

"Theodore Roosevelt laid the foundation for the school while he hunted here," she said.

FROM THE BOTTOM it's a strain on the neck to view the hanging mobile sculpture at Dist. 21's Riley School in Arlington Heights. The mobile was made by Joseph Burlini, an Arlington Heights resident, and commissioned for the school by the PTA. The mobile will hang in the school lobby.

Jaycees plan beer, brat fest July 4

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees will sponsor a beer and brat festival July 4, followed by a fireworks display.

The village board has waived a $25 permit fee for the festival. Trustees also authorized the use of village trucks for hauling picnic tables and the use of municipal building washroom facilities by those attending the festival.

The beer and brat festival and the fireworks display will take place in the field at Raupp Boulevard and Lake Cook Road.

Man gets probation in burglary case

A 25-year-old Buffalo Grove man was placed on two year's felony probation Tuesday in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court after he was found guilty of a May 19 burglary.

Robert M. Miller, 665 Grove Dr., was found guilty of burglarizing the Gilbert H. Herzer residence, 237 Weidner Rd., and stealing some $20 in change. Police said Herzer found Miller in his home the night of the burglary and this led to Miller's subsequent arrest. Police said Miller was a friend of Herzer's daughter and recognizable to Herzer.

Two men arrested in marijuana case

Two residents of an unincorporated area near Mount Prospect were charged with possession of marijuana early Wednesday in Wheeling.

According to police, Dennis J. Papanek, 23, and Stephen M. Papanek, 22, both of 906A Boxwood Dr., were apprehended in the area of 801 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling, at about 2:15 a.m. When stopped and asked for identification, the youths were arrested when a policeman said he saw a marijuana cigarette in one of the men's pocket. Police said a search uncovered a second marijuana cigarette and a bag of the illegal drug.

Both men will appear July 2 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Referendum reveals voters want the land

Talks may resume on buying Rob Roy

by TOM VON MALDER

A new round of talks and investigations into the possibility of a public purchase of the Rob Roy Golf Course may be initiated as a result of Tuesday's Prospect Heights Park District referendum.

The referendum included an opinion question that asked the park district residents if they wanted an additional referendum at a later date to earmark funds for a public purchase of the Euclid Avenue Golf Course. That vote was 540 yes, 386 no.

Park District Pres. Max Lyle said Wednesday he would write letters over the next two weeks to surrounding area park districts and the Village of Mount Prospect. They will invite officials to meet with Prospect Heights park officials to discuss a joint purchase of the 206-acre golf course.

"It looks like the vast majority of the community is interested in participating in some way in a public purchase of the golf course," Lyle said, reflecting on Tuesday's vote.

THE GOLF COURSE purchase question has been brought to public attention in recent months because of the efforts of Kenroy Inc. of Skokie to build apartments on the property. Originally, Kenroy asked Mount Prospect officials for annexation and zoning for 4,500 apartments. Before that request was considered by the village — which informally had indicated the plan would be rejected — Kenroy's plans were revised to include 2,700 units with an 18-hole golf course around the perimeter of the development. Kenroy changed its plans in part because the village zoning board voted down the first proposal.

A zoning board hearing on the revised Kenroy request will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Mount Prospect Village Hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Lyle will send letters to the Village of Mount Prospect and the following park districts: River Trails (The district in which the golf course lies), Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling and Des Plaines. "They should be interested in this too," he said.

Hopefully, Lyle said, meetings would be set up to explore the possibilities of a joint purchase and the available federal and state funding. He indicated that referendums in each participating district or community might be needed to raise sufficient funds.

BY ITSELF, A referendum in the Prospect Heights Park District, if successful, could raise slightly more than $300,000 toward the estimated $6 million to $9 million, Lyle said. Although he added that that figure could be higher if the park district's total assessed valuation is more than the $32 million last reported. No report on assessed valuation has been issued so far this year, he said. In addition, the district's assessed valuation will increase some $5 million next year, Lyle said.

Lyle said the timing of a referendum in his own district would be dependent "on a lot of things" that would come out of the meetings with the other taxing bodies. "We can't buy the golf course alone," he said. "But we have a clear indication that it (a second referendum on Rob Roy) would pass."

In many ways Lyle's upcoming efforts will duplicate the actions of several months ago undertaken by the Village of Mount Prospect when it initiated a series of meetings with the five park districts. Those meetings, in which only Prospect Heights participated in the first, also were to discuss the feasibility of a joint effort to buy the golf course.

One by one, however, officials of the park districts indicated that while they would like to see the golf course remain as open space, they did not have the funds to participate in the undertaking.

The Village of Mount Prospect sought outside funding from federal and state governmental sources. Then, when those efforts apparently failed, the village considered sponsoring a referendum to buy the property. That alternative, however, also was dropped, and the village last month turned over its two appraisals of the golf course's value to the Mount Prospect and River Trails park districts for their use.

Scholarship assembly Friday at MacArthur

MacArthur Junior High School will hold its annual scholarship assembly Friday at 1 p.m. at the school, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, Prospect Heights.

Students who have been named to the school honor roll for at least three quarters this year will be cited for academic achievement.

The names of the outstanding male and female teachers at the school as voted by the students will also be announced.

Arlington Park controversy ends—for the moment

by TONI GINETTI
Settlement Wednesday of a strike between horsemen and management at Sportsman's Park has ended plans for night racing at Arlington Park Race Track.
Agreement was reached Wednesday morning between the striking Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. and the Cicero race track's management, thereby abruptly ending a controversy which had developed surrounding the transferring of the Sportsman's night schedule to Arlington Park.
Arlington Park Tuesday had been granted night racing dates this Friday and Saturday and next Friday and Saturday by the Illinois Racing Board despite objections from the City of Rolling Meadows. Those dates were in effect rescinded Wednesday with the reinstatement of racing at Sportsman's.
The strike settlement came only hours before Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose planned to file in Cook County Circuit Court for an injunction to prevent the night racing. Rose said he was notified at about noon Wednesday by attorneys for the racing board that the Arlington day-night doubleheaders had been canceled.
Harness racing will resume at Sportsman's on Friday, according to spokesman William Johnston Jr.
THE SETTLEMENT Wednesday marked the second time this week planned night racing at Arlington was halted. A weekend decision by racing board members had authorized a racing doubleheader Monday, opening day for the Arlington racing season, but the threat of a lawsuit from Rolling Meadows prompted racing board chairman Anthony Sciarano to stop the program only six hours before the planned 8 p.m. post time.
The suit would have charged the board with violating the Illinois Open Meeting Law, authored by Sciarano when he was Controversy at a glance...

Here is a recap of events beginning Sunday surrounding the Arlington Park Race Track night racing controversy:
Sunday: A strike by the Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. against the operators of Sportsman's Park in Cicero canceled the planned opening of harness racing Monday at that track. The Illinois Racing Board agreed in a telephone poll to switch the night racing schedule to Arlington Park Monday.
Monday: The Arlington Park racing season opened at 2 p.m. with another racing schedule slated to start at 8 p.m. The night schedule was called off only six hours before post time by racing board chairman Anthony Sciarano after Rolling Meadows officials threatened to file suit against the board. Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose said the board had violated the Illinois Open Meeting Law because no public hearing on the matter of night racing had been held. Sciarano then called for the matter to be discussed Tuesday before the board.

Tuesday: The racing board voted unanimously to grant four night racing dates to Arlington Park unless the strike at Sportsman's Park was resolved. Rose protested the action before the board saying Rolling Meadows residents living near the track had not been given sufficient time to file objections to the plan.
Wednesday: Rose was preparing to file in Cook County Circuit Court a brief seeking to stop the races scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday. The action was not taken, however, when it was announced at mid-day that the Sportsman's strike had been settled and that racing would resume Friday at Sportsman's.

a state legislator, because a public hearing on the racing proposal had not been held.
A meeting of the board was called for Tuesday and the dates were then officially awarded, pending the outcome of the Sportsman's strike.
The reassigning of the racing to Arlington Park was aimed at preventing the loss of up to $100,000 a day in state revenue.
Night racing has not been held at Arlington Park since 1969.
Rose appeared before the board Tuesday to protest the night racing plan, saying the board did not provide time for area residents to file objections to the proposal.
PREPARATIONS were under way Wednesday for Rolling Meadows to file for an injunction against the racing board's Tuesday action when word of the strike settlement came, Rose said. Rose said he had planned to base the court action on several factors including that the board had violated the "spirit" of the open meeting law and that application had only been made by Arlington Park for only two specific night dates although four dates were awarded by the board.

The "nuisance factor" and the matter of the public not having sufficient time to learn of the Tuesday racing board meeting would have also been cited, Rose said.
Horsemen at Sportsman's Park voted to end the strike early Wednesday when they agreed to a six-year contract with the track management. The contract calls for the horsemen to get 49 per cent of the track's mutual handle for the first two years, 49½ per cent for the third year and 50 per cent for the last three years, according to a racing board spokesman.
The horsemen had originally sought a two-year contract with 50 per cent of the mutual take while management offered a six-year contract with a 49 per cent split for the first two years, 49½ per cent for the second two years and 50 per cent split only for the last two years.

JO ELLEN CLAWES of Prospect Heights recently won a five-month fight to get "no turn on red" signs at the intersection of Camp McDonald and Elmhurst roads. Mrs. Clawes, a School Dist. 23 crossing guard, thought the signs were needed to protect children crossing the busy intersection to and from school. After speaking with several governmental bodies, Mrs. Clawes got the signs put in at the two north corners.

Tryouts Saturday for girls' softball

Tryouts for the Buffalo Grove Park District girls' 12-inch softball team will be Saturday at 1 p.m. at the field adjacent to Cooper Junior High School, Plum Grove Circle and Arlington Heights Road.
The tryouts are open to girls 16 and younger. Those trying out should bring baseball mitts.

Park swim team tryouts scheduled

Tryouts for the Buffalo Grove Park District swim team will be June 10 and 12 at 6:30 p.m. at Willow Stream Park pool.
The tryouts are open to boys and girls of all ages. There is no limit on the number that will be accepted. Those trying out should bring swimsuits and towels.

Kassuba must sell 75%

when the transfer is final, said Donile, but he was unable to predict how long that will take.
Most Kassuba developments have the word "Trace" in their name, although not all do. Kassuba owns 28 complexes in Illinois, 27 of them in the Chicago area. Nationally, it owns 42,000 apartment units in 119 complexes, and 63 of the complexes are to be sold.
THE SALE WAS forced by financial reorganization Kassuba sought under the Federal Bankruptcy Act in December, and was approved by a federal bankruptcy referee Tuesday. A condition of the sale is acceptance by Kassuba's secured creditors of some terms, Kassuba's attorney, Richard F. Levy of Chicago, said in court many of the creditors already have agreed to the principle.
While the sale is pending, Kassuba is making a "concentrated effort to refurbish" all its complexes in the Chicago area, and to complete units not now finished. "Our immediate goal is to perform all maintenance necessary in all projects in Chicago," said Donile.
In Buffalo Grove, where city officials threatened condemnation of Berkshire Trace Apartments, citing safety hazards, Donile said Kassuba now is "performing all deferred maintenance we couldn't perform during the winter." Work includes roofing, balcony and firewall repairs or replacement, landscaping, painting and pavement repair. Donile vowed to "show Buffalo Grove our intentions are more than honest and honorable," and said Kassuba "intends to comply with all their requirements." Similar problems in Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows, are being corrected since the city filed suit against Kassuba.

IN HOFFMAN ESTATES, where 10 of 11 buildings under construction and nearly completed have lain dormant for an estimated six months, "we hope to get started in the very near future," said Donile. He said he could not promise construction would resume within two months, although Joe Steinberg, regional manager out of Palm Beach, Fla., suggested that time period. Donile said remaining work in the Hermitage Trace project could be completed within months.

Plans to ease congestion at River, Miner proposed

Plans submitted for condominium

While Des Plaines is preparing plans to improve the River Road and Miner Street intersection, officials have been advised they might have to expedite action on a connection between Mill and River streets.

Des Plaines Planning and Zoning Director Michael Richardson has advised the city council that plans have been submitted for a 48-unit condominium building on the Franzen property on Mill Street.

The land, which is at the end of Mill Street as it dead ends at property owned by the Cook County Forest Preserve, has been suggested as a possible route for a connecting street between Mill and River streets. Presently both streets end at the forest preserve property.

RICHARDSON SAID preliminary plans for the condominium are being reviewed by the building department. If the plans meet city code, the developer would need only to apply for a building permit because the property is already zoned for multiple family housing.

The connector street has been proposed because if the River Road overpass is constructed, residents who live on Mill Street would not be able to exit on River Road.

Some residents of the area have protested the construction of the overpass and have raised objections to allowing the construction of high-density apartments and condominium buildings in the area.

"The city council will really need to make a decision soon on where they would like to place that connecting street," Richardson said.

He added that even if the controversial overpass is not constructed, the city should provide a street to allow additional access for residents of the condominium buildings in that area.

Des Plaines officials will present to the Illinois Department of Transportation June 19 plans designed to ease traffic congestion at the River Road-Miner Street intersection.

The plan is seen as an interim remedy for the intersection until state officials make a final determination on a proposal to build an overpass to carry River Road over both Miner Street and the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks.

The new proposal for the intersection was presented to the city council Monday and calls for installation of left turn lanes for northbound and southbound River Road traffic to turn onto Miner Street and a plan to prohibit left turns from Miner Street to River Road.

Traffic planning to turn left from Miner to River would be routed to Pearson Street to the intersection of Pearson, Park Place and River Road.

THE OVER-ALL PLAN calls for improvements to the intersection of Pearson Street, Park Place and River Road which include the closing of Jefferson street at that intersection and the installation of traffic signals which would also benefit traffic from River Street. Elwood Street would also be closed at River Road.

City officials seek the plan as the best of four developed by engineers. Other plans include left turn lanes for both streets and a realignment of Miner Street at River Road.

The city has been somewhat stymied in its plans to improve the intersection because of the Miner Street bridge over the Des Plaines River. The bridge is not

Water contract proposal may save city $1 million

A proposed water contract between Des Plaines and Chicago could save Des Plaines more than $1 million during the next 10 years if Chicago approves the pact.

Des Plaines officials have voted to seek a reduction in the minimum amount of water purchased daily from Chicago so that the local well and pumping system can be used more efficiently.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said he believes Chicago officials will accept a proposal for a sliding scale for the minimum amount of water to be purchased during the next 10 years.

The contract proposal, which would go into effect in September if approved, calls for Des Plaines to purchase 6.5 million gallons of water per day during 1975 and 1985; 6 millions gallons per day from 1977 to 1979, 6.5 million gallons from 1980 to 1982 and 7 million gallons per day for 1983 and 1984.

THE CITY NOW purchases a minimum of 7 million gallons of water per day, but local officials believe it would be more efficient to pump additional water from wells here.

According to a report submitted by Ald. Thomas Koplos (1st), who heads the city council's water and sewer committee, Des Plaines will pump between 2.1 and 2.5 million gallons of water per day from its own wells during the first five years of the contract and between 1.7 and 2.1 million gallons of water per day during the last five years.

Behrel said Des Plaines anticipates a gross savings of about $100,000 per year under the new contract.

THE MAYOR ADDED that the city will use more Chicago water during the latter part of the contract, when Des Plaines' equipment gets older.

"We believe this contract will be more efficient. The last few years of the present contract have been very costly for the city," Behrel said, noting that the city was required to purchase water from Chicago and pay the overhead expenses for the maintenance of its own water system which was not being used to its full efficiency.

"With this new contract we hope to prevent any further increases in the water rates for as long as possible," the mayor added.

Park Ridge girl drowns in river

A 13-year-old girl drowned in the Des Plaines River while trying to rescue a friend who had fallen in about a quarter mile north of Touhy Avenue in Park Ridge.

Margaret Fitzsimmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Fitzsimmons, 728 Sylvia, Park Ridge, was pronounced dead on arrival at Lutheran General Hospital Tuesday.

According to Park Ridge Police, the Fitzsimmons girl and two other friends decided to go for a walk in the woods. They tried to walk across a concrete dam when the girl friend, Julie May, also 13, of Park Ridge, fell in.

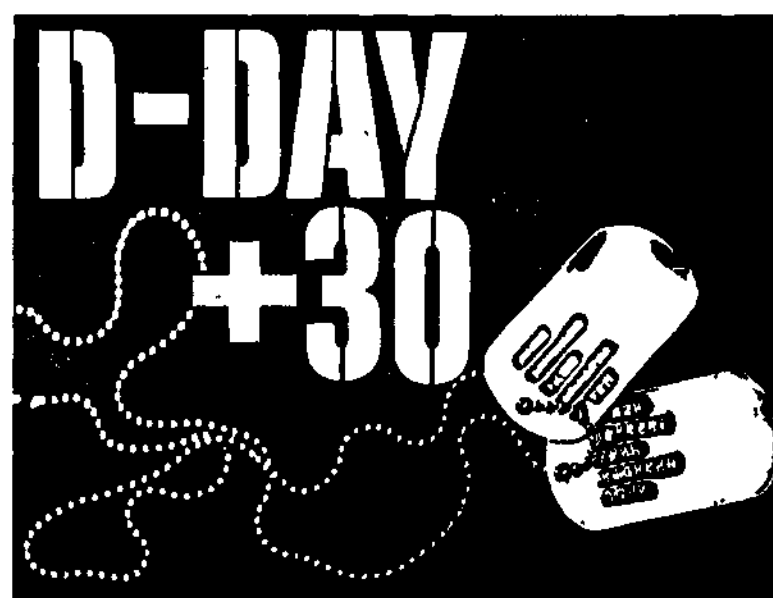

Police said they arrived on the scene quickly but were unable to revive her after the third girl had gone for help.

Fire damages auto

A small fire caused $100 damage to an auto owned by a Des Plaines man, Jim Sherman, 1276 Third Ave., Des Plaines firefighters reported Wednesday.

It was not known what triggered the blaze. The car, a 1967 Oldsmobile, caught fire near Oak and Lee streets Tuesday afternoon.

The fire was out by the time firemen arrived.

And the 'Duke' recalls...

'We didn't find out we were going until the night before . . . we just loaded up and went'

by BARRY SIGALE

It was the greatest assault in the history of warfare; an assault on a continent, on an opposing army, and on the idea of fascism.

On the Allied side 30 years ago today there were some 2 million men. And of the thousands who died on the beaches and in the hedgerows and of the thousands who came back there was a GI named Duke Kopplin.

William "Duke" Kopplin, who joined the army as a buck private and left it as a major in the combat engineers after the conquest of Europe, stepped onto the beaches of Normandy on D-Day plus one day. He was part of a generation of men for whom the war was something to be part of.

FOR DUKE KOPPLIN, a resident of Arlington Heights and a 60-year-old businessman who works as a cost accountant in Melrose Park, the D-Day invasion was also the time he was notified of the birth of his son.

News that William Kopplin Jr. had been born reached Kopplin at Swans, England, shortly before he sailed for France and the invasion.

He wasn't worried about the possibility of never getting to see his son. "If you go into war with the thought that you might get killed, you're a dead duck already," he said. "I figured if it was my time to go it was going to be."

Kopplin landed at the beachhead at Normandy, France, with a reinforced platoon of 45 men. Though their main task in the Second Engineer Combat Battalion was to build bridges they were acting as front line troops in the face of German resistance.

"I remember they were firing at us with machine guns from a church tower," said platoon commander Kopplin of a skirmish at the village of Vermeille Sur Mer where the invasion began 30 years ago today.

"We got off the road and into the ditches." Finally, after a lengthy battle, they took the position and chased the enemy away. It was the first of many such victories that would bring the Germans to their knees.

IT WAS only right that Kopplin should share in a piece of America's greatest victory and come back as a war hero with honors.

WILLIAM "DUKE" KOPPLIN of Arlington Heights was an American war hero during World War II as a platoon commander in the 2nd Engineer Combat Battalion. Entering as a buck private and leaving as a major, Kopplin exemplified the men who battled the Germans with a massive attack that began June 6, 1944. D-Day, as it was called 30 years ago today, was the beginning of the end of Hitler's Germany.

Kopplin, nicknamed Duke when he was a kid because his middle name was Earl, could have easily been tagged that way as a result of his exploits during the war.

He enlisted in 1939, met his wife when he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston in Texas and spent some time in training at Camp McCoy, Wis. They were married in 1942 and shortly after he was shipped overseas in a cloak of secrecy.

He and his men were transported at midnight in a darkened train to the New York harbor and sent by boat off to Belfast, Ireland, to await further instructions. The division might have remained at home a while longer if it hadn't been for radio commentator Walter Winchell, said Kopplin. "Winchell said,

"Where's that famous Second Division?" Kopplin recalled. "Two days later we had orders to move out."

BEFORE HIS war days were over, Kopplin had earned the Silver Star ("For Gallantry in Action"), the Purple Heart and other medals. He was wounded in action and sent to England to recover and was greeted with a resounding welcome home at a New York celebration at the same harbor he had left to go to war.

During the war he proved to be an outstanding soldier. The main thrust of his war activity began at Normandy.

"We didn't find out we were going until the night before," said Kopplin. "We just loaded up and went. It was the biggest flotta of boats you've ever seen." Kopplin said he would have taken part in action on D-Day itself if it wasn't for a "snafu" in the

'You'll never see it again,' general says

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Thirty years after the Allied invasion of Normandy in World War II, Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton believes there may never again be a troop movement of the size and scope of D-Day.

"You'll probably never see something of that type," said the general who led the U.S. Eighth Army Corps against the Nazis in the Battle of the Bulge.

"There's been such improvements in the air and in weapons, that I doubt you could concentrate and then transport troops across a channel like that."

"Of course, we didn't have the opposition from the Germans in the air. We had absolute supremacy in the air. When I got into the rendezvous area off the coast of France, I didn't

KOPPLIN RECEIVED the Silver Star for his war exploits. He was part of a two-man detail removing mines from a bridge Americans wanted to cross. Under heavy enemy fire the two men succeeded and the Germans driven out. Of the honor bestowed on him he said in a letter home, "I still don't think I deserved it."

He struck a handsome pose in combat regalia.

Food workers' 15% hike delayed

The Dist. 26 Board of Education has delayed action on approving a budget and salary schedule for the food service department. The board Tuesday asked the administration to review its recommendation for an approximate 15 per cent salary increase for the food service director.

Board member Lloyd Demel said he believes a 15 per cent salary increase was "intolerable," and added that a proposed five cent increase in the cost of school lunches could possibly be avoided if salary hikes were not so excessive.

According to the proposed budget presented by business manager Jean Meister, the price of a school lunch would increase next year from 40 cents to 45 cents and the price of milk would jump from 3 cents to 5 cents.

Mrs. Meister said the additional 5-cent cost of lunches is needed to offset higher food costs. The extra nickel per lunch is expected to generate an additional $10,000. Several parents at the meeting said they would not object to paying the extra five cents because they believe their children are receiving a good lunch under the current program.

Other board members agreed with Demel. Board member William Haase said the proposed salary hikes may be too high and member Ted Wattenberg echoed this sentiment.

Board member Frank Smith said he was hopeful that based on recent commodity market figures, the price of food may be coming down. He suggested that if a five cent increase is approved, the board make a mid-year review of costs to determine if the price of lunches could be returned to 40 cents.

The board approved a resolution abating taxes amounting to $47,816 on the 1974 bond and interest levy for the district.

The tax abatement was made possible by approval of an application to the Illinois Capital Assistance Program for reimbursement on bonds sold after Jan. 1, 1969.

After-school pay approved

The board approved an addendum to the 1974-75 contract agreement negotiated with the River Trails Education Assn. The addendum calls for an appropriation of $963 for after-school activity pay for teachers.

Architects offer several plans

A new campus for Oakton in 1977?

Oakton Community College will have a permanent campus by the fall of 1977 if plans proposed by architects are implemented.

Architects from Perkins and Will Architects in Chicago showed the Oakton Board of Trustees several possible designs for the college's permanent campus and revealed a time schedule for completing the project.

According to the schedule, a master plan for the college campus may be completed by November this year, construction could begin next spring and the buildings would be ready for occupancy by the fall of 1977. Oakton now leases facilities in Morton Grove.

Oakton is negotiating with the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese for purchase of a 170-acre site for the campus along the Des Plaines River between Golf and Central roads. Oakton already has received approval of the site from the Illinois Community College Board.

OAKTON MUST SEEK state approval of the master plan for the campus and the state must then approve funds for the construction. The state pays up to 75 per cent of the cost of community college construction. The remainder comes from local taxes.

The Oakton board Tuesday agreed to the schedule and said it would meet as often as possible to complete building specifications, the master plan and approve schematic designs which are necessary before construction can begin.

Project manager Fred Kolliat, of Perkins and Will, said tentative plans for the campus include five academic areas, a library, laboratory area, administrative office area, physical education and food service area and a student center. Because the campus is located on the flood plain of the Des Plaines River a retention pond will probably be necessary for the campus, he said.

Park View School near boiling point?

by LUISA GINETTI

The School Dist. 26 Board of Education plans to "closely monitor" the uneasy situation that exists at Park View School in Mount Prospect, according to board president Michael Sheyker.

Sheyker told a group of parents and teachers from the school Tuesday that the board and the administration are aware of the current animosities that exist between teachers at the school and Principal Tomkins Barnhart and said the board intends to "make Park View a smooth running school."

"We feel that the children are the most important consideration and we will monitor all our schools and watch the situation as it develops at Park View," Sheyker said.

The discussion of the Park View situation developed at Tuesday's board meeting following the board's decision to reinstate a fifth grade teacher who had been suspended for two days this week by Barnhart.

John Antonik, a tenured teacher at the school, allegedly misrepresented himself as principal of the school when talking to a parent on the phone last week.

THE TEACHER suspension brought several teachers and parents to the board meeting and precipitated a lengthy discussion about the tense feelings which exist at the school.

"The teachers are under stress and strain and it's affecting the students more than anyone else realizes," one parent said.

Max Brittain, a non-tenured teacher who will not be returning to Park View next year, said many teachers at the school are afraid to speak up for fear of reprisals.

"The teachers that remain who have taken a stand are fearful of actions that will or may be taken against them in the form of harassment," Brittain said.

Another teacher from the school said the faculty had tried to resolve the unrest through administrative channels by meeting with Supt. John Fridlund. Referring to a special Saturday board meeting in April in which the board decided to take no action to remove Barnhart, the teacher said the faculty felt they were being "unjustly attacked and put on trial" by comments from some parents.

SEVERAL PARENTS said they were confused about the situation at the time of the April meeting and didn't know who to defend. One parent said part of the defense shown for Barnhart was based on parents' desire to avoid another turnover in principals at the school. Park View has had six principals in the past seven years.

Board members also added their comments about the situation. "I think the harassment at the school has been mutual," board member Sylvia Lurie said, "and those who think the easiest way to solve the problem is by removing the head are oversimplifying the solution."

"When a community is torn apart by rumors it is difficult to deal with a situation," board member William Haase said. "It is not a simple problem but it is one which the board is keenly aware of."

Board member Lloyd Demel said he believes the "vinegar comments" of both sides indicate the parties involved do not have the interests of the children at heart. Demel added that the board is aware of the situation at Park View but such problems should be dealt with by the administration.

"The board is not an administrator; it is a policy-maker," Demel said.

IN RESPONSE to suggestions that an open meeting between the board, parents, teachers and Barnhart be held, board member Leora Rosen said a more suitable topic for discussion might be what kinds of programs should be implemented in the schools.

Mrs. Rosen added that it is difficult to evaluate a situation which is as heated as the problem at Park View. "It's difficult to find a light bulb when there is snow flying all over it," Mrs. Rosen said.

She added that what is needed now in her opinion is a general reduction of the excitement surrounding the matter.

Board member Frank Smith said he sensed from the direction of the discussion that there is a willingness among parents and teachers to work to solve the unrest at the school.

GARY RATHGEBER, president-elect of the River Trails Education Assn. and a teacher at Euclid School in Mount Prospect, said the discussion pointed out the frustrations that exist at the school and served the purpose of providing an open airing of feelings.

Barnhart, who had been present at the meeting through the board's decision on the teacher reinstatement, left before the discussion of the Park View situation began.

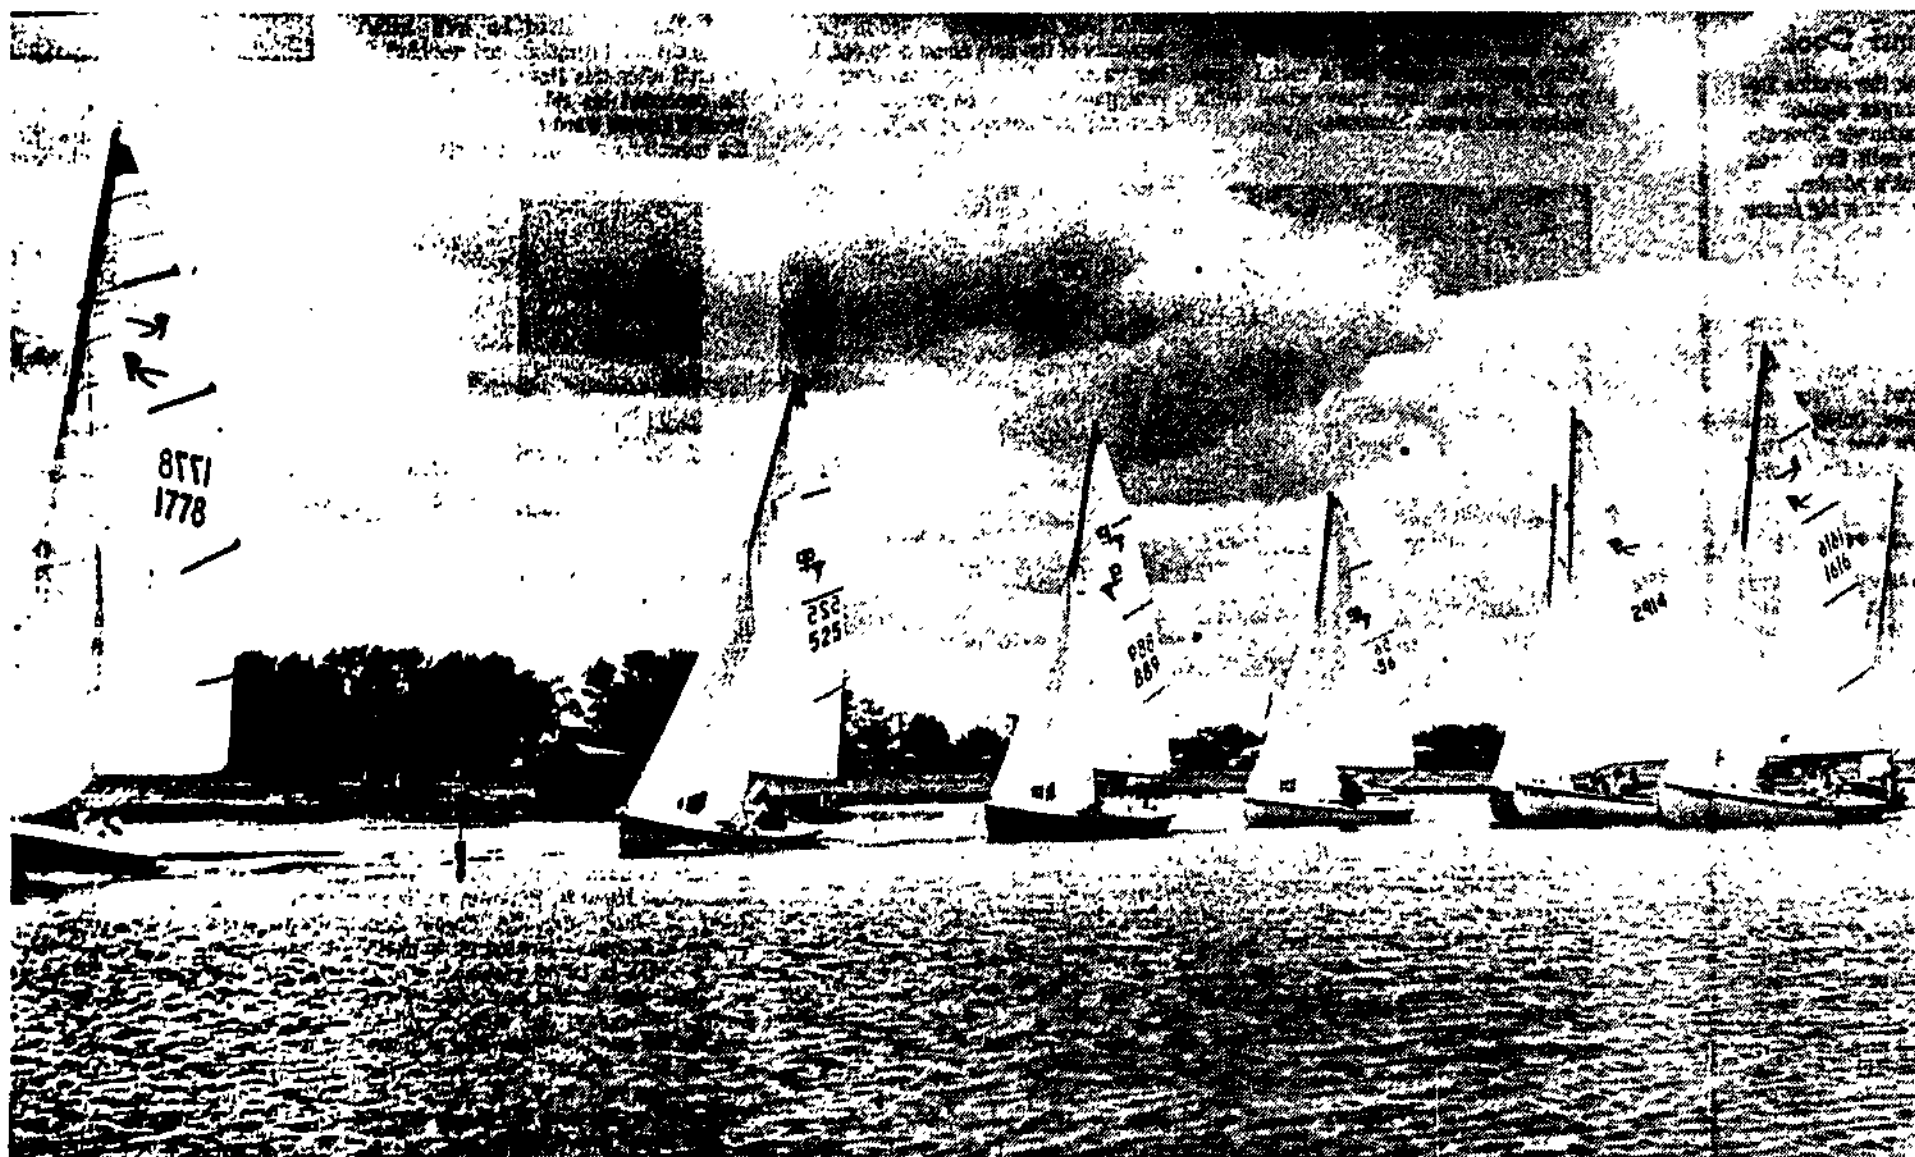

Antonik's reinstatement was recommended by Barnhart.

Window breaking causes $800 damage

Vahdals caused an estimated $800 damage after two separate window breaking incidents in Des Plaines, police said Wednesday.

Some $500 damage was caused when a window was broken, possibly with BBs, at W. Q. Landmarks, 69 N. Broadway. Police said the incident occurred between last Friday and Monday.

A front store window was broken at Cynthia Shop, 674 Graceland Ave., causing $300 damage, according to reports. A rock had been thrown through a window and set off a burglar alarm early Tuesday.

No more 'night soil'—please!

My dad and I had a vigorous discussion the other night with lots of expletives and yelling and screaming and shaking of heads. We weren't arguing with each other (I was brought up to never argue with my dad or face a slug in the mouth) — we were haranguing against dog owners — the nomads of the property owner.

Now is the season when dog owners are at their worst. My parkway — and that of my dad — have become nothing more than a big pooch potty. Trying to mow the grass is like playing an unorthodox game of hopscotch. Trying to keep the shoes of my dear sons clean is a lost cause. Trying to keep the dog owners off the grass — impossible.

The law is behind us — both in Des Plaines and Chicago. Chapter 7, section 1, letters B and D spell it out:

• Animal refuse or carcasses: (It is unlawful) to cause the carcass of any animal or any animal or vegetable matter, slops, swill, suds, garbage, filth, stable droppings or offal or noisome substance of any kind to be collected, deposited or to remain in any place in the City to the prejudice of others.

• Night Soil (you know what that is): To deposit any night soil, dead animal or other filth, offensive or noisome substance upon any lot, street, alley, park or other place.

A person can call the police (they love those calls) and sign a complaint against the owner of the dog. You can't sign a complaint against Fido the Poodle because he's just a dumb animal — it's his owner who's smart enough to lead him to your parkway instead of letting him go on his own property.

WHEN I BOUGHT my home I loved being on a corner lot. It seemed so much roomier — so much more grass.

Now I realize that having a 90-plus foot parkway along the side of my lot only gives me four times the work and clean-up of offal and the filthy, offensive and noisome substance as everyone else.

My dad bought this nice corner property for his business office in Chicago. It has a small, maybe five-foot parkway along the side to add that decorative touch of green.

Now it's green and brown. His neighbors are no more considerate than mine (and I must confess that little Tootsie who lives next door is only allowed to go in her own backyard) and from his stories it seems many are worse.

He told me about the little old man who was walking his dog and using the parkway potty one day. Dad caught him in the act and although my father is usually mild mannered he blew up. Not only did he blow up, he chased this rickety old man down the street threatening to punch him in the nose.

IT'S NOT AS THOUGH he hasn't tried. He's talked nicely to the dog owners, he's reasoned and pleaded. He's appealed to their moral character, their love of ecology, their sense of right and wrong. Eventually, he threatened, and now with the law on his side in Chicago, he's ready to go to court.

He's thought of paying his parkway, but reconsidered when the dog owners allowed their puppies to use the sidewalk in front of his office as a waste receptacle.

If the law fails he has one last ditch solution — he's going to dig the parkway down about 10 inches, pave the bottom and fill it with water.

Park program signups to open

The first of two registration sessions will be held Friday at the Rand Park gym for all Des Plaines Park District summer programs except summer day camp.

The session will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the gym, 2025 Miner St., and Monday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. for other residents wishing to sign up for programs.

Signups for day camp are in session at Lake Opeka Park, Howard and Leo streets, and at the park district office, 748 Pearson St. All but one of the camp sessions is filled, said park officials.

REGISTRATION PERIODS Friday and Monday are intended for park district residents only but nonresidents may register for the programs of their choice Tuesday at the Park District office.

David Markworth, park district recreation superintendent, said the more popular programs such as tennis, golf, sailing lessons and gymnastics probably will fill quickly. Some of the softball leagues already are closed.

He also mentioned that this year's slate includes some programs that are being offered for the first time in the summer, some have been expanded and a few are completely new.

Boosters meet tonight

The Maine West Athletic Boosters Club invites interested parents to attend a planning meeting to be held in the teacher's lounge tonight at 7:30.

The purpose of the Boosters is service to the school and to the athletes in all sports and to encourage the development of school spirit among students and the teams.

Rummage, bake sale slated

The San Lorenzo Montessori School is planning its annual rummage and bake sale Saturday and Sunday, June 8 and 9, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The nonprofit school is located at 2514 Ballard Rd. in Des Plaines, two blocks north of Dempster and one block west of Potter Rd.

More than 60 families are contributing a multitude of bargains. This year's goal is to pave the driveway.

Parents of the school are baking cakes, pies, coffee cakes, cookies, brownies and bread, as well as homemade popcorn. Hot dogs, coke and hot buttered popcorn will be sold and free coffee will be available.

A Saturday morning session has been added to the canoeing class, previously held only on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The American Red Cross sponsored course begins this Tuesday and runs through July 25.

Markworth also said a new approach will be taken to the increased leadership program for children from kindergarten to fourth-grade age.

"The concept is geared more to the outdoor-type experience to emphasize more of the outdoor activities. The kids will be taking field trips and things like that," he said. "The instructors will also be more specialized in nature studies and camp crafts."

SPECIAL-INTEREST programs for youth will include lessons in baton, ballet, children's ceramics, gymnastics, and guitar lessons, a new program this year.

Tumbling, dog training, bowling for beginners and horseback riding will also be offered.

Swimming programs for children and softball for men and women of all ages are also scheduled.

Instruction for advanced and beginning tennis players are set to begin this month at Maine West High School, Rand, West and South Parks with six lighted courts available at Rand Park.

This summer's special events will include four free public concerts, two in July and two in August, along with a Fourth of July celebration with a fireworks display.

Six free films will make up the Lawn Chair Theatre schedule of films to be shown at West and South Parks.

"Born Free" will be shown June 26, with "Big Red" scheduled for July 10. "The Monkey's Uncle" can be seen July 17, while "Tonka," "Toby Tyler" and "Where Angels Go Trouble Follows," have been scheduled for July 24, 31 and Aug. 7.

Area man, 29, charged with public indecency

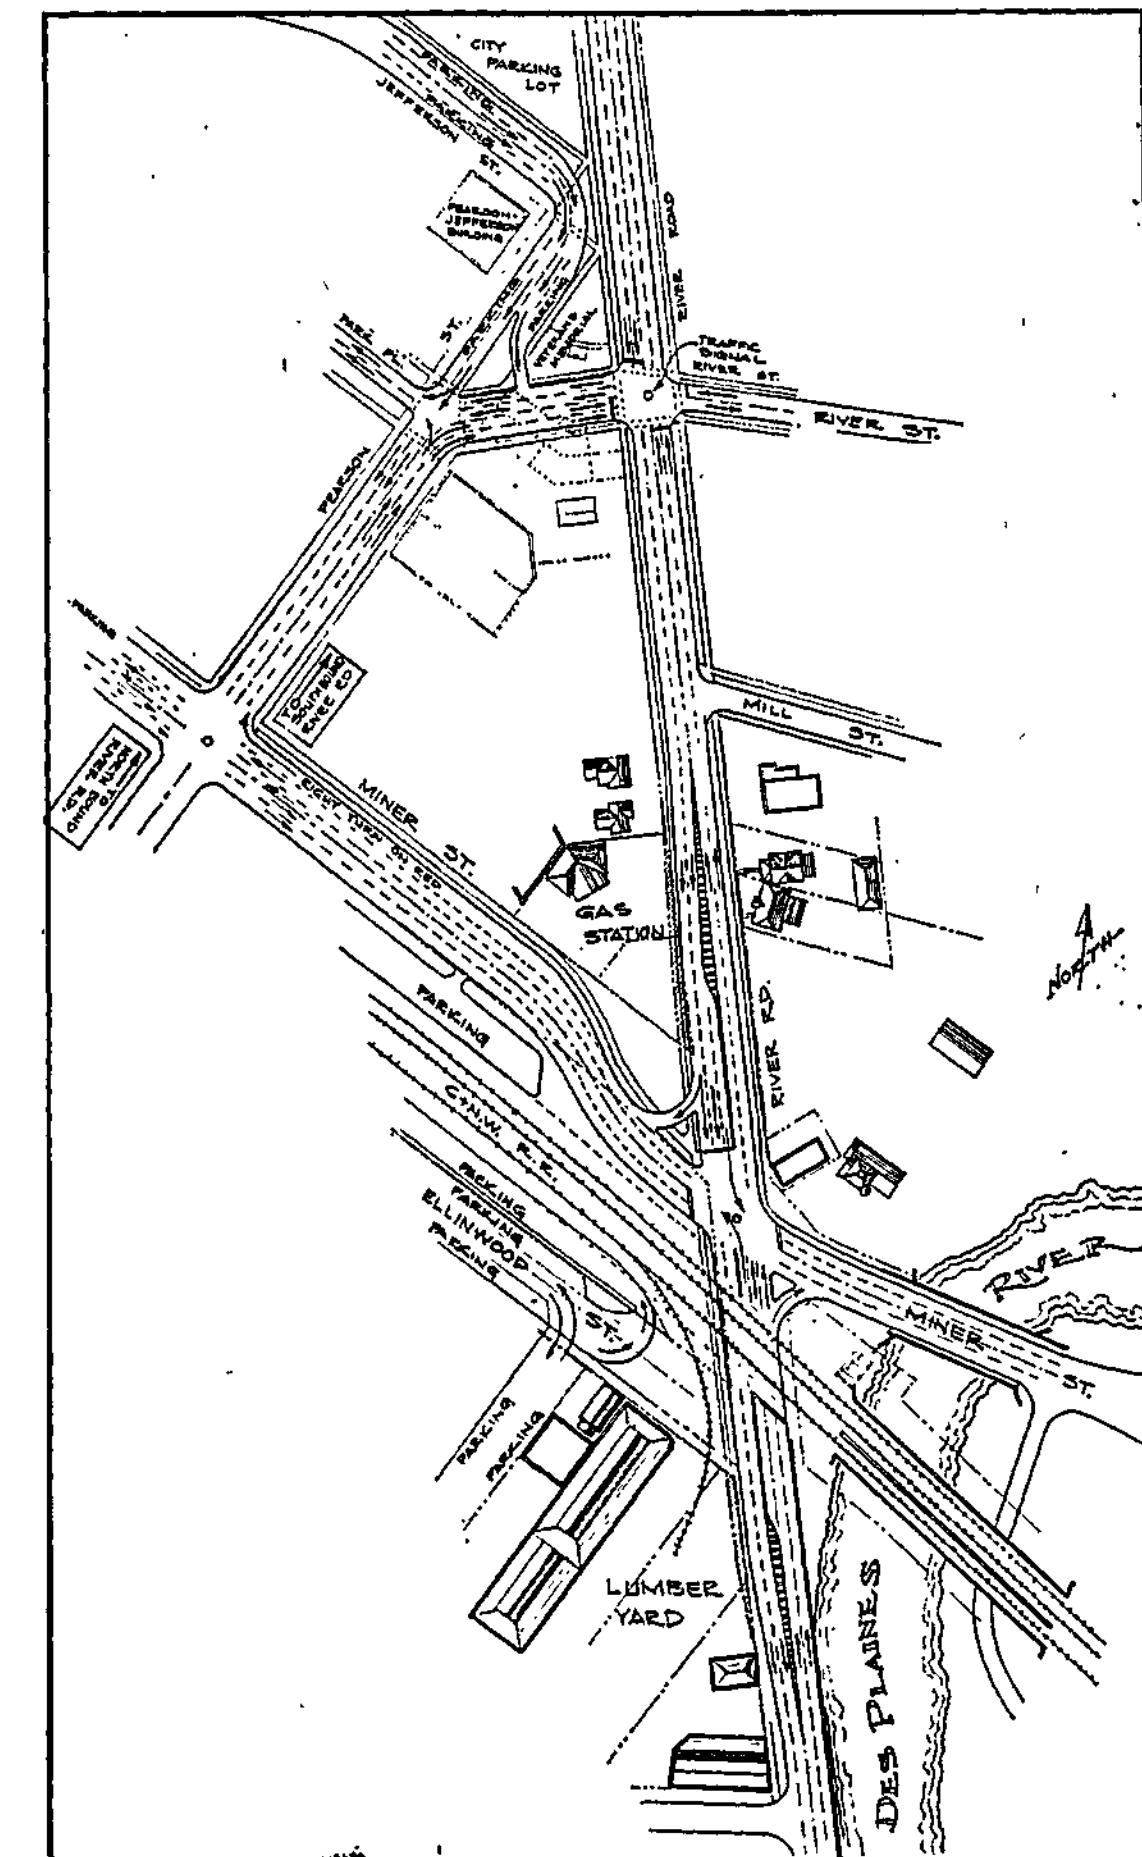

Police arrested an Elk Grove Township man after he allegedly exposed himself to two teen-age girl hitchhikers he reportedly picked up in Des Plaines.

Charged with public indecency was John Jones, 29, 7500 Elmhurst Rd. He was arrested at his home by detectives acting on a license number traced to him and a description provided by the two girls.

Police said Jones picked up the girls, both of Des Plaines, as they were walking along Wolf Road just north of Oakton Street on Tuesday.

After he exposed himself, the girls asked to be let out near Wolf and Forest Avenue. A radio dispatch with the description and license was put out and detectives went to the suspect's home and took him into custody.

Jones was later freed on $1,000 bond and will appear July 11 in the Des Plaines branch of circuit court.

AN INTERIM REMEDY will be proposed by the city officials for easing the traffic bottleneck at River Road and Miner Street in Des Plaines on June 18 when they meet with representatives of the Illinois

High school board OKs package

Teachers get 9.9% pay hike

by LINDA PUNCH
The Dist. 207 High School Board unanimously approved a 1974-75 pay schedule giving teachers an average 9.9 per cent pay increase.

The salary package proposal was approved at the board's regular meeting Monday night. Teacher union members ratified the agreement earlier in the day by a 6-to-1 vote.

Board member Leonard Grazian termed the pay hike "very generous but also very well deserved."

"Our district has a national reputation — we couldn't have gotten as far as we have without the good efforts of the faculty and administration," he said.

GRAZIAN SAID the board considered the rising cost of living and pay scales in comparable districts before granting the increase.

"If you compare our district's salary schedule with the salary schedule of other prestige districts, you'll find prior to this year, we fell a little behind," he said. "We hope the increase this year helped make up the difference."

Grazian noted that the board also "kept faith with the taxpayers" by granting a pay hike that fell within the district budget.

"Our budget is balanced and for the first time in many years, our educational tax rate will go down," he said.

ACCORDING to the salary agreement, a beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree will receive $8,630, an 8.2 per cent increase from the 1973-74 pay schedule. Top pay for a teacher with 20 years' experience and a doctorate is $21,765, an increase of 8.1 per cent from this year.

Teachers in the middle of the pay scale averaged a 10.5 per cent cost-of-living increase. In addition, these teachers will receive a 2.25 per cent increase for experience and education.

The total settlement reflects an approximate 12.1 per cent increase from the 1973-74 salary schedule and will cost the district an additional $1,237,030.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board approved a low bid of $153,600 from Rock Road Construction Co. for construction of an athletic field at Maine North High School. The development of outside athletic facilities — including a running track and football field — is part of the first phase of construction of the $6.5 million Maine North addition.

Supervisory architect Donald M. Stillwaugh said the bid was about $15,000 more than the estimated cost but said he was "not disturbed" by the increase. Other bids included $224,758 from Harris Construction Co. and $243,450 from Geo. Solitt Construction Co.

Construction manager Charles Martin said groundbreaking on the project could begin June 22 and the addition "should be under roof by December."

The Board also approved a resolution asking for a tax abatement of $91,380 for the 1974 levy. The district recently received $91,380 grant from the state to pay off about 25 per cent of bonds due this year.

State to get plans for River, Miner wide enough to accommodate another lane which would allow left turns from westbound Miner Street onto southbound River Road.

Preliminary cost estimates indicate that widening of the bridge would cost between $250,000 and $300,000. While no estimates have been prepared for the city's newest proposal to improve the intersection, the costs would be much less than widening the bridge, according to City Engineer Robert Bowen.

Ald. Richard Ward (8th) who heads the council's streets and traffic committee, said the intent of the improvements is to lessen congestion at the intersection.

THE CITY HAS been seeking to improve the intersection for a number of years, but the plans have been continually delayed.

Some of the initial plans called for an overpass or underpass for River Road at Miner Street, but engineers first discarded the underpass concept because the close proximity of the Des Plaines River which would make an underpass impractical to build.

Later, a combined plan for the River Road overpass with a leg taking Thacker Street over the Des Plaines River was delayed because the Cook County Forest Preserve District refused to allow construction on its property.

During the course of the deliberations over the improvement of the intersection, Des Plaines officials have said the project was crucial to the success of the proposed downtown redevelopment project.

A CITIZENS' GROUP also had opposed the construction of the proposed overpass because of the use of the forest preserve land for the structure.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said late last year that he had requested Cook County Comr. Floyd Fulla to make a new inquiry into the possibility of building the overpass, but no further report was ever made on those talks.

No definite timetable has been established by the state for construction of the River Road overpass.

Gets bachelor's degree

In Roppolo subdivision

Higgins Creek anti-flood dredging to begin soon

The cleaning and dredging of Higgins Creek, is expected to alleviate flooding problems in the Roppolo subdivision of Elk Grove Township, will start soon, perhaps as early as next week.

Alfred Stiel, highway commissioner for Elk Grove Township, said the wait for approval for the project from the Illinois Department of Waterways is holding back the start of dredging. Elk Grove Township is using $4,500 in revenue-sharing funds to finance the project.

Stiel said he has been unable to contact the Department but hopes to do so this week.

"I'd like to start on the project next week," said Stiel. "The creek is down and the ground is dry plus with the strikes, there are a lot of heavy equipment operators available right now."

Milburn Brothers Inc. of Mount Prospect was the low bidder for the creek cleanup project, which is expected to channel storm water into the creek and prevent it from overflowing into the subdivision.

TOWNSHIP SUPERVISOR Richard Hall said he wasn't sure whether the creek dredging would end the flooding problem in the subdivision, but said it would "reduce it considerably." He said, "You can do this to help out during regular rains, but during heavy rains we need the tunnels."

Hall was referring to a system of deep underground tunnels leading into underground water retention areas being considered by the Metropolitan Sanitary District, but are years in the future.

The creek dredging will start at Higgins Road and continue to the west edge of the subdivision, according to Stiel.

He said the creek is severely clogged, mainly due to a large amount of debris and improper fill. "If we can put the creek back into the shape it was in a few years ago, the water should flow with no trouble," said Stiel.

Area residents are suing developers near the subdivision for altering storm water flow and sought help from the township as a temporary solution to their flooding problem.

The creek had become so cluttered with debris that water was backing out of the creek into a drainage ditch in the subdivision. The ditch, designed to channel storm-water runoff into the creek, would then overflow into the subdivision.

Planners to rule tonight on funeral home proposal

The Elk Grove Village Plan Commission is expected to rule tonight on a resident's request to build a funeral home and residence at Arlington Heights Road and Clearmont Drive.

Funeral director Anthony Maioriello petitioned for rezoning of his property to allow construction of a funeral home in mid-April. His request has met opposition from local homeowners.

The funeral parlor would have entrances and exits on four-lane Arlington Heights Road and Clearmont Drive. Maioriello said the home will be used less frequently than other businesses and would generate little traffic except during wakes.

The funeral director said the old frame structure on the site will be destroyed after the new facility is built and the property landscaped to allow for bush screening for neighboring lots.

MAIORIELLO'S plans call for a two-story brick building with mansard roof, underground basement and garage, first floor storage, work areas and two chapels. The building would also have family living quarters on the top floor. A parking lot for 75 cars is also planned.

A petition opposing the zoning variation and signed by 270 persons was presented to the plan commission at its May 8 meeting.

Residents objecting to the request said the lot was zoned residential and a variation could lead to further encroachment of business into a residential neighborhood.

Residents also said the funeral home would create traffic problems and that landscaping and development of the site would spoil the open view.

MAIORIELLO'S attorney noted that a nursery is located across the street from the site and there are businesses one block away. A proposed senior citizens' project is located one block south of the proposed funeral home.

The attorney also said the parking area is large enough to allow formation of processions and there would be no parking on adjoining streets.

Maioriello said area clergymen and older residents he has polled are in favor of the funeral home. A spokesman for the Elk Grove Senior Citizens Club said elderly residents "would appreciate the comfort of knowing a funeral home is nearby."

The commission meets at 8 p.m. in the Elk Grove Village Hall, 801 Wellington Ave.

Vandals again hit construction site

Vandals again struck at a construction site in Elk Grove Village, causing an undetermined amount of damage to unoccupied homes, police said Wednesday.

According to reports, eight windows were discovered broken while at least 15 water pipes were broken from their fixtures between 425 and 433 Arlington Heights Rd. Three sump pumps were also damaged.

Police said the vandals probably struck between May 15 and Tuesday.

In another incident, vandals did $100 damage by shooting out a window, probably with a BB gun or slingshot, in a truck owned by Frank Reid Jr.

Reid, 810 Lincoln, told police the truck was left outside his apartment late Monday or early Tuesday when the damage was done.

Cat burglars on the prowl in village; lock your doors

Cat burglars have struck six times in one month in Elk Grove Village and local police are warning residents to lock their doors and windows.

Police Lt. William Kohnke said Wednesday that cat burglars are possibly the most dangerous type of break-in artists and residents should be particularly alert to suspicious persons walking or driving around their homes.

"Cat burglars are noted for their silence. They slip into homes when residents are sleeping and steal small—but often valuable—possessions," he said. "They have been known to creep right past the sleeping family dog and enter a bedroom without awakening the occupants."

KOHNKE SAID the Elk Grove Village burglars apparently have been hitting homes a block or two from the main arteries in town. Working as a team, one or more of the burglars are dropped off in a residential neighborhood and later picked up by the driver.

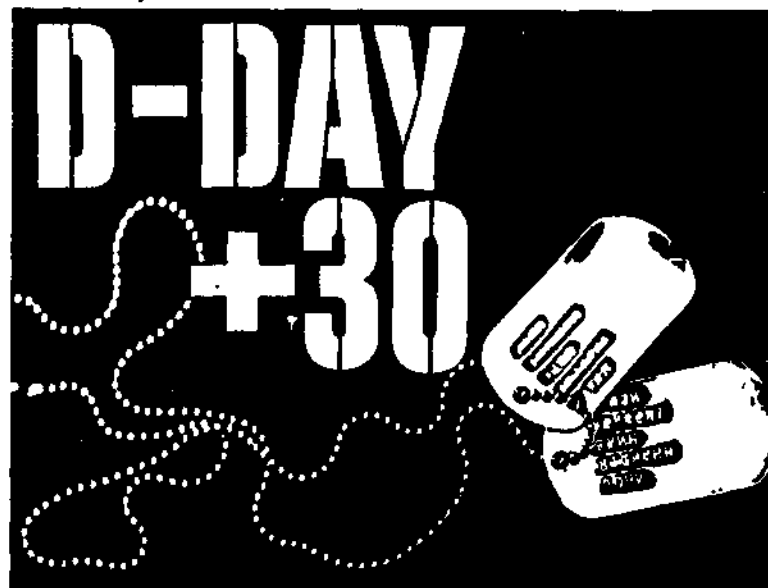

"The cat burglars walk around the back of houses on foot and try all the windows and sliding patio doors," he said. "They don't force entry into a home by using a pry tool; they just keep trying doors and windows until they find one that's open and enter the home."

In an incident Monday, a cat burglar walked into a home where 12 persons and a dog were asleep. Police said $21

And the 'Duke' recalls...

'We didn't find out we were going until the night before . . . we just loaded up and went'

by BARRY SIGALE

It was the greatest assault in the history of warfare; an assault on a continent, on an opposing army, and on the idea of fascism.

On the Allied side 30 years ago today there were some 2 million men. And of the thousands who died on the beaches and in the hedgerows and of the thousands who came back there was a GI named Duke Kopplin.

William "Duke" Kopplin, who joined the army as a buck private and left it as a major in the combat engineers after the conquest of Europe, stepped onto the beaches of Normandy on D-Day plus one day. He was part of a generation of men for whom the war was something to be part of.

FOR DUKE KOPPLIN, a resident of Arlington Heights and a 60-year-old businessman who works as a cost accountant in Melrose Park, the D-Day invasion was also the time he was notified of the birth of his son.

News that William Kopplin Jr. had been born reached Kopplin at Swansea, England, shortly before he sailed for France and the invasion.

He wasn't worried about the possibility of never getting to see his son. "If you go into war with the thought that you might get killed, you're a dead duck already," he said. "I figured if it was my time to go it was going to be."

Kopplin landed at the beachhead at Normandy, France, with a reinforced platoon of 45 men. Though their main task in the Second Engineer Combat Battalion was to build bridges they were acting as front line troops in the face of German resistance.

"I remember they were firing at us with machine guns from a church tower," said platoon commander Kopplin of a skirmish at the village of Vermeille Sur Mer where the invasion began 30 years ago today. "We got off the road and into the ditches." Finally, after a lengthy battle, they took the position and chased the enemy away. It was the first of many such victories that would bring the Germans to their knees.

IT WAS only right that Kopplin should share in a piece of America's greatest victory and come back as a war hero with honors.

WILLIAM "DUKE" KOPPLIN of Arlington Heights was an American war hero during World War II as a platoon commander in the 2nd Engineer Combat Battalion. Entering as a buck private and leaving as a major, Kopplin exemplified the men who battled the Germans with a massive attack that began June 6, 1944. D-Day, as it was called 30 years ago today, was the beginning of the end of Hitler's Germany.

Kopplin, nicknamed Duke when he was a kid because his middle name was Earl, could have easily been tagged that way as a result of his exploits during the war.

He enlisted in 1939, met his wife when he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston in Texas and spent some time in training at Camp McCoy, Wis. They were married in 1942 and shortly after he was shipped overseas in a cloak of secrecy.

He and his men were transported at midnight in a darkened train to the New York harbor and sent by boat off to Belfast, Ireland, to await further instructions. The division might have remained at home a while longer if it hadn't been for radio commentator Walter Winchell, said Kopplin. "Winchell said,

"Where's that famous Second Division?" Kopplin recalled. "Two days later we had orders to move out."

BEFORE HIS war days were over, Kopplin had earned the Silver Star ("For Gallantry in Action"), the Purple Heart and other medals. He was wounded in action and sent to England to recover and was greeted with a resounding welcome home at a New York celebration at the same harbor he had left to go to war.

During the war he proved to be an outstanding soldier. The main thrust of his war activity began at Normandy.

"We didn't find out we were going until the night before," said Kopplin. "We just loaded up and went. It was the biggest flotilla of boats you've ever seen." Kopplin said he would have taken part in action on D-Day itself if it wasn't for a "snafu" in the

'You'll never see it again,' general says

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Thirty years after the Allied invasion of Normandy in World War II, Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton believes there may never again be a troop movement of the size and scope of D-Day.

"You'll probably never see something of that type," said the general who led the U.S. Eighth Army Corps against the Nazis in the Battle of the Bulge.

"There's been such improvements in the air and in weapons, that I doubt you could concentrate and then transport troops across a channel like that."

"Of course, we didn't have the opposition from the Germans in the air. We had absolute supremacy in the air. When I got into the rendezvous area off the coast of France, I didn't

KOPPLIN RECEIVED the Silver Star for his war exploits. He was part of a two-man detail removing mines from a bridge Americans wanted to cross. Under heavy enemy fire the two men succeeded and the Germans driven out. Of the honor bestowed on him he said in a letter home, "I still don't think I deserved it."

He struck a handsome pose in combat regalia.

Township wrapup

Auditors approve own insurance

The Elk Grove Township board of auditors voted to spend more than $37 a month to provide free hospitalization, major medical and life insurance for themselves and eight other township employees.

The board accepted a bid Monday night from Prudential Insurance Co. agent Jerry Stark for a $572.80 monthly premium. Five other bids included another Prudential agent's bid for $676.10.

Both Prudential bids had the same provisions and were prepared at the same office in Florida, Auditor Bernard Lee said. When the township requested insurance bids, it issued a statement that three township officials earn more than $10,000 a year, Lee said.

However, he said the township "does not know for a fact" whether the agent who submitted the lowest bid used the earnings information in preparing the policy.

If the agent cannot write the policy at the price he quoted, the township will re-bid, Lee said. He said it wouldn't be fair to just pick the next-lowest existing bid, because "all the others differed slightly in what they were proposing."

Elk Grove is the first township in the area to provide all of the approved insurance benefits to both elected officials and employees.

Only the two Prudential bids met all of the township's seven provisions, which are:

- 100 per cent hospital benefits with a $5,000 maximum and an unlimited individual maximum.
- $100 a year deductible.
- A $1,200 maximum in surgical benefits.
- $2,000 in life insurance benefits.
- $11 a day for in-hospital doctor calls up to a maximum of $1,320.
- $100 a year for diagnostic X-ray and laboratory benefits.
- $300 maximum in supplemental accident benefits.

The township budgeted $6,700 for the insurance. Lee said there won't be any problems in paying for the insurance which will cost $6,873.60.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall, Highway Comr. Alfred Stell, Clerk George Busse, Assessor Charles Hodlmaier, and auditors Walter Bartley, Larry Hiltze, Wayne Hult, and Lee are eligible for benefits. All but Stell are part-time elected officials. Part-time office workers are not eligible.

Special meeting called

The board of auditors called a special township meeting for June 27 at 8 p.m. to consider three funding matters.

The officials will consider a resolution authorizing them to provide mental health services — which would include services for alcohol- and drug-addicted and mentally retarded persons — by appropriating funds to state-approved mental health agencies in the area, that have existed for more than one year.

Also Senior Citizens of Elk Grove Township, Inc., has petitioned the board for $10,000 for the organization.

The board was also asked to transfer $4,500 from revenue-sharing funds to the Elk Grove Township road and bridge fund, to dredge and improve drainage facilities to help prevent flooding in the Roppolo Drive vicinity.

Township rep sought

Elk Grove Township has been asked to appoint a representative to the Northwest Opportunity Center board, an agency for helping low-income families.

The center coordinates four Northwest suburban Headstart programs, legal aid, food stamps, food aid and job placement programs and is sponsored by the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity.

Diane Burke, of unincorporated Arlington Heights, a past president of Headstart, explained the function of the Opportunity Center to the board. Township supervisor Richard Hall suggested Mrs. Burke be appointed representative, but the board voted to postpone action for further study.

More workers than jobs

The township's Youth Employment Program has more applicants than available jobs, project director Nita Stamm said in her monthly report.

She presented the report to the township board of auditors Monday, adding that area employers have slowly been calling with job openings.

Quick settlement unlikely

Mediator weighed for salary talks

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Salary talks appear to be heating up in High School Dist. 211 in the wake of a bargaining session between teachers and the board of education Tuesday night.

Teachers now say a contract settlement is unlikely before school is dismissed this year and they are considering asking for a mediator to decide the issue.

Teacher negotiator Dan O'Brien said the board could not answer the teachers' request Tuesday night for figures showing how much money the district has to spend on new salary contracts next year. The figures the board's negotiators came up with were inaccurate, says O'Brien, and they had to meet among themselves to make revisions.

"THE BOARD DOESN'T know what it's doing," said O'Brien, who added that the board's "credibility is lost" due to its "slight of hand with figures."

"Both sides for the past two years have constantly said that we are getting along well and that there is no animosity and we haven't polarized the issues. The board's performance last night has caused that situation to change," O'Brien said Wednesday. "We are no longer getting along well."

The teachers are asking for a 10 per cent increase in salary next year, raising the base salary to $9,850 to keep up with the rise in the cost of living.

The board has proposed a 6.2 per cent increase in salary for teachers, saying the district is limited in its income.

Teachers had hoped to settle contracts before school is out this month. O'Brien said Wednesday "That possibility is becoming dimmer and dimmer." O'Brien said, "We're very far apart in salary."

AFTER THE BOARD'S negotiators failed to produce the figure requested by teachers Tuesday night, O'Brien said teacher negotiators "seriously discussed the possibility of impasse." Through impasse procedure, the two sides can agree to bring in a mediator if no substantial movement is made on either side of the bargaining table. The mediator's decision is not binding on the board or the teachers.

More than 30 teachers stood outside the district's administration center Tuesday night as board and teacher negotiators walked into the building. Several of the teachers said they were there to show support for their negotiating team and Fremd High School. Teacher Karma Johnson added, "I think I'd like to see education be a little higher priority in Dist. 211 and I'd like to see the board treat our negotiators as people."

The teachers also held a rally Monday night to support their negotiators. More than 250 of the district's 505 teachers attended.

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek, who is chairman of the board's negotiating committee, said he was hesitant to comment on negotiations Wednesday. "I don't want to try to negotiate in the press," he said. He said he was not disturbed by the teachers' appearance Tuesday night or the rally the night before.

CREEK SAID HE DID present some figures to teachers Tuesday to combat their claims that teachers' salaries have not kept up with the cost of living. The cost of living has gone up 43 per cent since 1967, said Creek, but a teacher who has been working in Dist. 211 since then and now has a master's degree has received a salary increase of 136 per cent.

"When you start at a poverty level and increase 136 per cent that's not much of an increase," said O'Brien Wednesday. "The base salary in 1967 was $6,000 and at that rate we could apply for food stamps."

O'Brien said the only change in the proposed salary contract package came from the board Tuesday night. The board had proposed a 15 per cent increase in the amount of money for teacher life insurance, but Tuesday offered to pay life insurance in the same amount as to an individual teacher's salary. The total amount of dollars involved in the new proposal is lower than the board's previous offer, said O'Brien.

Attorney, prosecutor get pay increases

Elk Grove Village trustees raised salaries for the village's attorney and prosecutor, costing at least an additional $100 a month.

The officials voted at Tuesday's village board meeting to raise the attorney's salary from $30 to $35 per hour and raise the prosecutor's pay from $350 to $450 a month.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert receives a $400 monthly retainer from the village and is paid a salary for extra work not covered by the retainer.

Village Prosecutor Howard Kaufman receives a monthly salary for working in and preparing for traffic and misdemeanor court. Court is held every Wednesday.

THE CELESTRON TELESCOPE is focused at the new observatory at Eisenhower Junior High School by student assistant Joe Mayenschein. Mayenschein, a Schaumburg High School student, helps answer questions and operate the astronomy facility. The observatory is open to the public Friday nights.

Sky's the limit for junior high astronomers

by JUDY JOBBITT

The sky's the limit for students in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

Students now learn astronomy by using the observatory at Eisenhower Junior High School, 800 W. Hassell Rd., Hoffman Estates.

The center of attraction is the 14-inch celestron telescope mounted on a nine-foot cement block pillar. It can locate distant stars, nebula and other galaxies.

The new addition to the district complements the astronomy curriculum taught in the third and eighth grades. Astronomy also is being piloted for the sixth grade science curriculum.

THE DISTRICT had a portable telescope that was transported between the schools before the observatory was set up. The problem with the portable scope, said Larry Small, science consultant, was properly focusing it on the North Star. Often youngsters, excited about looking through a telescope, would never get it focused on any object in the sky, he said. It also did not have the magnifying power the celestron scope offers.

The telescope can magnify 1,500 times through the 14-inch reflector mirror. It also follows the North Star so teachers can be sure students are seeing the proper objects, he said.

In the future, advanced eighth grade students will be able to photograph the skies with the telescope, he said.

The centralized observatory also allows the district to purchase better and more models for the astronomy units, he said. All students will have the opportunity to use the equipment, he said.

Small anticipates more than 2,000 students and parents will use the observatory within the next year. The observatory is open to the public Friday nights from 9 to 10. Admittance is free, but advance tickets are necessary for admission. To obtain tickets, interested persons should contact the science office at 894-7420.

Unit school study tops board agenda

The unit school district study and next year's lunch program will be discussed at the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education meeting tonight at 8 p.m. at Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 Dede Rd., Schaumburg.

James Blankenship, vice chairman of the unit district committee, will present the letter sent him by Ralph Belnap, director of the study, that explains Belnap's position on the study.

Last week Belnap returned the $4,750 fee paid him for conducting the study because no one seemed pleased with the report, a committee member said.

Belnap headed a team of Northern Illinois University professors who were hired to conduct a unit district study for Schaumburg Township. The controversial report was presented May 10.

BELNAP SAID HIS reasons for returning the money and disassociating himself and the study from the committee in the letter. Blankenship refused to disclose the contents of the letter until tonight's meeting.

The committee had directed Belnap to conduct a study on the feasibility of unit districts in the township and to analyze the current education systems. A unit district would combine elementary and high under a single administration and school board.

The study recommended that unit districts be established in this area. Controversy arose when a group of 10 citizens circulated petitions for a Schaumburg area unit district to protect Schaumburg's tax base.

Although Dist. 54 board members have studied the report, no official board position has been made. Blankenship and Belnap were invited to attend tonight's board meeting to answer questions about the study and proposed unit districts.

Weed law violators hard to spot

Elk Grove Village officials are having trouble getting information from Cook County about owners of undeveloped property in the village who have allowed weeds on their property to grow too high.

The village requested the names of owners and/or taxpayers for some property which has weeds taller than Elk Grove's eight-inch limit, but so far Cook County has not sent the information, Village Mgr. Charles Willis reported at the village board meeting Tuesday.

A village ordinance states weeds cannot be taller than eight inches. The village health officer can notify a property owner or occupant that the weeds are too high and must be cut within 10 days. After 10 days the health officer can have the weeds trimmed and bill the property owner or occupant.

However, in some cases of vacant land in the village industrial park, officials have not been able to find out who owns the land and thus cannot bill the owners. Officials requested tax information from Cook County but have not yet received it.

If a weed-trimming bill is not paid within 60 days after it is issued, the village can file with the county a lien on the property.

Willis said residential property owners have been cooperating with the ordinance.

Cat burglars strike while residents sleep was taken from one of the bedrooms and another $15 and credit cards were stolen from a purse in the kitchen of the home.

"They won't take anything they can't carry off," said Kohnke. "The biggest thing they've taken so far here was a very small television set. Mostly they look for cash, wallets, credit cards and jewelry."

THE LIEUTENANT said police have added extra patrols in the village but need the help of citizens to arrest the offenders.

"People should lock all their doors and windows and turn on the patio lights behind their homes. These men can hide easily in any dark area and a cruising squad car can't see behind the houses," he said.

The cat burglars usually strike between 11 p.m. and 5 a.m. Residents who see suspicious persons or cars should call the police at 430-3900.

"People shouldn't think they are being a nuisance by calling police. If they hear their dog barking or strange noises they should alert us immediately and stay on the phone until we get there," he said.

KOHINKE EMPHASIZED that citizens should not take any overt action at all if they are awakened by one of the burglars. "They can be very dangerous."

"Residents who are out on the street late at night might be stopped and questioned by police," Kohnke said. "We don't want people to take offense at this. We want them to know we're just trying to stop a problem."

Leaflets are being distributed in the village by police to further warn people of the wave of cat burglaries.

SIGHT AND VISION, important to learning, were tested schoolers. Kimberly Leverenz, 5, enjoyed her vision test this week in Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 pre- while Matthew Bilske, 4, (right) donned earphones.

Minimum-wage law could reduce jobs

The new minimum-wage law could cut the number of students employed by the Schaumburg Township Public Library over the years, said Michael Madden, library director.

The library board has "felt a moral responsibility to have a lot of students on the staff" he said. Under the new law, "for a few pennies more you can hire an adult," he said.

Madden cited three provisions in the law that will hurt student employment:

- Full-time students may work a maximum of only 20 hours a week.
- The amount of student help may not equal more than 10 per cent of the total employment or the same ratio when the law went into effect.
- The higher minimum wage.

Because the library could be classified as a "service establishment," students may be paid $1.62 under the new law. Students had been paid $1.45 at the library before the law went into effect.

Currently about 24 students are on the library staff that employs 69 persons.

When students leave the staff in August, Madden said, the question will arise whether they should be replaced with adults or students. Students' hours are not the best, he said, and many of their duties could be done better during school hours.

Hardware equipment haul valued at $550

A water heater, sump pump and hardware equipment worth $550 were stolen from a factory under construction near 1371 Brummel, according to Elk Grove Village police.

The thieves got into a warehouse sometime between Friday and Monday at the site where the equipment was stored. The stolen property was owned by Cardinal Plumbing of Elk Grove Village.

One woman who works nearby told police she saw a light colored truck in the area Friday.

Thieves also walked off with a portable generator from a village building at 668 Landmeier Rd., according to police.

The generator, valued at $325, was stolen from the north entrance outside the building.

Chemicals worth $9,000 stolen

Elk Grove Village police are investigating the apparent theft of $9,000 worth of Beryllium, a metallic chemical used in mold making, from the Haydorf Plastics Co., 2424 Greenleaf, Elk Grove Village.

According to police reports, 113 pieces of the substance were stolen from a tool room of the plant, probably between April 30 and May 21.

The incident was reported to police Monday when five Beryllium pieces were discovered missing. Inventory checks were then made by company officials and it was learned that many other pieces were stolen.

Seven policemen earn commendations

Citations for seven Elk Grove Village policemen for outstanding work were awarded at Tuesday's village board meeting.

Lt. William Kohnke was commended for preventing a May 20 suicide attempt. A local man threatened to kill himself or shoot any policeman who came near him, but Kohnke laid down his gun and went into the house to talk to the man. A few minutes later Kohnke and the man emerged unharmed and the case was ended.

Sgt. Jay Akely and Patrolman Kevin

Roeske were cited for arresting two suspected robbers after a high-speed chase. Akely spotted the car with the suspects and began the chase.

Patrolman Gary Kuehnelt and Melvin Mack were commended for investigative work they did in February in a burglary case in the village industrial park. Seven persons were arrested in connection with 18 burglaries in the industrial park.

Kuehnelt was also cited for what Police Chief Harry Jenkins termed a "heroic effort" to prevent an attempted suicide. A woman tried to throw herself off the 190 overpass onto the highway, but Kuehnelt caught her by the wrists just as she let go of the bridge railing.

PATROLMAN JON Scharpenter was commended for an April 7 arrest of an armed man who allegedly had murdered one person.

Patrolman Martin Waltzman received commendation for investigating two suspicious cars. Both cars turned out to be stolen and Waltzman arrested four occupants of one car.

Leonard phased out of health post

Personnel changes planned for municipal employees

by JOANN VAN WYE

Elimination of some municipal jobs and reshuffling of employees are under way in Palatine.

The appointment of Kenneth Dopp as acting director of environmental health and the firing of Robert L. Leonard due to a phasing out of his job in the health department are among the changes.

Official announcement of the personnel changes will be made by Village Mgr. Anton Harwig to the village board Monday.

The changes follow a three-hour executive session with the village board last Monday and meetings Harwig has held with department heads and employees this week.

HARWIG, CONTACTED Wednesday, would not confirm that he will recommend Dopp's appointment as acting director and the phasing out of Leonard's position. He said he would have no comment on personnel changes until Monday. Richard Dawson's resignation as director of environmental health is effective Friday. Dawson resigned to take a job in Tucson, Ariz.

Leonard was one of several witnesses for former Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner at recent public hearings to determine if Centner's removal as chief was politically motivated. Leonard testified he had been contacted by a Palatine businessman that newly elected trustees were seeking businessmen's advice on a replacement for Dawson.

Leonard confirmed he had been notified on Tuesday by Harwig that his job was being phased out effective July 12. He refused to comment on whether his removal was politically motivated stating, "I don't hold any grudges against anyone. If it's political, it's political. If it's not, it's not."

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones could not be reached for comment.

TRUSTEE FRED H. Zajonc said he was not aware Leonard's job had been eliminated but added he "wouldn't be surprised because Dawson was a thorn in their (the Republican trustees) side and so was Leonard." Zajonc said some of the trustees had indicated they felt Leonard's performance was not up to standards.

Dopp confirmed that he had met with Harwig and Leonard this week but said nothing was official.

"We have been asked to give Mr. Harwig a chance to discuss the personnel situation with other department heads and employees involved before commenting," said Dopp.

Illinois State Law requires that environmental sanitation work be done by a registered sanitarian or engineer unless the work is done under the supervision of a registered sanitarian.

Leonard is a registered sanitarian but Dopp is not.

LEONARD JOINED THE health department in 1969 as a part-time employee. He became a fulltime employee in 1971. His primary responsibilities have been inspection of commercial establishments including restaurants, hotels, swimming pools and drycleaners.

Dopp joined the health department two years ago as an environmental technician. His primary responsibilities have been the complaint program, civil defense, and first aid.

Leonard's firing follows a recommendation by the Palatine Board of Health last Friday that Leonard be appointed acting director of health until a fulltime director is hired.

The board of health in a letter to the village board, asked Harwig and Jones to be included in the selection of new director. It was recommended in the letter that the board of health solicit applicants, screen and review applicants and present a list of qualified applicants to a selection committee composed of the village manager, president and chairman of the board of health.

Richard Pankey, board of health chairman, said he has received no response to his letter.

And the 'Duke' recalls...

'We didn't find out we were going until the night before . . . we just loaded up and went'

by BARRY SIGALE

It was the greatest assault in the history of warfare; an assault on a continent, on an opposing army, and on the idea of fascism.

On the Allied side 30 years ago today there were some 2 million men. And of the thousands who died on the beaches and in the hedgerows and of the thousands who came back there was a GI named Duke Kopplin.

William "Duke" Kopplin, who joined the army as a buck private and left it as a major in the combat engineers after the conquest of Europe, stepped onto the beaches of Normandy on D-Day plus one day. He was part of a generation of men for whom the war was something to be part of.

FOR DUKE KOPPLIN, a resident of Arlington Heights and a 60-year-old businessman who works as a cost accountant in Melrose Park, the D-Day invasion was also the time he was notified of the birth of his son.

News that William Kopplin Jr. had been born reached Kopplin at Swans, England, shortly before he sailed for France and the invasion.

He wasn't worried about the possibility of never getting to see his son. "If you go into war with the thought that you might get killed, you're a dead duck already," he said. "I figured if it was my time to go it was going to be."

Kopplin landed at the beachhead at Normandy, France, with a reinforced platoon of 45 men. Though their main task in the Second Engineer Combat Battalion was to build bridges they were acting as front line troops in the face of German resistance.

"I remember they were firing at us with machine guns from a church tower," said platoon commander Kopplin of a skirmish at the village of Vermeille Sur Mer where the invasion began 30 years ago today. "We got off the road and into the ditches." Finally, after a lengthy battle, they took the position and chased the enemy away. It was the first of many such victories that would bring the Germans to their knees.

IT WAS only right that Kopplin should share in a piece of America's greatest victory and come back as a war hero with honors.

WILLIAM "DUKE" KOPPLIN of Arlington Heights was an American war hero during World War II as a platoon commander in the 2nd Engineer Combat Battalion. Entering as a buck private and leaving as a major, Kopplin exemplified the men who battled the Germans with a massive attack that began June 6, 1944. D-Day, as it was called 30 years ago today, was the beginning of the end of Hitler's Germany.

Kopplin, nicknamed Duke when he was a kid because his middle name was Earl, could have easily been tagged that way as a result of his exploits during the war.

He enlisted in 1939, met his wife when he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston in Texas and spent some time in training at Camp McCoy, Wis. They were married in 1942 and shortly after he was shipped overseas in a cloak of secrecy.

He and his men were transported at midnight in a darkened train to the New York harbor and sent by boat off to Belfast, Ireland, to await further instructions. The division might have remained at home a while longer if it hadn't been for radio commentator Walter Winchell, said Kopplin. "Winchell said,

"Where's that famous Second Division?" Kopplin recalled. "Two days later we had orders to move out."

BEFORE HIS war days were over, Kopplin had earned the Silver Star ("For Gallantry in Action"), the Purple Heart and other medals. He was wounded in action and sent to England to recover and was greeted with a resounding welcome home at a New York celebration at the same harbor he had left to go to war.

During the war he proved to be an outstanding soldier. The main thrust of his war activity began at Normandy.

"We didn't find out we were going until the night before," said Kopplin. "We just loaded up and went. It was the biggest flotta of boats you've ever seen." Kopplin said he would have taken part in action on D-Day itself if it wasn't for a "snafu" in the

'You'll never see it again,' general says

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Thirty years after the Allied invasion of Normandy in World War II, Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton believes there may never again be a troop movement of the size and scope of D-Day.

"You'll probably never see something of that type," said the general who led the U.S. Eighth Army Corps against the Nazis in the Battle of the Bulge.

"There's been such improvements in the air and in weapons, that I doubt you could concentrate and then transport troops across a channel like that."

"Of course, we didn't have the opposition from the Germans in the air. We had absolute supremacy in the air. When I got into the rendezvous area off the coast of France, I didn't

Mosquito fogging to begin tonight

Palatine's mosquito spraying program will start tonight.

Clarke Outdoor Spraying Co. of La Grange will fog the village tonight and the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District will fog on Monday and Tuesday.

Persons who are sensitive to insecticide should contact the Palatine Health Department at 338-7555 so arrangements can be made not to have the spraying done in front of their homes.

'Rent-a-kid' plan will help you get chores done

Spending money for the kids and more spare time for the grownups are among the features of the Rent-A-Kid program to get under way June 10 in the Palatine area.

Babysitting, car washing, lawn care and a variety of other odd jobs homeowners need done will be matched with youngsters 15 years and older who have indicated an interest in the work and earning some extra money.

Starting June 10 Palatine Township residents may call 359-7483 anytime to "rent-a-kid." Minimum wages are 75 cents an hour for babysitting and $1.50 for manual labor.

The Palatine Jaycees and Jaycee Wives, co-sponsors of the new program, are looking for homeowners associations to help man the phones. The phones will be manned from 7 to 9 p.m. five days a week. Calls received at other times will be recorded and answered during the two-hour daily periods.

Persons answering the phones will get a description of the job needed to be done, address and name of the caller and match the job with a student. The student will then be contacted and he will be responsible for making final arrangements for the job and payment.

Mediator may be retained for high school pay talks

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Salary talks appear to be heating up in High School Dist. 211 in the wake of a bargaining session between teachers and the board of education Tuesday night.

Teachers now say a contract settlement is unlikely before school is dismissed this year and they are considering asking for a mediator to decide the issue.

Teacher negotiator Dan O'Brien said the board could not answer the teachers' request Tuesday night for figures showing how much money the district has to spend on new salary contracts next year. The figures the board's negotiators came up with were inaccurate, says O'Brien, and they had to meet among themselves to make revisions.

"THE BOARD DOESN'T know what it's doing," said O'Brien, who added that the board's "credibility is lost" due to its "slight of hand with figures."

"Both sides for the past two years have constantly said that we are getting along well and that there is no animosity and we haven't polarized the issues. The board's performance last night has caused that situation to change," O'Brien said Wednesday. "We are no longer getting along well."

The teachers are asking for a 10 per cent increase in salary next year, raising the base salary to $9,850 to keep up with the rise in the cost of living.

The board has proposed a 6.2 per cent increase in salary for teachers, saying the district is limited in its income.

Teachers had hoped to settle contracts before school is out this month. O'Brien said Wednesday "That possibility is becoming dimmer and dimmer." O'Brien said, "We're very far apart in salary."

AFTER THE BOARD'S negotiators failed to produce the figure requested by

KOPPLIN RECEIVED the Silver Star for his war exploits. He was part of a two-man detail removing mines from a bridge Americans wanted to cross. Under heavy enemy fire the two men succeeded and the Germans driven out. Of the honor bestowed on him he said in a letter home, "I still don't think I deserved it."

He struck a handsome pose in combat regalia.

Arlington Park controversy ends-for the moment

by TONI GINETTI
Settlement Wednesday of a strike between horsemen and management at Sportsman's Park has ended plans for night racing at Arlington Park Race Track.

Agreement was reached Wednesday morning between the striking Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. and the Cicero race track's management, thereby abruptly ending a controversy which had developed surrounding the transferring of the Sportsman's night schedule to Arlington Park.

Arlington Park Tuesday had been granted night racing dates this Friday and Saturday and next Friday and Saturday by the Illinois Racing Board despite objections from the City of Rolling Meadows. These dates were in effect rescinded Wednesday with the reinstatement of racing at Sportsman's.

The strike settlement came only hours before Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose planned to file in Cook County Circuit Court for an injunction to prevent the night racing. Rose said he was notified at about noon Wednesday by attorneys for the racing board that the Arlington day-night doubleheaders had been canceled.

Harness racing will resume at Sportsman's on Friday, according to spokesman William Johnston Jr.

THE SETTLEMENT Wednesday marked the second time this week planned night racing at Arlington was halted. A weekend decision by racing board members had authorized a racing doubleheader Monday, opening day for the Arlington racing season, but the threat of a lawsuit from Rolling Meadows prompted racing board chairman Anthony Scariano to stop the program only six hours before the planned 8 p.m. post time.

The suit would have charged the board with violating the Illinois Open Meeting Law, authored by Scariano when he was a state legislator, because a public hearing on the racing proposal had not been held.

A meeting of the board was called for Tuesday and the dates were then officially awarded, pending the outcome of the Sportsman's strike.

The reassigning of the racing to Arlington Park was aimed at preventing the loss of up to $100,000 a day in state revenue.

Night racing has not been held at Arlington Park since 1969.

Rose appeared before the board Tuesday to protest the night racing plan, saying the board did not provide time for area residents to file objections to the proposal.

PREPARATIONS were under way Wednesday for Rolling Meadows to file for an injunction against the racing board's Tuesday action when word of the strike settlement came, Rose said. Rose said he had planned to base the court action on several factors including that the board had violated the "split" of the open meeting law and that application had only been made by Arlington Park for only two specific night dates although four dates were awarded by the board.

The "nuisance factor" and the matter of the public not having sufficient time to learn of the Tuesday racing board meeting would have also been cited, Rose said.

Horsemen at Sportsman's Park voted to end the strike early Wednesday when they agreed to a six-year contract with the track management. The contract calls for the horsemen to get 49 per cent of the track's mutual handle for the first two years, 49 1/2 per cent for the third year and 50 per cent for the last three years, according to a racing board spokesman.

The horsemen had originally sought a two-year contract with 50 per cent of the mutual take while management offered a six-year contract with a 49 per cent split for the first two years, 49 1/2 per cent for the second two years and 50 per cent split only for the last two years.

Controversy at a glance...

Here is a recap of events beginning Sunday surrounding the Arlington Park Race Track night racing controversy:

Sunday: A strike by the Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. against the operators of Sportsman's Park in Cicero canceled the planned opening of harness racing Monday at that track. The Illinois Racing Board agreed in a telephone poll to switch the night racing schedule to Arlington Park Monday.

Monday: The Arlington Park racing season opened at 2 p.m. with another racing schedule slated to start at 8 p.m. The night schedule was called off only six hours before post time by racing board chairman Anthony Scariano after Rolling Meadows officials threatened to file suit against the board. Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose said the board had violated the Illinois Open Meeting Law because no public hearing on the matter of night racing had been held. Scariano then called for the matter to be discussed Tuesday before the board.

Tuesday: The racing board voted unanimously to grant four night racing dates to Arlington Park unless the strike at Sportsman's Park was resolved. Rose protested the action before the board saying Rolling Meadows residents living near the track had not been given sufficient time to file objections to the plan.

Wednesday: Rose was preparing to file in Cook County Circuit Court a brief seeking to stop the races scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday. The action was not taken, however, when it was announced at mid-day that the Sportsman's strike had been settled and that racing would resume Friday at Sportsman's.

Township votes financial support of mental health

Palatine Township residents Wednesday approved using revenue sharing and additional taxes to support mental health agencies in the township.

Elected at a special town meeting at Palatine Hills Junior High School soundly defeated an amendment that would have limited the township's spending power for mental health to only its federal revenue sharing allotment.

By a vote of 91-21 township residents gave the town board the power to levy taxes for mental health, either to supplement revenue sharing or to replace it if the federal program is eventually disbanded.

MOST OF THE objections came from members of the Palatine League of Women Voters, who contended that the resolution gave the township broader taxing power and was inconsistent with the mental health referendum that voters defeated several years ago.

"I feel if township residents had wanted to use tax dollars for that, they would have passed that resolution," Ann Koiler of Inverness said.

Alice DeViney, a long-time LWV observer and critic of the township, termed the mental health resolution "literally a blank check."

"This town board has dedicated itself at every opportunity to further mental health. It is the intent of the board to use revenue sharing for mental health... it is unfair for the electors to tie the hands of the town board," responded township supervisor Howard I. Olsen.

WEDNESDAY'S MEETING nearly mirrored an annual April town meeting. The special meeting was called after LWV member Ann Scollay discovered that no legal notice of the April meeting had been printed in local newspapers as required by law, and the League prepared to challenge the legality of that meeting.

"My question is why are we voting on the same things again?" Mrs. Scollay asked Richard Cowen, township attorney.

"To cover even the remote possibility that some objections could be raised about the legality of that meeting," Cowen said.

Other issues approved include a $10,000 revenue sharing allocation for the Palatine Township Council on the Aged, and $15,000 in revenue sharing for the Palatine Township Road and Bridge Fund. A small cemetery at the northeast corner of Plum Grove and Kirchoff roads also was accepted for maintenance by the township.

Garage sale to aid post

The fourth annual garage sale of Air Explorers Post 310 will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 123 N. Babcock Dr., Palatine. Donations for the sale are being accepted. For further information contact Pat Messina at 359-8664.

Super sale Saturday

Items from more than 100 families in the Kenilworth subdivision of Palatine will go on sale Saturday in the home-owners 2nd annual summer sale.

The sale will be held in a parking lot on the corner of Hicks Road and Juniper Drive from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. In case of rain, the sale will be postponed one week to June 15.

Proceeds from the sale are returned to the families with 10 per cent going to the Kenilworth Homeowners Assn. for activities during the year.

June 14 deadline for artist entries

June 14 is the deadline for artists' entries in the Seventh Annual Palatine Art Fair on the Fourth of July in Community Park, 262 E. Palatine Rd.

All types of art may be entered, and cash prizes and ribbons will be awarded to the top entries. Exhibitors must apply and pay a $6 entry fee by June 14 to Mrs. Robyn Deger, 649 E. Tahoe Dr., Palatine, or by phoning 359-4516.

The fair is sponsored each year by the Palatine Jaycee Wives in conjunction with the Jaycee July 4th celebration.

Parks want children away from building

A letter to park district residents asking that they keep their children from interfering with park construction work will be mailed this week, the board directed Tuesday.

Board member Denis Schnell made the suggestion after reporting receiving complaints from some parents who said their children might be hurt in the parks where construction has begun. But Schnell said the children also are damaging much of the construction work that was begun before a recent strike in the construction industry brought work to a halt.

Schools to hire 4 media interns

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Education Committee has agreed to hire four media interns at an annual salary of $3,200 each for the 1974-75 school year.

The internships were approved at Tuesday night's committee meeting and are expected to be sent to the entire board for final approval June 19.

The interns, Eastern Illinois University graduate students working on their master's degrees, will be making visual display, films, slide presentations, video tapes and working on other school-media-related activities in the district.

Three of the interns will be working at three of the four junior high schools. The fourth will be working with both junior high and elementary schools on a district wide basis. All will be working full time and taking night courses at Harper College. All four will have teaching degrees.

Carl Sandburg Junior High School did not want a media intern because it has a teacher with background in media work, according to Marion Omiatek, assistant supt. for instruction.

Three-fourths of the interns' salaries will be paid from the school's teacher aide budget. The rest of the salaries and the salary for the fourth intern will be in the department of instruction budget, Omiatek said.

75% of firm's area apartments included

Kassuba must sell holdings

About 75 per cent of all completed Kassuba Development Corp. apartments in the Chicago area will be included in the sale of about half of Kassuba's nationwide holdings to an investor group led by the Los Angeles-based Income Equities Corp.

Although Kassuba officials refuse to name the properties intended for sale until deeds are signed, the firm's Chicago regional director, Vincent Donile, said Wednesday 5,800 of the approximately 8,000 Chicago area apartments are included. Several of Kassuba's apartment complexes are in the Northwest suburbs, and it appears certain at least some of them will be sold.

Donile said the sale will include only apartments finished and available for occupancy, and not those under construction at the time of closing. Currently 25,000 units are in construction stages, he said. Either Kassuba or Income Equities will notify tenants in sold complexes when the transfer is final, said Donile, but he was unable to predict how long that will take.

Most Kassuba developments have the word "Trace" in their name, although not all do. Kassuba owns 23 complexes in Illinois, 27 of them in the Chicago area. Nationally, it owns 42,000 apartment units in 119 complexes, and 63 of the complexes are to be sold.

THE SALE WAS forced by financial reorganization Kassuba sought under the Federal Bankruptcy Act in December, and was approved by a federal bankruptcy referee Tuesday. A condition of the sale is acceptance by Kassuba's secured creditors of some terms, Kassuba's attorney, Richard F. Levy of Chicago, said in court many of the creditors already have agreed to the principle.

While the sale is pending, Kassuba is making a "concentrated effort to refurbish" all its complexes in the Chicago area, and to complete units not now finished. "Our immediate goal is to perform all maintenance necessary in all projects in Chicago," said Donile.

In Buffalo Grove, where city officials threatened condemnation of Berkshire Trace Apartments, citing safety hazards, Donile said Kassuba now is "performing all deferred maintenance we couldn't perform during the winter." Work includes roofing, balcony and firewall repairs or replacement, landscaping, painting and pavement repair. Donile vowed to "show Buffalo Grove our intentions are more than honest and honorable," and said Kassuba "intends to comply with all their requirements." Similar problems in Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows, are being corrected since the city filed suit against Kassuba.

IN HOFFMAN ESTATES, where 10 of 11 buildings under construction and nearly completed have lain dormant for an estimated six months, "we hope to get started in the very near future," said Donile. He said he could not promise construction would resume within two months, although Joe Steinberg, regional manager out of Palm Beach, Fla., suggested that time period. Donile said remaining work in the Hermitage Trace project could be completed within months.

Efforts are under way to increase occupancy in all Kassuba developments, said Donile, although he said company policy and the pending sale prevent his revealing current occupancy statistics.

Kassuba's tenants will not experience rent increases, at least for the duration of their leases, even if their buildings are sold, said Donile. "I'm sure all property management firms would look at possible cost of living and maintenance increases" as new tenants are signed or existing leases expire, he added.

Among other Kassuba operations in the Northwest suburbs are Birchwood Trace and Orchard Trace, Wheeling; Candlewood Trace and Countryside Trace, Arlington Heights; Pinebrook Trace and Deer Trail, Palatine Township; Fairway Trace, Greenwood Trace and North Shore Trace, Des Plaines; Hermitage Trace, Hoffman Estates and Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows.

Music teachers may get 'after-school' pay hike

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 general music teachers could soon receive an increase in salary for the time after school they spend working with junior high school vocal groups.

Preliminary approval for the increase of as much as $520 a year to each junior high school was given at Tuesday night's education committee meeting.

Presently, groups such as chorus and vocal ensembles are considered clubs and each club receives $80 per year to compensate their sponsor or sponsors, if the teachers apply for compensation.

The resolution, as passed by the committee Tuesday, will be brought to the school board June 19 and referred to the budget committee for possible inclusion in the 1974-75 school year budget, according to Marion Omiatek, assistant supt. for instruction.

EACH SCHOOL receiving money would have to log at least 60 hours of extra curricular music activity and submit their plans to the school district administration for approval. The entire $800 will not necessarily be spent at each school, Omiatek said Tuesday.

The action was taken after teachers contacted the administration. They asked for an increase because they were spending an extensive number of hours working with the youngsters in vocal music after school hours, Omiatek said.

A study conducted by the administration showed that for all four junior high school choruses, the teachers spent 413 extra hours this year; for ensembles, they spent another 183 hours and an additional 84 hours were spent working with accompanists, sectionists and soloists.

"This is a program that's really grown in the last three or four years," Omiatek said. Compensation for instrumental music teachers will be considered during the 1974-75 school year.

Park attorney to review fieldhouse fire rules

The Salt Creek Park Board Tuesday directed Michael Stronberg, park district attorney, to review with state fire officials safety-code requirements that the state has recommended for Rose Park Fieldhouse, where district preschool classes are held.

The requirements were detailed following an inspection of the fieldhouse by a state fire marshal and Palatine Fire Inspector Bill DePue. The district's preschool program is state-licensed and therefore subject to state inspection.

The requirements would total some $1,400 if all are performed, but Stronberg called some of them "unnecessary." Board Pres. Patrick Grealish agreed, saying more requirements would be made in the future if the district complied with the recommendations.

THE RECOMMENDATIONS include installing panic bars on all exit doors, special wire glass for windows, fire alarms tied into the Palatine Fire Department and direct venting systems to eliminate noxious fumes. Board member Robert Marconi said the district should follow the recommendations because they would enhance safety.

But Grealish and Stronberg said some of the requirements were not all necessary to protect life. "I would go along with any measures to save lives, but not just to save property," Grealish said.

DePue said Wednesday that the recommended changes would "slow down the fire and give the kids a better chance to get out," particularly if the building is equipped with the panic bar and early alarm system.

A number of the state requirements were waived, DePue said, requiring only the most-needed improvements.

Most other nursery schools in Palatine are not required to meet the suggested requirements because they are not state licensed. However, Park Director James DeVos said the state license carries no special advantages and suggested the board consider letting the license expire as one way to ease the fire suggestions.

Little City to sell plans in greenhouse

A greenhouse where Little City students will grow and sell plants to the public is being constructed at the residence school for mentally retarded children at Algonquin and Roselle roads in Palatine.

The large greenhouse is scheduled to open in late July. Construction has started for the facility, which will be the second work-therapy project at Little City.

Seniors' bus service may be extended

Hours for senior citizens' bus service in Palatine Township will be extended and the fares increased to 50 cents one-way starting June 18.

New hours will be weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., two hours longer than the original schedule. Fares are up from 25 cents one way to the 50-cent fee because of the longer service hours, according to Louise Robertson, now coordinator for the Palatine Township Council on the Aged.

Reservations for the door-to-door bus pickup should be made two days in advance by phoning Mrs. Robertson at 991-1112.

Other services available through the center include Meals on Wheels for township residents over age 59 who are confined to their homes and unable to cook for themselves. The cost is $2 per day for a minimum of a week. Details are available from Mrs. Robertson.

Activities at the senior citizens' center, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine, on Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays include card playing, knitting, bridge lessons, bingo, crafts and an exercise class.

Special outings are also planned to area shopping centers and theaters. Details are available by phoning 991-1112.

Mediator weighed for teacher pay talks

Teachers Tuesday night, O'Brien said teacher negotiations "seriously discussed the possibility of impasse." Through impasse procedure, the two sides can agree to bring in a mediator if no substantial movement is made on either side of the bargaining table. The mediator's decision is not binding on the board or the teachers.

More than 30 teachers stood outside the district's administration center Tuesday night as board and teacher negotiators walked into the building. Several of the teachers said they were there to show support for their negotiating team and Fremd High School. Teacher Karma Johnson added, "I think I'd like to see education be a little higher priority in Dist. 211 and I'd like to see the board treat our negotiators as people."

The teachers also held a rally Monday night to support their negotiators. More than 250 of the district's 505 teachers attended.
Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek, who is chairman of the board's negotiating committee, said he was hesitant to comment on negotiations Wednesday. "I don't want to try to negotiate in the press," he said. He said he was not disturbed by the teachers' appearance Tuesday night or the rally the night before.

CREEK SAID HE DID present some figures to teachers Tuesday to combat their claims that teachers' salaries have not kept up with the cost of living. The cost of living has gone up 43 per cent since 1967, said Creek, but a teacher who has been working in Dist. 211 since then and now has a master's degree has received a salary increase of 136 per cent. "When you start at a poverty level and increase 136 per cent that's not much of an increase," said O'Brien Wednesday.

End of Sportsman's strike halts plans for night racing

by TONI GINETTI

Settlement Wednesday of a strike between horsemen and management at Sportsman's Park has ended plans for night racing at Arlington Park Race Track.

Agreement was reached Wednesday morning between the striking Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. and the Cicero race track's management, thereby abruptly ending a controversy which had developed surrounding the transferring of the Sportsman's night schedule to Arlington Park.

Arlington Park Tuesday had been granted night racing dates this Friday and Saturday and next Friday and Saturday by the Illinois Racing Board despite objections from the City of Rolling Meadows. Those dates were in effect rescinded Wednesday with the reinstatement of racing at Sportsman's.

The strike settlement came only hours before Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose planned to file in Cook County Circuit Court for an injunction to prevent the night racing. Rose said he was notified at about noon Wednesday by attorneys for the racing board that the Arlington day-night doubleheaders had been canceled.

Harness racing will resume at Sportsman's on Friday, according to spokesman William Johnston Jr.

THE SETTLEMENT Wednesday marked the second time this week planned night racing at Arlington was halted. A weekend decision by racing board members had authorized a racing doubleheader Monday, opening day for the Arlington racing season, but the threat of a lawsuit from Rolling Meadows prompted racing board chairman

Controversy at a glance...

Here is a recap of events beginning Sunday surrounding the Arlington Park Race Track night racing controversy:

Sunday: A strike by the Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. against the operators of Sportsman's Park in Cicero canceled the planned opening of harness racing Monday at that track. The Illinois Racing Board agreed in a telephone poll to switch the night racing schedule to Arlington Park Monday.

Monday: The Arlington Park racing season opened at 2 p.m. with another racing schedule slated to start at 8 p.m. The night schedule was called off only six hours before post time by racing board chairman Anthony Scariano after Rolling Meadows officials threatened to file suit against the board. Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose said the board had violated the Illinois Open Meeting Law because no public hearing on the matter of night racing had been held. Scariano then called for the matter to be discussed Tuesday before the board.

Tuesday: The racing board voted unanimously to grant four night racing dates to Arlington Park unless the strike at Sportsman's Park was resolved. Rose protested the action before the board saying Rolling Meadows residents living near the track had not been given sufficient time to file objections to the plan.

Wednesday: Rose was preparing to file in Cook County Circuit Court a brief seeking to stop the races scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday. The action was not taken, however, when it was announced at mid-day that the Sportsman's strike had been settled and that racing would resume Friday at Sportsman's.

Anthony Scariano to stop the program only six hours before the planned 8 p.m. post time.

The suit would have charged the board with violating the Illinois Open Meeting Law, authored by Scariano when he was a state legislator, because a public hearing on the racing proposal had not been held.

A meeting of the board was called for Tuesday and the dates were then officially awarded, pending the outcome of the Sportsman's strike.

The reassigning of the racing to Arlington Park was aimed at preventing the loss of up to $100,000 a day in state revenue.

Night racing has not been held at Arlington Park since 1969.

Rose appeared before the board Tuesday to protest the night racing plan, saying the board did not provide time for area residents to file objections to the proposal.

PREPARATIONS were under way Wednesday for Rolling Meadows to file for an injunction against the racing board's Tuesday action when word of the strike settlement came, Rose said. Rose said he had planned to bring the court action on several factors including that the board had violated the "spirit" of the open meeting law and that application had only been made by Arlington Park for only two specific night dates although four dates were awarded by the board.

The "nuisance factor" and the matter of the public not having sufficient time to learn of the Tuesday racing board meeting would have also been cited, Rose said.

4-building office plan approved by planners

A plan for a four-building office development near Golf and Algonquin roads in Rolling Meadows won unanimous support Wednesday night from the city plan commission.

The plan by Babbin and Assoc., of Rolling Meadows, calls for four buildings to be built directly south of a single-family home subdivision. The extension of New Wilke Road from Golf Road south to the development is planned, but the project would also use Patten Drive, which runs through the residential area for the complex traffic.

The project commission's recommendation will be forwarded to the city council for final action.

SEVERAL OF THE homeowners living in the subdivision appeared before the commission Wednesday night, but only one, W. H. Grismer, spoke before the vote was taken. In response to Grismer's questions, Sheldon Goodman of Babbin said the company has acquired easement rights from Commonwealth Edison Co., owners of the property west of the site, for the extension of New Wilke. The extension will be paid for by the developer.

Goodman also said no charges would be leveled against homeowners for planned improvements of Patten.

The project calls for the construction of the multi-story buildings to front on the west end of the property. Planned improvements for Patten, which is located directly north of the site, would include curb and gutter work and resurfacing.

COMR. ELIZABETH BRISENDEN asked if the developers could avoid using Patten, but City Eng. James Mulkowney said the street is a public thoroughfare and its use could not be restricted.

Mrs. Brissenden contended that the use of the street for heavy construction trucks would create excessive dust and mud in rainy weather, even the residential areas during the construction. She said the commission had an obligation to "protect" the interests of the homeowners.

However, the committee still voted to approve the plan as presented. The 10 homeowners have sought to have their property rezoned commercially so that the land can be sold. The entire surrounding area is zoned for commercial and light industry use, but city officials have turned down the rezoning petition because they say the site should be developed as a unit rather than into ten individual lots.

And the 'Duke' recalls...

'We didn't find out we were going until the night before . . . we just loaded up and went'

by BARRY SIGALE

It was the greatest assault in the history of warfare; an assault on a continent, on an opposing army, and on the idea of fascism.

On the Allied side 30 million men today there were some 2 million ago. And of the thousands who died on the beaches and in the hedgerows and of the thousands who came back there was a GI named Duke Kopplin.

William "Duke" Kopplin, who joined the army as a buck private and left it as a major in the combat engineers after the conquest of Europe, stepped onto the beaches of Normandy on D-Day plus one day. He was part of a generation of men for whom the war was something to be part of.

FOR DUKE KOPPLIN, a resident of Arlington Heights and a 60-year-old businessman who works as a cost accountant in Melrose Park, the D-Day invasion was also the time he was notified of the birth of his son.

News that William Kopplin Jr. had been born reached Kopplin at Swansan, England, shortly before he sailed for France and the invasion.

He wasn't worried about the possibility of never getting to see his son. "If you go into war with the thought that you might get killed, you're a dead duck already," he said. "I figured if it was my time to go it was going to be."

Kopplin landed at the beachhead at Normandy, France, with a reinforced platoon of 45 men. Though their main task in the Second Engineer Combat Battalion was to build bridges they were acting as front line troops in the face of German resistance.

"I remember they were firing at us with machine guns from a church tower," said platoon commander Kopplin of a skirmish at the village of Vermeille Sur Mer where the invasion began 30 years ago today. "We got off the road and into the ditches." Finally, after a lengthy battle, they took the position and chased the enemy away. It was the first of many such victories that would bring the Germans to their knees.

IT WAS only right that Kopplin should share in a piece of America's greatest victory and come back as a war hero with honors.

WILLIAM "DUKE" KOPPLIN of Arlington Heights was an American war hero during World War II as a platoon commander in the 2nd Engineer Combat Battalion. Entering as a buck private and leaving as a major, Kopplin exemplified the men who battled the Germans with a massive attack that began June 6, 1944, D-Day, as it was called 30 years ago today, was the beginning of the end of Hitler's Germany.

Kopplin, nicknamed Duke when he was a kid because his middle name was Earl, could have easily been tagged that way as a result of his exploits during the war.

He enlisted in 1939, met his wife when he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston in Texas and spent some time in training at Camp McCoy, Wis. They were married in 1942 and shortly after he was shipped overseas in a cloak of secrecy.

He and his men were transported at midnight in a darkened train to the New York harbor and sent by boat off to Belfast, Ireland, to await further instructions. The division might have remained at home a while longer if it hadn't been for radio commentator Walter Winchell, said Kopplin. "Winchell said,

"Where's that famous Second Division?" Kopplin recalled. "Two days later we had orders to move out."

BEFORE HIS war days were over, Kopplin had earned the Silver Star ("For Gallantry in Action"), the Purple Heart and other medals. He was wounded in action and sent to England to recover and was greeted with a resounding welcome home at a New York celebration at the same harbor he had left to go to war.

During the war he proved to be an outstanding soldier. The main thrust of his war activity began at Normandy.

"We didn't find out we were going until the night before," said Kopplin. "We just loaded up and went. It was the biggest flotilla of boats you've ever seen." Kopplin said he would have taken part in action on D-Day itself if it wasn't for a "snafu" in the

'You'll never see it again,' general says

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Thirty years after the Allied invasion of Normandy in World War II, Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton believes there may never again be a troop movement of the size and scope of D-Day.

"You'll probably never see something of that type," said the general who led the U.S. Eighth Army Corps against the Nazis in the Battle of the Bulge.

"There's been such improvements in the air and in weapons, that I doubt you could concentrate and then transport troops across a channel like that."

"Of course, we didn't have the opposition from the Germans in the air. We had absolute supremacy in the air. When I got into the rendezvous area off the coast of France, I didn't

KOPPLIN RECEIVED the Silver Star for his war exploits. He was part of a two-man detail removing mines from a bridge Americans wanted to cross. Under heavy enemy fire the two men succeeded and the Germans driven out. Of the honor bestowed on him he said in a letter home, "I still don't think I deserved it."

He struck a handsome pose in combat regalia.

75% of firm's area apartments included

Kassuba must sell holdings

About 75 per cent of all completed Kassuba Development Corp. apartments in the Chicago area will be included in the sale of about half of Kassuba's nationwide holdings to an investor group led by the Los Angeles-based Income Equities Corp.

Although Kassuba officials refuse to name the properties intended for sale until deeds are signed, the firm's Chicago regional director, Vincent Donile, said Wednesday 5,800 of the approximately 8,000 Chicago area apartments are included. Several of Kassuba's apartment complexes are in the Northwest suburbs, and it appears certain at least some of them will be sold.

Donile said the sale will include only apartments finished and available for occupancy, and not those under construction at the time of closing. Currently 25,000 units are in construction stages, he said. Either Kassuba or Income Equities will notify tenants in sold complexes when the transfer is final, said Donile, but he was unable to predict how long that will take.

Most Kassuba developments have the word "Trace" in their name, although not all do. Kassuba owns 28 complexes in Illinois, 27 of them in the Chicago area. Nationally, it owns 42,000 apartment units in 119 complexes, and 63 of the complexes are to be sold.

THE SALE WAS forced by financial reorganization Kassuba sought under the Federal Bankruptcy Act in December, and was approved by a federal bankruptcy referee Tuesday. A condition of the sale is acceptance by Kassuba's secured creditors of some terms. Kassuba's attorney, Richard F. Levy of Chicago, said in court many of the creditors already have agreed to the principle.

While the sale is pending, Kassuba is making a "concentrated effort to refurbish" all its complexes in the Chicago area, and to complete units not now finished. "Our immediate goal is to perform all maintenance necessary in all projects in Chicago," said Donile.

In Buffalo Grove, where city officials threatened condemnation of Berkshire Trace Apartments, citing safety hazards, Donile said Kassuba now is "performing all deferred maintenance we couldn't perform during the winter." Work includes roofing, balcony and firewall repairs or replacement, landscaping, painting and pavement repair. Donile vowed to "show Buffalo Grove our intentions are more than honest and honorable," and said Kassuba "intends to comply with all their requirements." Similar problems in Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows, are being corrected since the city filed suit against Kassuba.

IN HOFFMAN ESTATES, where 10 of 11 buildings under construction and nearly completed have lain dormant for an estimated six months, "we hope to get started in the very near future," said Donile. He said he could not promise construction would resume within two months, although Joe Steinberg, regional manager out of Palm Beach, Fla., suggested that time period. Donile said remaining work in the Hermitage Trace project could be completed within months.

Efforts are under way to increase occupancy in all Kassuba developments, said Donile, although he said company policy and the pending sale prevent his revealing current occupancy statistics.

Kassuba's tenants will not experience rent increases, at least for the duration of their leases, even if their buildings are sold, said Donile. "I'm sure all property management firms would look at possible cost of living and maintenance increases" as new tenants are signed or existing leases expire, he added.

Among other Kassuba operations in the Northwest suburbs are Birchwood Trace and Orchard Trace, Wheeling; Candlewood Trace and Countryside Trace, Arlington Heights; Pinebrook Trace and Deer Trail, Palatine Township; Fairway Trace, Greenwood Trace and North Shore Trace, Des Plaines; Hermitage Trace, Hoffman Estates and Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows.

A BUMPER STICKER commemorating the upcoming 20th anniversary of Rolling Meadows in 1975 is placed on a police car by Ald. Stephen Eberhard. All city vehicles will soon display the stickers and residents will also be able to obtain them. Eberhard heads the city's special anniversary committee.

Motorcade, parade scheduled for Fourth of July program

Plans for a motorcade through the city and a parade have been announced for the Rolling Meadows Fourth of July celebration. The two events will start activities planned throughout the day.

The motorcade will begin at 9 a.m. and will follow a yet-to-be-determined route. It will join the main parade at Rolling Meadows High School to step off at 10 a.m. The parade route will be Jay Lane Dr., Meadow Drive north to Kirchoff Drive, Meadows Drive north to Kirchoff Road and Kirchoff Road west to the west entrance of the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center and the speaker's stand that will be erected there near the Bank of Rolling Meadows.

Guest speaker for the day will be retired Air Force Lt. Col. Nimrod McNair, who presently operates Executive Leadership Co., Glen Ellyn, Princeton, N. J., and Atlanta, Ga. McNair worked in the Pentagon prior to his retirement.

Afternoon activities have been planned by the city, including free pony rides for children, free train rides, a fun fair, water-dunk tank, a battle of the bands, a softball game between city officials and teen government members and food concessions.

The day's events will be concluded with a fireworks display sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Jaycees.

Township votes financial support of mental health

Palatine Township residents Wednesday approved using revenue sharing and additional taxes to support mental health agencies in the township.

Elected at a special town meeting at Palatine Hills Junior High School soundly defeated an amendment that would have limited the township's spending power for mental health to only its federal revenue sharing allotment.

By a vote of 91-21 township residents gave the town board the power to levy taxes for mental health, either to supplement revenue sharing or to replace it if the federal program is eventually disbanded.

MOST OF THE objections came from members of the Palatine League of Women Voters, who contended that the resolution gave the township broader taxing power and was inconsistent with the mental health referendum that voters defeated several years ago.

"I feel if township residents had wanted to use tax dollars for that, they would have passed that resolution," Ann Koller of Inverness said.

Alice DeViney, a long-time LWV observer and critic of the township, termed the mental health resolution "literally a blank check."

"This town board has dedicated itself at every opportunity to further mental health. It is the intent of the board to use revenue sharing for mental health . . . it is unfair for the electors to tie the hands of the town board," responded township supervisor Howard I. Olsen.

WEDNESDAY'S MEETING nearly mirrored an annual April town meeting. The special meeting was called after LWV member Ann Scollay discovered that no legal notice of the April meeting had been printed in local newspapers as required by law, and the League prepared to challenge the legality of that meeting.

"My question is why are we voting on the same things again?" Mrs. Scollay asked Richard Cowen, township attorney. "To cover even the remote possibility that some objections could be raised about the legality of that meeting," Cowen said.

Other issues approved include a $10,000 revenue sharing allocation for the Palatine Township Council on the Aged, and $15,000 in revenue sharing for the Palatine Township Road and Bridge Fund. A small cemetery at the northeast corner of Plum Grove and Kirchoff roads also was accepted for maintenance by the township.

Schools to hire 4 media interns

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Education Committee has agreed to hire four media interns at an annual salary of $3,200 each for the 1974-75 school year.

The internships were approved at Tuesday night's committee meeting and are expected to be sent to the entire board for final approval June 19.

The interns, Eastern Illinois University graduate students working on their master's degrees, will be making visual display, films, slide presentations, video tapes and working on other school-media-related activities in the district.

Three of the interns will be working at three of the four junior high schools. The fourth will be working with both junior high and elementary schools on a district wide basis. All will be working full time and taking night courses at Harper College. All four will have teaching degrees. Carl Sandburg Junior High School did not want a media intern because it has a teacher with background in media work, according to Marion Omiatek, assistant supt. for instruction.

Three-fourths of the interns' salaries will be paid from the school's teacher aide budget. The rest of the salaries and the salary for the fourth intern will be in the department of instruction budget, Omiatek said.

Garage sale to aid post

The fourth annual garage sale of Air Explorers Post 310 will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 123 N. Babcock Dr., Palatine.

Donations for the sale are being accepted. For further information contact Pat Messina at 359-8666.

Salt Creek park budget up 13%

A public hearing on the Salt Creek Park District's tentative 1974 fiscal budget was held Tuesday. The budget of some $156,673 is based on estimated revenues the district hopes to receive.

The package includes funds for the district's current park improvement program. The three-year program calls for some $92,000 in work at the district's three parks.

Work, including the addition of tennis courts for all three parks, has been delayed because of the current strikes in the construction industry.

The budget calls for an approximate 13 per cent increase from last year's package. The district's tax levy is also expected to increase slightly from about 22 cents to 26 cents per $100 assessed valuation because of payments due on a 1972 bond package.

Tax bills have yet to be released by the Cook County assessor's office, but the expected increase would mean about $4 more in park taxes on a home assessed at $10,000.

Hearing planned for shop center

A proposed shopping center for land at the Weldner Egg and Poultry Farm, Dundee and Baldwin roads, will be scheduled for a public hearing before the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

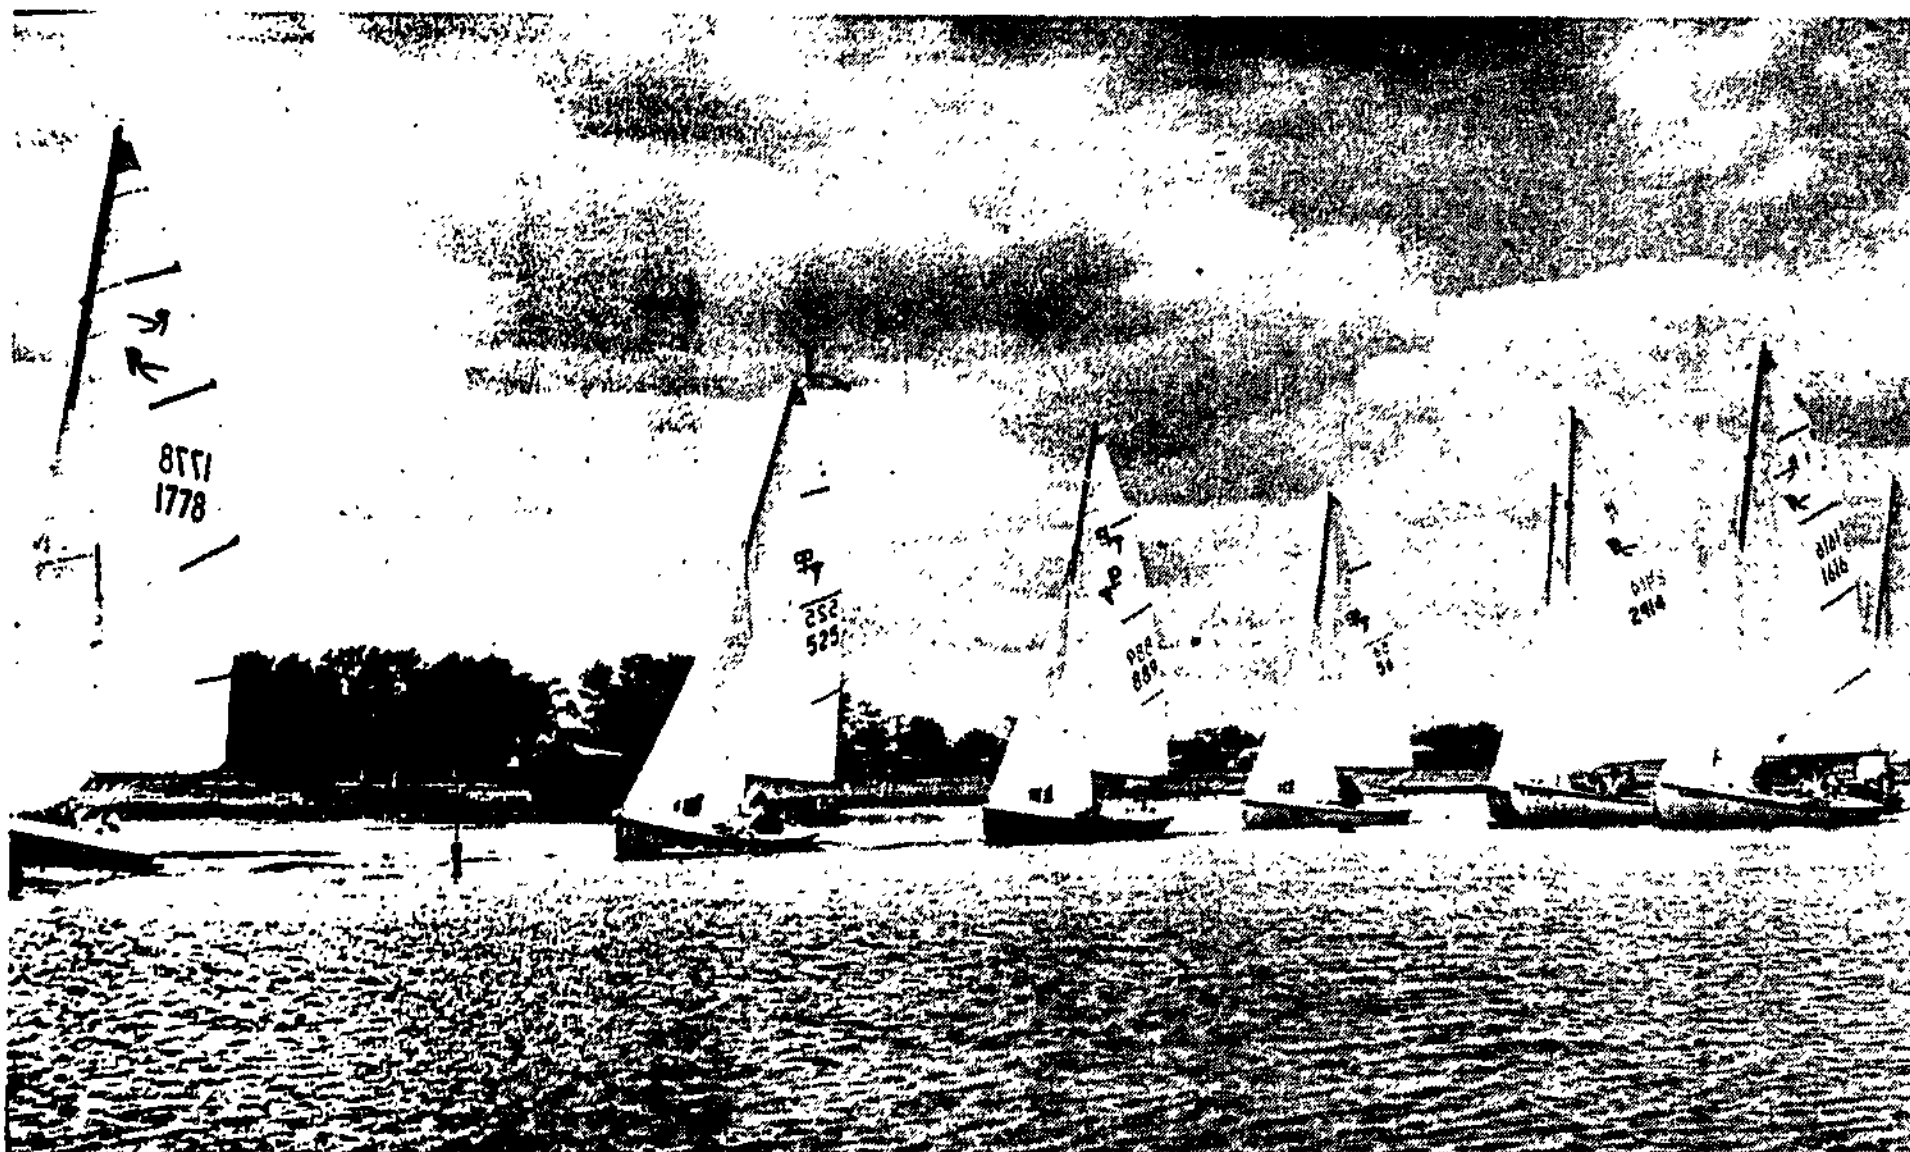

Jerome I. Weldner of Long Grove, owner of the egg business, has petitioned for the zoning change for 7.7 acres on the north side of Dundee Road, 240 feet north of the Dundee-Baldwin roads intersection.

No hearing date has been set for the rezoning request. The property borders a number of new apartment developments and other land currently under consideration for commercial shopping areas.

Annexation may not hurt Salt Creek parks

The planned annexation of the Philippe subdivision to Rolling Meadows will probably not immediately affect the Salt Creek Park District's status in that area, board members said Tuesday.

The area, bounded by Euclid Avenue, Rohlfing Road, Hicks Road and Kirchoff Road, is located in the Salt Creek district but is planned for annexation to Rolling Meadows June 11. Only one park, South Park, is located in the area but commissioners said Tuesday the park will still be owned by the district after the annex-

Teachers to get after - hours pay hike

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 general music teachers could soon receive an increase in salary for the time after school they spend working with junior high school vocal groups.

Preliminary approval for the increase of as much as $320 a year to each junior high school was given at Tuesday night's education committee meeting.

Presently, groups such as chorus and vocal ensembles are considered clubs and each club receives $80 per year to compensate their sponsor or sponsors, if the teachers apply for compensation.

The resolution, as passed by the committee Tuesday, will be brought to the school board June 19 and referred to the budget committee for possible inclusion in the 1974-75 school year budget, according to Marion Omiatek, assistant supt. for instruction.

EACH SCHOOL receiving money would have to log at least 60 hours of extra curricular music activity and submit their plans to the school district administration for approval. The entire $800 will not necessarily be spent at each school, Omiatek said Tuesday.

The action was taken after teachers contacted the administration. They asked for an increase because they were spending an extensive number of hours working with the youngsters in vocal music after school hours, Omiatek said.

A study conducted by the administration showed that for all four junior high school choruses, the teachers spent 413 extra hours this year; for ensembles, they spent another 183 hours and an additional 84 hours were spent working with accompanists, sectionists and soloists. "This is a program that's really grown in the last three or four years," Omiatek said. Compensation for instrumental music teachers will be considered during the 1974-75 school year.

Quick settlement unlikely

Mediator may be sought for teacher salary talks

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Salary talks appear to be heating up in High School Dist. 211 in the wake of a bargaining session between teachers and the board of education Tuesday night.

Teachers now say a contract settlement is unlikely before school is dismissed this year and they are considering asking for a mediator to decide the issue.

Teacher negotiator Dan O'Brien said the board could not answer the teachers' request Tuesday night for figures showing how much money the district has to spend on new salary contracts next year. The figures the board's negotiators came up with were inaccurate, says O'Brien, and they had to meet among themselves to make revisions.

"THE BOARD DOESN'T know what it's doing," said O'Brien, who added that the board's "credibility is lost" due to its "slight of hand with figures."

"Both sides for the past two years have constantly said that we are getting along well and that there is no animosity and we haven't polarized the issues. The board's performance last night has caused that situation to change," O'Brien said Wednesday. "We are no longer getting along well."

The teachers are asking for a 10 per cent increase in salary next year, raising the base salary to $9,850 to keep up with the rise in the cost of living.

The board has proposed a 6.2 per cent increase in salary for teachers, saying the district is limited in its income.

Teachers had hoped to settle contracts before school is out this month. O'Brien said Wednesday "That possibility is becoming dimmer and dimmer." O'Brien said, "We're very far apart in salary."

AFTER THE BOARD'S negotiators failed to produce the figure requested by teachers Tuesday night, O'Brien said teacher negotiations "seriously discussed the possibility of impasse." Through impasse procedure, the two sides can agree to bring in a mediator if no substantial movement is made on either side of the bargaining table. The mediator's decision is not binding on the board or the teachers.

More than 30 teachers stood outside the district's administration center Tuesday night as board and teacher negotiators walked into the building. Several of the teachers said they were there to show support for their negotiating team and

About 75 per cent of all completed Kassuba Development Corp. apartments in the Chicago area will be included in the sale of about half of Kassuba's nationwide holdings to an investor group led by the Los Angeles-based Income Equities Corp.

Although Kassuba officials refuse to name the properties intended for sale until deeds are signed, the firm's Chicago regional director, Vincent Donile, said Wednesday 8,000 of the approximately 8,000 Chicago area apartments are included. Several of Kassuba's apartment complexes are in the Northwest suburbs, and it appears certain at least some of them will be sold.

Donile said the sale will include only apartments finished and available for occupancy, and not those under construction at the time of closing. Currently 25,000 units are in construction stages, he said. Either Kassuba or Income Equities will notify tenants in sold complexes when the transfer is final, said Donile, but he was unable to predict how long that will take.

Most Kassuba developments have the word "Trace" in their name, although not all do. Kassuba owns 28 complexes in Illinois, 27 of them in the Chicago area. Nationally, it owns 42,000 apartment units in 119 complexes, and 63 of the complexes are to be sold.

THE SALE WAS forced by financial reorganization Kassuba sought under the Federal Bankruptcy Act in December, and was approved by a federal bankruptcy referee Tuesday. A condition of the sale is acceptance by Kassuba's secured creditors of some terms, Kassuba's attorney, Richard F. Levy of Chicago, said in court many of the creditors already have agreed to the principle.

While the sale is pending, Kassuba is making a "concerted effort to refurbish" all its complexes in the Chicago area, and to complete units not now finished. "Our immediate goal is to perform all maintenance necessary in all projects in Chicago," said Donile.

In Buffalo Grove, where city officials threatened condemnation of Berkshire Trace Apartments, citing safety hazards, Donile said Kassuba now is "performing all deferred maintenance we couldn't perform during the winter." Work includes roofing, balcony and firework repairs or replacement, landscaping, painting and pavement repair. Donile vowed to "show Buffalo Grove our intentions are more than honest and honorable," and said Kassuba "intends to comply with all their requirements." Similar problems in Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows, are being corrected since the city filed suit against Kassuba.

IN HOFFMAN ESTATES, where 10 of 11 buildings under construction and nearly completed have lain dormant for an estimated six months, "we hope to get started in the very near future," said Donile. He said he could not promise construction would resume within two months, although Joe Steinberg, regional manager out of Palm Beach, Fla., suggested that time period. Donile said remaining work in the Hermitage Trace project could be completed within months.

Efforts are under way to increase occupancy in all Kassuba developments, said Donile, although he said company policy and the pending sale prevent his revealing current occupancy statistics.

Kassuba's tenants will not experience rent increases, at least for the duration of their leases, even if their buildings are sold, said Donile. "I'm sure all property management firms would look at possible cost of living and maintenance increases" as new tenants are signed or existing leases expire, he added.

Among other Kassuba operations in the Northwest suburbs are Birchwood Trace and Orchard Trace, Wheeling; Candlewood Trace and Countryside Trace, Arlington Heights; Pinewood Trace and Deer Trail, Palatine Township; Fairway Trace, Greenwood Trace and North Shore Trace, Des Plaines; Hermitage Trace, Hoffman Estates and Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows.

Boy, 9, hurt in fall from tree

A 9-year-old Hoffman Estates boy was seriously injured Wednesday morning when he fell about 25 feet from a tree near his home.

Christopher Gonsauley, 800 Bode Rd., Apt. 104, was admitted to the intensive care unit of Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. After surgery he was reported to be in serious condition.

The boy was climbing the tree near the Interlode Apartment complex about 8:40 a.m. when he fell, said fire district officials.

They said he had stopped breathing and was turning blue from lack of oxygen when Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Meyer stopped at the scene on their way to work. Mrs. Meyer applied mouth to mouth resuscitation with the help of another man at the scene while her husband contacted the police and paramedics.

"We were fascinated with the speed and efficiency of the paramedics and police," said Mrs. Meyer, a teacher at Hoffman Elementary School.

Fire district officials credited the teacher with keeping the boy alive until paramedics arrived.

His brother, who was at the scene, told authorities Christopher landed on his head. Paramedics administered oxygen and transported the boy to the hospital.

And the 'Duke' recalls...

'We didn't find out we were going until the night before . . . we just loaded up and went'

by BARRY SIGALE

It was the greatest assault in the history of warfare: an assault on a continent, on an opposing army, and on the idea of fascism.

On the Allied side 30 years ago today, there were some 2 million men. And of the thousands who died on the beaches and in the hedgerows and of the thousands who came back there was a GI named Duke Kopplin.

William "Duke" Kopplin, who joined the army as a buck private, and left it as a major in the combat engineers after the conquest of Europe, stepped onto the beaches of Normandy on D-Day plus one day. He was part of a generation of men for whom the war was something to be part of.

FOR DUKE KOPPLIN, a resident of Arlington Heights and a 60-year-old businessman who works as a cost accountant in Melrose Park, the D-Day invasion was also the time he was notified of the birth of his son.

News that William Kopplin Jr. had been born reached Kopplin at Swansea, England, shortly before he sailed for France and the invasion.

He wasn't worried about the possibility of never getting to see his son. "If you go into war with the thought that you might get killed, you're a dead duck already," he said. "I figured if it was my time to go it was going to be."

Kopplin landed at the beachhead at Normandy, France, with a reinforced platoon of 45 men. Though their main task in the Second Engineer Combat Battalion was to build bridges they were acting as front line troops in the face of German resistance.

"I remember they were firing at us with machine guns from a church tower," said platoon commander Kopplin of a skirmish at the village of Vermeille Sur Mer where the invasion began 30 years ago today. "We got off the road and into the ditches." Finally, after a lengthy battle, they took the position, and chased the enemy away. It was the first of many such victories that would bring the Germans to their knees.

IT WAS only right that Kopplin should share in a piece of America's greatest victory and come back as a war hero with honors.

WILLIAM "DUKE" KOPPLIN of Arlington Heights was an American war hero during World War II as a platoon commander in the 2nd Engineer Combat Battalion. Entering as a buck private and leaving as a major, Kopplin exemplified the men who battled the Germans with a massive attack that began June 6, 1944. D-Day, as it was called 30 years ago today, was the beginning of the end of Hitler's Germany.

Kopplin, nicknamed Duke when he was a kid because his middle name was Earl, could have easily been tagged that way as a result of his exploits during the war.

He enlisted in 1939, met his wife when he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston in Texas and spent some time in training at Camp McCoy, Wis. They were married in 1942 and shortly after he was shipped overseas in a cloak of secrecy.

He and his men were transported at midnight in a darkened train to the New York harbor and sent by boat off to Belfast, Ireland, to await further instructions. The division might have remained at home a while longer if it hadn't been for radio commentator Walter Winchell, said Kopplin. "Winchell said,

"Where's that famous Second Division?" Kopplin recalled. "Two days later we had orders to move out."

BEFORE HIS war days were over, Kopplin had earned the Silver Star ("For Gallantry in Action"), the Purple Heart and other medals. He was wounded in action and sent to England to recover and was greeted with a resounding welcome home at a New York celebration at the same harbor he had left to go to war.

During the war he proved to be an outstanding soldier. The main thrust of his war activity began at Normandy.

"We didn't find out we were going until the night before," said Kopplin. "We just loaded up and went. It was the biggest flotilla of boats you've ever seen." Kopplin said he would have taken part in action on D-Day itself if it wasn't for a "snafu" in the

'You'll never see it again,' general says

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Thirty years after the Allied invasion of Normandy in World War II, Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton believes there may never again be a troop movement of the size and scope of D-Day.

"You'll probably never see something of that type," said the general who led the U.S. Eighth Army Corps against the Nazis in the Battle of the Bulge.

"There's been such improvements in the air and in weapons, that I doubt you could concentrate and then transport troops across a channel like that."

"Of course, we didn't have the opposition from the Germans in the air. We had absolute supremacy in the air. When I got into the rendezvous area off the coast of France, I didn't

KOPPLIN RECEIVED the Silver Star for his war exploits. He was part of a two-man detail removing mines from a bridge Americans wanted to cross. Under heavy enemy fire the two men succeeded and the Germans driven off. Of the honor bestowed on him he said in a letter home, "I still don't think I deserved it."

He struck a handsome pose in combat regalia.

Body of Hoffman Estates man found in Fox River

DAYTON, ILL. — A camping trip near here ended in tragedy Tuesday when LaSalle County authorities recovered the body of a Hoffman Estates man from the swollen Fox River.

The man was identified as Raymond Dwyer, 19, of 144 N. Washington Blvd. Bill Dummet, acting county coroner, said an autopsy showed Dwyer died from drowning. Dayton is about four miles northeast of Ottawa.

The LaSalle County river rescue unit had dragged and searched the river Saturday, Sunday and Monday after the man was reported missing, Dummet said.

The body was discovered floating about a quarter mile south of Dayton by two passerby Tuesday, Dummet reported.

Dwyer was last seen atop a sandy bluff overlooking the river about 1:30 p.m. Saturday, and when the youth was reported missing, authorities assumed he must have fallen into the water, he said.

Dummet said there is a dam nearby in Dayton and that the current is swift at that point in the river. Because of recent heavy rains, the Fox River was about 12 feet above normal for this time of year, he added.

The acting coroner said Dwyer had been on a camping trip along with other youths.

No date has been set for an inquest into the death.

Villages to share study cost?

Hoffman Estates Village Mgr. George Longmeyer told Schaumburg officials Wednesday night that a proposal for shared cost of an area transportation needs study will be brought to the Hoffman Estates Village Board.

Longmeyer said trustees will be asked to name a village liaison person to work with Schaumburg at Monday's board meeting.

Using a formula based on the 1973 assessed valuation, Longmeyer said it will be suggested Hoffman Estates consider paying 36.2 per cent of the cost of a study.

He said the figure is based on a $90 million assessed valuation in Hoffman Estates compared with $154.8 million assessed valuation reported last year for the Village of Schaumburg.

Hoffman Estates will participate in the selection of one of three consulting firms who have submitted bids for a study, said Fred Dietrich, Schaumburg transportation chairman.

Schaumburg has received proposals from Jack E. Leisch & Associates Evanston Transportation engineers affil-

Detective assists in spotting suspect

Duty never ends for John Barabas. The Schaumburg detective was eating at a Mount Prospect area restaurant Friday night when he spotted a man wanted for robbery on a DuPage County warrant.

Barabas excused himself from his family about 9 p.m. and contacted Schaumburg Police who in turn called Mount Prospect police.

Mount Prospect authorities and Cook County Sheriff's police arrived at the Pizza Hut on Algonquin Road in unincorporated Mount Prospect and arrested Henry Budzynski, 25, of Roselle.

He has been wanted since March, 1973 by DuPage County authorities when he failed to appear on an appeal bond from a burglary conviction.

Police said Budzynski received one to five years for burglary but never turned himself in once his appeal was turned down.

Sketch of suspect brings quick arrest

Quick work by Schaumburg police resulted in the arrest Saturday of a 16-year-old youth after a $700 robbery from the 7-Eleven Store, 21 W. Wise Rd., last Thursday night.

A composite sketch was made after the robbery occurred at 9:50 p.m. A Schaumburg policeman recognized the facial features and said the sketch closely matched those of a youth in the area.

The youth was picked up, placed in a lineup and positively identified by the owner of the food store as the person who held up his business, police said.

Officers involved in the investigation were Patrolman Lester Basso and Detectives Tom Ostermann and Terry McGraw.

The youth was charged with robbery and taken to the Andy Home in Chicago. Police said no weapon was displayed in the robbery. The bandit pretended he had a weapon under a jacket. The money taken in the robbery has not been recovered.

Three Hoffman trustees cite conflict, refuse to vote

by NANCY COWGER

Three Hoffman Estates trustees have abstained from voting on certain developments recently, stating their votes would constitute conflicts of interest.

Two of them, Dyrle Rathman and Bruce Lind, indicate conflicts of interest will prevent their participating in what may be a substantial number of future development matters before the board.

In the four village board meetings in May, Rathman abstained four times, Lind passed on three votes, and Melvin Timmons declined to vote twice.

Rathman did not vote twice on steps in approving development of Poplar Commons, a commercial-recreation project, and once each on an agreement with Schaumburg for Jones Road reconstruction and plan approval for Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan.

LIND ABSTAINED on two annexations and the plan approval for Lincoln Federal, his new employer.

Both of Timmons' abstentions were on Poplar Commons.

Each of the men says the conflicts of interest stem from recent changes in conditions of their employment.

Lind has worked since March 8 for Lincoln Federal, a Berwyn Institution building its first branch in Hoffman Estates.

Rathman works for Du-Co Engineering, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Hoffman Rosner. Du-Co began Jan. 1 bidding on construction for other developers. Rathman and one other man prepare the bids.

Timmons has just left the insurance industry, and now is self-employed as a tennis consultant giving lessons and helping establish tennis programs and form new clubs. He also is a vice president of Woodfield Racquet Club. He said he abstained on Poplar Commons because it includes a tennis facility and could compete with the Woodfield Club.

Lind said he cannot vote on any future residential construction in Hoffman Estates, or matters that would relate to residential construction, because the building of new homes would increase the market for mortgages in the village. Lincoln Federal's primary business is mortgaging. Therefore, Lind said, it would have been inappropriate for him to vote May 20 on the 346-acre annexation request from Centex Homes.

Lind said he could not vote on the E. N. Maistel annexation, also May 20, because Lincoln Federal and Maistel will share Gannon Drive Improvement costs.

THE VOTE ON Lincoln Federal's site plan, or blueprint for property development, was an obvious conflict, and Lind abstained from voting on it May 28.

Rathman said he was unable to vote on the two Poplar Commons requests, heard May 31 and 20, because he prepared bids for contracts Du-Co is seeking with developers of Poplar Commons at another of their projects. The same facts applied to his other abstention.

Rathman said there may be future cases in which he would see a conflict. It depends on who seeks development authorization from the village board, and on whether Du-Co has or intends to bid for a construction contract with those firms.

"I'm being super cautious," said Rathman. "I certainly want no one to come back and say there was a possibility of influence," he added.

Mayor Virginia Hayter said she does not believe there will be many more occasions in which Lind will have to claim conflict of interest. She also said she is uncertain whether the mortgage question constitutes a conflict. She has advised Lind to discuss the question with Village Atty. Edward Hofert.

Hofert said last week the critical question in Lind's situation is whether Lind sees a conflict. "If he thinks he does, that is sufficient — sufficient feeling in my opinion to refrain from voting," said Hofert. Even though there may be no actual conflict, under the terms of the Illinois conflict of interest law, there may be an effective deterrent to voting in the mind of the trustee.

LIND COULD FACE a conflict once Lincoln Federal is operating in Hoffman Estates, and qualifies as a depository of village funds. Lind said he would not allow the village to deposit funds in Lincoln Federal, and Mayor Hayter said she sees no reason for the village to do so.

Lind apparently obtained his job, in part, because he is a village trustee.

Lind was laid off from his previous position as of Jan. 1. He was a bond underwriter with Dee Naab, a Loop firm. The company eliminated Lind's department, and he was discharged along with other employees.

Lind was out of work more than two months. In searching for a new job he visited employment agencies, and it was on the way home from an interview March 8 that he decided to drop in on Lincoln Federal to observe the operations of the new business coming to town. Tom Kinst, a vice president who had appeared at village hearings, recognized him as a village trustee and took him on a tour of the building.

Lind said Kinst asked him how his work was going, and was amazed to learn Lind was out of a job. Kinst introduced Lind to the personnel manager, and the following day Lind's employment was suggested at a board of directors meeting. Lind started work May 12.

Lind expects to be working in the savings account department in the Hoffman Estates facility. He said he does not know why Kinst offered him a job, and noted he "had to start at the bottom of the heap — learning the business from scratch" because experience as an underwriter was not related to his new duties.

LIND SAID IT never crossed his mind before stopping at Lincoln Federal the firm might have an opening for him, and his qualifications as an underwriter were "completely different than for opening savings accounts."

Kinst said he does not know whether he would have hired Lind had he walked into the savings and loan as a stranger, but said Lind or anyone else would have been welcome to apply for a post. He disagreed with Lind's assessment of his own qualifications, saying Lind has developed skill in forming contacts with people, an important quality in the savings and loan business. Lind "was a natural" for Lincoln Federal because of his contacts in the area, and because of "the way he handles people," said Kinst.

"The fact he knows a lot of people in the area, and lives out there, was helpful, and actually qualified him for the job," said Kinst. Lincoln Federal did not have any personnel from the Hoffman Estates area until Lind was hired, he said.

Kinst added Lind was not hired for any influence he might wield as a trustee.

Fremd High School Teacher Karma Johnson added, "I think I'd like to see education be a little higher priority in Dist. 211 and I'd like to see the board treat our negotiators as people."

The teachers also held a rally Monday night to support their negotiators. More than 250 of the district's 503 teachers attended.

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek, who is chairman of the board's negotiating committee, said he was hesitant to comment on negotiations Wednesday. "I don't want to try to negotiate in the press," he said. He said he was not disturbed by the teachers' appearance Tuesday night or the rally the night before.

CREEK SAID HE DID present some figures to teachers Tuesday to combat their claims that teachers' salaries have not kept up with the cost of living. The cost of living has gone up 43 per cent since 1967, said Creek, but a teacher who has been working in Dist. 211 since then and now has a master's degree has received a salary increase of 136 per cent.

"When you start at a poverty level and increase 136 per cent that's not much of an increase," said O'Brien Wednesday. "The base salary in 1967 was $6,000 and at that rate we could apply for food stamps."

O'Brien said the only change in the proposed salary contract package came from the board Tuesday night. The board had proposed a 15 per cent increase in the amount of money for teacher life insurance, but Tuesday offered to pay life insurance in the same amount as to an individual teacher's salary. The total amount of dollars involved in the new proposal is lower than the board's previous offer, said O'Brien.

Equestrians on parade

The finest equestrian in Hoffman Estates annual July 4 parade will receive a trophy for the first time this year from Mayor Virginia Hayter.

Hoffman Estates Independence Day Committee has provided a 30-inch walnut based trophy which will be permanently displayed at the municipal building. Each year the winners name will be added to the trophy. Winners will be given individual smaller trophies.

The award will be given to the best horse and adult rider. Awards will be based on costume appearance and conduct of the horse.

The event will be judged by Mrs. Bruce Beeson and two other judges. Those wishing to enter competition may contact Mrs. Beeson at 884-0463.

Service League to meet

The Service League of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North will hold a general meeting Monday at Schaumburg Township Library, 32 W. Library Ln.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

Honor retiring teachers

Mrs. Margaret Wegener and Mrs. Lela McKown will be honored Thursday at a retirement dinner for their service to Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

Mrs. Wegener taught second grade at Lakeview School, 280 Lakeview Lane, Hoffman Estates, for 14 years. She is retiring after 40 years of teaching.

Mrs. McKown taught third grade for nine years at Lakeview. She has taught for 26 years.

Hoffman Estates is maneuvering to receive more revenue from fines levied on persons charged by village police with violations of the state motor vehicle code.

In some instances, the village traffic code covers the same violations as the state code. But in cases where the village code did not apply, patrolmen issued tickets citing the state regulations, and any fines resulting from the tickets were delivered to the state.

This week the village board instructed Village Atty. Edward Hofert to prepare an ordinance under which the village would adopt the entire state code by reference. Patrolmen then will be able to cite the same violations, but list village laws, and any fines will accrue to village coffers.

Talks on buying Rob Roy golf course may resume

Rob Roy in Prospect Heights?

Should the Rob Roy Golf Course be in Prospect Heights? The question was raised this week by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert.

Teichert tossed out the idea during Tuesday night's village board meeting as a way he said, of sparing the board from second guessing should the village reject a request to build apartments and condominiums on the course.

"As far as Rob Roy is concerned, its ultimate destiny would best be served if a corporate group had control of it rather than the county," the mayor said. "But that doesn't mean it has to be our corporate group."

The village board did not take a stand on Teichert's suggestion that the 200-acre golf course be included in the boundaries being drawn for the new City of Prospect Heights.

THE GOLF COURSE, which is east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue, currently is in unincorporated Wheeling Township. It is contiguous to Mount Prospect and to the yet-unincorporated City of Prospect Heights.

Teichert indicated that if Mount Prospect turns down a pending request by Kenroy Inc., Skokie, to develop the course, Kenroy would seek rezoning from Cook County. At that point, he said, residents of the area "may feel better" if the course were in Prospect Heights, which is in the process of forming a city.

Teichert said he had not contacted officials in Prospect Heights for their view on the matter, because there are no elected officials. Both Jack Gilligan, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., and Richard Wolf, vice president of the group, were unavailable for comment Wednesday.

The Village of Mount Prospect had earlier opposed Prospect Heights' bid to incorporate because the proposed boundaries included a small portion of the golf course. Teichert said the village's objection was based on the theory that the golf course should be contained entirely in one community or the other, but should not be under split jurisdiction.

by TOM VON MALDER

A new round of talks and investigations into the possibility of a public purchase of the Rob Roy Golf Course may be initiated as a result of Tuesday's Prospect Heights Park District referendum.

The referendum included an opinion question that asked the park district residents if they wanted an additional referendum at a later date to earmark funds for a public purchase of the Euclid Avenue Golf Course. That vote was 540 yes, 366 no.

Park District Pres. Max Lyle said Wednesday he would write letters over the next two weeks to surrounding area park districts and the Village of Mount Prospect. They will invite officials to meet with Prospect Heights park officials to discuss a joint purchase of the 200-acre golf course.

"It looks like the vast majority of the community is interested in participating in some way in a public purchase of the golf course," Lyle said, reflecting on Tuesday's vote.

THE GOLF COURSE purchase question has been brought to public attention in recent months because of the efforts of Kenroy Inc. of Skokie to build apartments on the property. Originally, Kenroy asked Mount Prospect officials for annexation and zoning for 4,500 apartments. Before that request was considered by the village—which informally had indicated the plan would be rejected—Kenroy's plans were revised to include 2,700 units with an 18-hole golf course around the perimeter of the development. Kenroy changed its plans in part because the village zoning board voted down the first proposal.

A zoning board hearing on the revised Kenroy request will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Mount Prospect Village Hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Lyle will send letters to the Village of Mount Prospect and the following park districts (Continued on page 5)

$150,000 Weller Creek work due this summer

Work is expected to begin this summer on a $150,000 project to improve Weller Creek in Mount Prospect and Des Plaines.

Both communities, as well as the state's Division of Waterways, have given their stamp of approval to the project, which is intended to restore the creek's banks from School Street in Mount Prospect to the Washington Street bridge in Des Plaines.

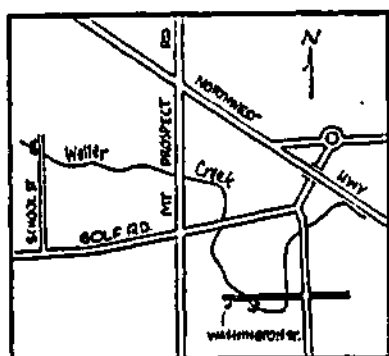

The Mount Prospect Village Board unanimously approved the joint venture Tuesday night. The Des Plaines City Council had approved the project April 15.

JOHN GUILLOU, an engineer with the Des Plaines firm of Alstot, March and Guillou, Wednesday said field surveys will begin next week and initial designs should be prepared by early July.

FOLLOWING APPROVAL of the plans by the three participating agencies, construction should begin in early August, he said, with completion in the fall.

Guillou said the project will include erosion protection and restoration of the low-flow section in addition to the bank improvement. When completed, the creek will have "slightly greater capacity than under the state's original 1972 design for improving the creek," he said. The state was in the midst of the improvement when floods struck and interfered with the work.

A major portion of the new project includes installing gabions—wire baskets filled with crushed stone—about 6½ feet from the stream bed in order to prevent erosion.

HERE'S WHERE Weller Creek is slated for improvement. The banks will be upgraded between School Street in Mount Prospect and Washington Street in Des Plaines. Work is expected to begin this summer. (Herald graphics by Dick Westgard)

Both participating municipalities and the state are chipping in $50,000 each toward the project. Des Plaines' portion is from the city's federal revenue sharing funds, and Mount Prospect's is from the village's $2 million flood control bond issue.

And the 'Duke' recalls...

'We didn't find out we were going until the night before . . . we just loaded up and went'

by BARRY SIGALE

It was the greatest assault in the history of warfare; an assault on a continent, on an opposing army, and on the idea of fascism.

On the Allied side 30 years ago today there were some 2 million men. And of the thousands who died on the beaches and in the hedgerows and of the thousands who came back there was a GI named Duke Kopplin.

William "Duke" Kopplin, who joined the army as a buck private and left it as a major in the combat engineers after the conquest of Europe, stepped onto the beaches of Normandy on D-Day plus one day. He was part of a generation of men for whom the war was something to be part of.

FOR DUKE KOPPLIN, a resident of Arlington Heights and a 60-year-old businessman who works as a cost accountant in Melrose Park, the D-Day invasion was also the time he was notified of the birth of his son.

News that William Kopplin Jr. had been born reached Kopplin at Swansea, England, shortly before he sailed for France and the invasion.

He wasn't worried about the possibility of never getting to see his son. "If you go into war with the thought that you might get killed, you're a dead duck already," he said. "I figured if it was my time to go it was going to be."

Kopplin landed at the beachhead at Normandy, France, with a reinforced platoon of 45 men. Though their main task in the Second Engineer Combat Battalion was to build bridges they were acting as front line troops in the face of German resistance.

"I remember they were firing at us with machine guns from a church tower," said platoon commander Kopplin of a skirmish at the village of Vermeille Sur Mer where the invasion began 30 years ago today. "We got off the road and into the ditches." Finally, after a lengthy battle, they took the position and chased the enemy away. It was the first of many such victories that would bring the Germans to their knees.

IT WAS only right that Kopplin should share in a piece of America's greatest victory and come back as a war hero with honors.

WILLIAM "DUKE" KOPPLIN of Arlington Heights was an American war hero during World War II as a platoon commander in the 2nd Engineer Combat Battalion. Entering as a buck private and leaving as a major, Kopplin exemplified the men who battled the Germans with a massive attack that began June 6, 1944, D-Day, as it was called 30 years ago today, was the beginning of the end of Hitler's Germany.

Kopplin, nicknamed Duke when he was a kid because his middle name was Earl, could have easily been tagged that way as a result of his exploits during the war.

He enlisted in 1939, met his wife when he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston in Texas and spent some time in training at Camp McCoy, Wis. They were married in 1942 and shortly after he was shipped overseas in a cloak of secrecy.

He and his men were transported at midnight in a darkened train to the New York harbor and sent by boat off to Belfast, Ireland, to await further instructions. The division might have remained at home a while longer if it hadn't been for radio commentator Walter Winchell, said Kopplin. "Winchell said,

"Where's that famous Second Division?" Kopplin recalled. "Two days later we had orders to move out."

BEFORE HIS war days were over, Kopplin had earned the Silver Star ("For Gallantry in Action"), the Purple Heart and other medals. He was wounded in action and sent to England to recover and was greeted with a resounding welcome home at a New York celebration at the same harbor he had left to go to war.

During the war he proved to be an outstanding soldier. The main thrust of his war activity began at Normandy.

"We didn't find out we were going until the night before," said Kopplin. "We just loaded up and went. It was the biggest flotta of boats you've ever seen." Kopplin said he would have taken part in action on D-Day itself if it wasn't for a "snafu" in the

'You'll never see it again,' general says

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Thirty years after the Allied invasion of Normandy in World War II, Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton believes there may never again be a troop movement of the size and scope of D-Day.

"You'll probably never see something of that type," said the general who led the U.S. Eighth Army Corps against the Nazis in the Battle of the Bulge.

"There's been such improvements in the air and in weapons, that I doubt you could concentrate and then transport troops across a channel like that."

"Of course, we didn't have the opposition from the Germans in the air. We had absolute supremacy in the air. When I got into the rendezvous area off the coast of France, I didn't

KOPPLIN RECEIVED the Silver Star for his war exploits. He was part of a two-man detail removing mines from a bridge Americans wanted to cross. Under heavy enemy fire the two men succeeded and the Germans driven out. Of the honor bestowed on him he said in a letter home, "I still don't think I deserved it."

He struck a handsome pose in combat regalia.

River Trails to keep wary eye on Park View School

by LUISA GINETTI
The School Dist. 26 Board of Education plans to "closely monitor" the uneasy situation that exists at Park View School in Mount Prospect, according to board president Michael Sheyker.

Sheyker told a group of parents and teachers from the school Tuesday that the board and the administration are aware of the current animosities that exist between teachers at the school and Principal Tomkins Barnhart and said the board intends to "make Park View a smooth running school."

"We feel that the children are the most important consideration and we will monitor all our schools and watch the situation as it develops at Park View," Sheyker said.

The discussion of the Park View situation developed at Tuesday's board meeting following the board's decision to reinstate a fifth grade teacher who had been suspended for two days this week by Barnhart.

John Antonik, a tenured teacher at the school, allegedly misrepresented himself as principal of the school when talking to a parent on the phone last week.

THE TEACHER suspension brought several teachers and parents to the board meeting and precipitated a lengthy discussion about the tense feelings which exist at the school.

"The teachers are under stress and strain and it's affecting the students more than anyone else realizes," one parent said.

Max Brittain, a nontenured teacher who will not be returning to Park View next year, said many teachers at the school are afraid to speak up for fear of reprisals.

"The teachers that remain who have taken a stand are fearful of actions that will or may be taken against them in the form of harassment," Brittain said.

Another teacher from the school said the faculty had tried to resolve the unrest through administrative channels by meeting with Supt. John Fridlund. Referring to a special Saturday board meeting in April in which the board decided to take no action to remove Barnhart, the teacher said the faculty felt they were being "passively attacked and put on trial" by comments from some parents.

SEVERAL PARENTS said they were confused about the situation at the time of the April meeting and didn't know who to defend. One parent said part of the defense shown for Barnhart was based on parents' desire to avoid another turnover in principals at the school. Park View has had six principals in the past seven years.

Board members also added their comments about the situation. "I think the harassment at the school has been mutual," board member Sylvia Lurie said, "and those who think the easiest way to solve the problem is by removing the herd are oversimplifying the solution."

"When a committee is torn apart by rumors it is difficult to deal with a situation," board member William Haase said. "It is not a simple problem but it is one which the board is keenly aware of."

Board member Lloyd Demel said he believes the "vindictive comments" of both sides indicate the parties involved do not have the interests of the children at heart. Demel added that the board is aware of the situation at Park View but such problems should be dealt with by the administration.

"The board is not an administrator; it is a policy-maker," Demel said.

IN RESPONSE TO suggestions that an open meeting between the board, parents, teachers and Barnhart be held, board member Leora Rosen said a more suitable topic for discussion might be what kinds of programs should be implemented in the schools.

Mrs. Rosen added that it is difficult to evaluate a situation which is as heated as the problem at Park View. "It's difficult to find a light bulb when there is snow flying all around it," Mrs. Rosen said.

She added that what is needed now in her opinion is a general reduction of the excitement surrounding the matter.

Board member Frank Smith said he sensed from the direction of the discussion that there is a willingness among parents and teachers to work to solve the unrest at the school.

GARY RATHGEBER, president-elect of the River Trails Education Assn. and a teacher at Euclid School in Mount Prospect, said the discussion pointed out the frustrations that exist at the school and served the purpose of providing an open airing of feelings.

Barnhart, who had been present at the meeting through the board's decision on the teacher reinstatement, left before the discussion of the Park View situation began.

Antonik's reinstatement was recommended by Barnhart.

Village board wrapup

Fees for building permits hiked 25%

Fees for building permits in Mount Prospect have been increased by an average of 25 per cent.

The village board Tuesday night raised the rates for the permits, which must be obtained before any new construction or building addition can be undertaken.

Building Dir. Buell Dutton, who proposed the higher rates, has indicated they would bring the village more in line with what other municipalities charge, and help make his department self-sustaining. As an example of the new rates, the addition of a 1,000-sq.-ft. room to a house currently would cost $49.50 in building fees. Under the new fee schedule, it would cost $79.

Developers of multi-family units will carry a larger share of the burden, paying fees on the basis of the number of units built.

School condemnation OKd

The village board officially gave Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann the go-ahead to file suit to condemn the Central School property for a public library. The board earlier went on record as endorsing condemnation proceedings, but did not pass the enabling resolution until this week. The Mount Prospect Public Library board hopes to obtain the property, at Main Street and Central Road, to tear down the structure and replace it. The village's offer of $623,000 for the site and present building has been rejected.

Fire department changing

The Mount Prospect Fire Department is being restructured in a military-type organization. Effective Nov. 1, positions will be available in the following ranks: chief, one; deputy chief, one; captain, 4; lieutenant, 10; firefighter, 43; and fire engineer, one. Currently, there is one chief, Lawrence A. Pairitz; no deputy chiefs; one captain; 11 lieutenants; 42 firefighters; and no engineers.

Fire cadets get diplomas

Certificates were presented this week to seven graduates of the Mount Prospect fire cadet program, the first of its kind in the state. The program is designed to train high school students in firefighting techniques. Each of the seven, 18 years old and seniors at Prospect High School, completed a two-year course under the direction of Firefighter Leonard Kaiser.

They are Michael J. Barra, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barra, 417 N. Wille St.; Donald L. Burger, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Burger, 715 N. Wille St.; Randy S. Cherwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cherwin, 603 S. School St.; Anthony S. Geoulikas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Geoulikas, 205 N. Kenilworth; Ronald R. Oshgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Oshgan, 2 N. William St.; and Bill Seiwert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Seiwert, 611 N. Eastwood Ave., all of Mount Prospect; and Larry Mace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Mace, 112 S. Rammer Ave., Arlington Heights.

Beer with corned beef

Patrons of the Randhurst Corned Beef Center will soon be able to have a beer with their sandwich. The village board this week agreed to create an "R" license, which allows beer and wine to be served with a meal, but prohibits a bar.

Ham radio towers OKd

Ham radio operators will be able to erect 60-foot antenna towers without obtaining special permission. The village this week adopted an ordinance allowing 60-foot towers (with an over-all height, including mast, of 70 feet) in a single-family residential district.

Parking stall change set

The board agreed to allow a field change permitting parking stalls measuring 9 by 20 ft., rather than the required 10 by 20, at the Hawthorn development at the southwest corner of Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street. A representative of the developer, Kenroy Inc., Skokie, said the firm was unaware until last week of an eight-foot easement that affects the size of 17 stalls. In all, 327 parking spaces are planned for the 100-unit apartment development at the former Dawn Fresh Mushroom farm.

Sales tax cost cut urged

The village board has gone on record as encouraging Gov. Daniel Walker to sign a bill reducing the state's charge for collecting and distributing sales tax from 4 per cent to 2 per cent.

MOUNT PROSPECT LIONS Club Pres. Jack McLean, far right, and Karen Mokato, Diane Killimani and Yasu Hanano discuss the plans for the Prospect High School American Field Service chapter. The Lions Club recently contributed $300 to the chapter. Karen will be going to Thailand this summer and Diane to Brazil under the chapter's sponsorship. Yasu, from Japan, has been the AFS foreign exchange student at Prospect High.

End of Sportsman's strike halts plans for night racing

by TONI GINETTI
Settlement Wednesday of a strike between horsemen and management at Sportsman's Park has ended plans for night racing at Arlington Park Race Track.

Agreement was reached Wednesday morning between the striking Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. and the Cicero race track's management, thereby abruptly ending a controversy which had developed surrounding the transferring of the Sportsman's night schedule to Arlington Park.

Arlington Park Tuesday had been granted night racing dates this Friday and Saturday and next Friday and Saturday by the Illinois Racing Board despite objections from the City of Rolling Meadows. Those dates were in effect rescinded Wednesday with the reinstatement of racing at Sportsman's.

The strike settlement came only hours before Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose planned to file in Cook County Circuit Court for an injunction to prevent the night racing. Rose said he was notified at about noon Wednesday by attorneys for the racing board that the Arlington day-night doubleheaders had been canceled.

Harness racing will resume at Sportsman's on Friday, according to spokesman William Johnston Jr.

THE SETTLEMENT Wednesday marked the second time this week planned night racing at Arlington was halted. A weekend decision by racing board members had authorized a racing doubleheader Monday, opening day for the Arlington racing season, but the threat of a lawsuit from Rolling Meadows prompted racing board chairman Anthony Sciarano to stop the program only six hours before the planned 8 p.m. post time.

The suit would have charged the board with violating the Illinois Open Meeting Law, authored by Sciarano when he was a state legislator, because a public hearing on the racing proposal had not been held.

A meeting of the board was called for Tuesday and the dates were then officially awarded, pending the outcome of the Sportsman's strike.

The reassigning of the racing to Arlington Park was aimed at preventing the loss of up to $100,000 a day in state revenue.

Night racing has not been held at Arlington Park since 1969.

Rose appeared before the board Tuesday to protest the night racing plan, saying the board did not provide time for area residents to file objections to the proposal.

PREPARATIONS were under way

Wednesday for Rolling Meadows to file for an injunction against the racing board's Tuesday action when word of the strike settlement came, Rose said. Rose said he had planned to base the court action on several factors including that the board had violated the "spirit" of the open meeting law and that application had only been made by Arlington Park for only two specific night dates although four dates were awarded by the board.

The "nuisance factor" and the matter of the public not having sufficient time to learn of the Tuesday racing board meeting would have also been cited, Rose said.

Horsemen at Sportsman's Park voted to end the strike early Wednesday when they agreed to a six-year contract with the track management. The contract calls for the horsemen to get 49 per cent of the track's mutual handle for the first two years, 49½ per cent for the third year and 50 per cent for the last three years, according to a racing board spokesman.

The horsemen had originally sought a two-year contract with 50 per cent of the mutual take while management offered a six-year contract with a 49 per cent split for the first two years, 49½ per cent for the second two years and 50 per cent split only for the last two years.

Wisconsin field trip big success

Planners of River Trails Junior High School's four-day outdoor education field trip to Wisconsin said last week's outing was such a success that they will recommend the Dist. 26 school board institute the project for all eighth-graders next year.

George Chase, social studies teacher and chief planner for the trip, said the 160 students who made the junket both enjoyed and learned from it. All activities and experiments that had been planned for the students were carried out, Chase said, and no major problems developed.

Chase said the weather for the trip was good except for the first day and a half — which was rainy. Despite the sprinkles, however, Chase said the group conducted some outdoor projects anyway.

AMONG THE HIGHLIGHTS of the trip to George Williams camp in Williams Bay, Wis., was a trip to the Yerkes Observatory, an expedition to a cemetery and outdoor experiments on land and in water.

Chase said students were not the only ones who had a good time. "The teachers (Chase and eight others) enjoyed themselves as much as the kids," Chase said. "It's more fun to teach outdoors than in a classroom."

The faculty members who made the trip with the students, who represented half the eighth grade class at the school, plan to present a report on the trip to the school board later this month. Movies and slides will probably be included.

Chase said the teachers will recommend that the board okay the project for the entire eighth grade next year due to the success of the pilot project with eighth grade core students this year.

Portable TV set taken in burglary

A portable television set, valued at $85, was taken in one of two burglaries reported Tuesday to Mount Prospect Police.

The television was stolen from the Judy Reining residence, 132 Horner Ln., between 8:35 and 9:30 a.m. Tuesday. Police said a door was forced to provide entry to the house.

The other burglary, in which it is unknown what was stolen, occurred at the Theodore Lazarski residence, 1609 Ironwood Dr., between 8 p.m. Monday and 1:50 p.m. Tuesday. Police believe a key may have been used to enter the house. Several drawers were disturbed, police added.

Scholarship assembly Friday at MacArthur

MacArthur Junior High School will hold its annual scholarship assembly Friday at 1 p.m. at the school, Palatine and Schoenbeck roads, Prospect Heights.

Students who have been named to the school honor roll for at least three quarters this year will be cited for academic achievement.

The names of the outstanding male and female teachers at the school as voted by the students will also be announced.

St. Alphonsus School graduation Friday

Graduation ceremonies for eighth-grade students at St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights will be at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the school, 411 Wheeling Rd.

The school has also announced the winners of a recent track meet at the school. Winners in grades one through four were gold medals to Lisa Gebert and Michael Sersen, silver medals to Anne Ferrara and Richard Behnke and a bronze medal to Patricia Zemaitis.

Winners in grades five through eight for the decathlon include Linda McGuire and B. Jordan, gold medals to Beth Foehringer and Bill Luzinski, silver medals to Barbara Behnke and Michael Bartfay and bronze medals to Francine Rozzano and Tom Behnke.

Apartment dispute goes back to court

Resolution of the dispute concerning a request to build 119 apartment units at Palm and Tamarack drives in Mount Prospect has been shifted back to a Cook County Circuit Court judge.

An attempt by the developer, Salvatore DiMucci Jr., to strike an out-of-court settlement with the village that would allow construction of the apartments has apparently failed.

According to one village source, who asked not to be identified, DiMucci proposed as an alternative to the original request a similar plan, also with 119 units. The main difference in the plans is that the revised version would be a planned unit development, with structures placed on the entire 5.5-acre parcel, rather than on the individual lots.

According to the source, the village board, meeting in executive session, rejected the alternative.

The board's decision puts the matter back in the hands of Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne. At the last hearing, when the developer presented his arguments in favor of the rezoning request, Dunne suggested that the two sides attempt to reach an out-of-court compromise.

Since the effort evidently failed, the hearing will continue on June 24 with the village's rebuttal to DiMucci's case.

The suit was filed in 1969 after the village board rejected the request for the development, but had been continued for nearly five years by the time the presentation of arguments began this spring.

Dist. 26 wrapup

Food workers' 15% hike delayed

The Dist. 26 Board of Education has delayed action on approving a budget and salary schedule for the food service department. The board Tuesday asked the administration to review its recommendation for an approximate 15 per cent salary increase for the food service director.

Board member Lloyd Demel said he believes a 15 per cent salary increase was "intolerable," and added that a proposed five cent increase in the cost of school lunches could possibly be avoided if salary hikes were not so excessive.

According to the proposed budget presented by business manager Jean Melster, the price of a school lunch would increase next year from 40 cents to 45 cents and the price of milk would jump from 3 cents to 5 cents.

Mrs. Melster said the additional 5-cent cost of lunches is needed to offset higher food costs. The extra nickel per lunch is expected to generate an additional $10,000. Several parents at the meeting said they would not object to paying the extra five cents because they believe their children are receiving a good lunch under the current program.

Other board members agreed with Demel. Board member William Haase said the proposed salary hikes may be too high and member Ted Wattenberg echoed this sentiment.

Board member Frank Smith said he was hopeful that based on recent commodity market figures, the price of food may be coming down. He suggested that if a five cent increase is approved, the board make a mid-year review of costs to determine if the price of lunches could be returned to 40 cents.

$47,816 taxes abated

The board approved a resolution abating taxes amounting to $47,816 on the 1974 bond and interest levy for the district. The tax abatement was made possible by approval of an application to the Illinois Capital Assistance Program for reimbursement on bonds sold after Jan. 1, 1969.

After-school pay approved

The board approved an addendum to the 1974-75 contract agreement negotiated with the River Trails Education Assn. The addendum calls for an appropriation of $963 for after-school activity pay for teachers.

Kassuba must sell holdings

About 75 per cent of all completed Kassuba Development Corp. apartments in the Chicago area will be included in the sale of about half of Kassuba's nationwide holdings to an investor group led by the Los Angeles-based Income Equities Corp.

Although Kassuba officials refuse to name the properties intended for sale until deeds are signed, the firm's Chicago regional director, Vincent Donile, said Wednesday 5,800 of the approximately 8,000 Chicago area apartments are included. Several of Kassuba's apartment complexes are in the Northwest suburbs, and it appears certain at least some of them will be sold.

Donile said the sale will include only apartments finished and available for occupancy, and not those under construction at the time of closing. Currently 25,000 units are in construction stages, he said. Either Kassuba or Income Equities will notify tenants in sold complexes when the transfer is final, said Donile, but he was unable to predict how long that will take.

Most Kassuba developments have the word "Trace" in their name, although not all do. Kassuba owns 28 complexes in Illinois, 27 of them in the Chicago area. Nationally, it owns 42,000 apartment units in 119 complexes, and 63 of the complexes are to be sold.

THE SALE WAS forced by financial reorganization Kassuba sought under the Federal Bankruptcy Act in December, and was approved by a federal bankruptcy referee Tuesday. A condition of the sale is acceptance by Kassuba's secured creditors of some terms, Kassuba's attorney, Richard F. Levy of Chicago, said in court many of the creditors already have agreed to the principle.

While the sale is pending, Kassuba is making a "concentrated effort to refurbish" all its complexes in the Chicago area, and to complete units not now finished. "Our immediate goal is to perform all maintenance necessary in all projects in Chicago," said Donile.

In Buffalo Grove, where city officials threatened condemnation of Berkshire Trace Apartments, citing safety hazards, Donile said Kassuba now is "performing all deferred maintenance we couldn't perform during the winter." Work includes roofing, balcony and firework repairs or replacement, landscaping, painting and pavement repair. Donile vowed to "show Buffalo Grove our intentions are more than honest and honorable," and said Kassuba "intends to comply with all their requirements." Similar problems in Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows, are being corrected since the city filed suit against Kassuba.

IN HOFFMAN ESTATES, where 10 of 11 buildings under construction and nearly completed have lain dormant for an estimated six months, "we hope to get started in the very near future," said Donile. He said he could not promise construction would resume within two months, although Joe Steinberg, regional manager out of Palm Beach, Fla., suggested that time period. Donile said remaining work in the Hermitage Trace project could be completed within months.

Efforts are under way to increase occupancy in all Kassuba developments, said Donile, although he said company policy and the pending sale prevent his revealing current occupancy statistics.

Kassuba's tenants will not experience rent increases, at least for the duration of their leases, even if their buildings are sold, said Donile. "I'm sure all property management firms would look at possible cost of living and maintenance increases" as new tenants are signed or existing leases expire, he added.

Among other Kassuba operations in the Northwest suburbs are Birchwood Trace and Orchard Trace, Wheeling; Candlewood Trace and Countryside Trace, Arlington Heights; Pinebrook Trace and Deer Trail, Palatine Township; Fairway Trace, Greenwood Trace and North Shore Trace, Des Plaines; Hermitage Trace, Hoffman Estates and Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows.

Talks on buying Rob Roy golf course may resume districts: River Trails (The district in which the golf course lies), Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling and Des Plaines. "They should be interested in this too," he said.

Hopefully, Lyle said, meetings would be set up to explore the possibilities of a joint purchase and the available federal and state funding. He indicated that referendums in each participating district or community might be needed to raise sufficient funds.

BY ITSELF, A referendum in the Prospect Heights Park District, if successful, could raise slightly more than $700,000 toward the estimated $6 million to $9 million, Lyle said. Although he added that that figure could be higher if the park district's total assessed valuation is more than the $32 million last reported. No report on assessed valuation has been issued so far this year, he said. In addition, the district's assessed valuation will increase some $5 million next year, Lyle said.

Lyle said the timing of a referendum in his own district would be dependent "on a lot of things" that would come out of the meetings with the other taxing bodies. "We can't buy the golf course alone," he said. "But we have a clear indication that it (a second referendum on Rob Roy) would pass."

In many ways Lyle's upcoming efforts will duplicate the actions of several months ago undertaken by the Village of Mount Prospect when it initiated a series of meetings with the five park districts. Those meetings, in which only Prospect Heights participated in the first, also were to discuss the feasibility of a joint effort to buy the golf course.

One by one, however, officials of the park districts indicated that while they would like to see the golf course remain as open space, they did not have the funds to participate in the undertaking.

The Village of Mount Prospect sought outside funding from federal and state governmental sources. Then, when those efforts apparently failed, the village considered sponsoring a referendum to buy the property. That alternative, however, also was dropped, and the village last month turned over its two appraisals of the golf course's value to the Mount Prospect and River Trails park districts for their use.

Blood donors still needed

The Mount Prospect village blood drive is still looking for volunteers for its next drawing Friday night.

Blood drive chairman Norma Murauskis indicated she hopes 150 donors will sign up for the drawing, which will be from 4 to 9 p.m. at the Mount Prospect Country Club, 600 S. See-Gunn Ave.

The village is attempting to raise 1,800 pints of blood in a year. The figure is roughly equivalent to 4 per cent of the village's population and, if reached, would assure all Mount Prospect residents of an unlimited supply of blood for one year at no charge.

Volunteers can call 439-9727 or 392-6000 to sign up for an appointment. Donors must be at least 18 years of age, 110 pounds and in good health, or 17 years of age with written parental permission.

Mrs. Murauskis reminded donors that they are not to partake of alcoholic beverages within 12 hours of their scheduled appointment, marijuana within 72 hours or certain types of food — dairy products or fatty or greasy foods — within four hours.

End of Sportsman's strike halts plans for night racing

by TONI GINETTI

Settlement Wednesday of a strike between horsemen and management at Sportsman's Park has ended plans for night racing at Arlington Park Race Track.

Agreement was reached Wednesday morning between the striking Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. and the Cicero race track's management, thereby abruptly ending a controversy which had developed surrounding the transferring of the Sportsman's night schedule to Arlington Park.

Arlington Park Tuesday had been granted night racing dates this Friday and Saturday and next Friday and Saturday by the Illinois Racing Board despite objections from the City of Rolling Meadows. Those dates were in effect rescinded Wednesday with the reinstatement of racing at Sportsman's.

The strike settlement came only hours before Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose planned to file in Cook County Circuit Court for an injunction to prevent the night racing. Rose said he was notified at about noon Wednesday by attorneys for the racing board that the Arlington day-night doubleheaders had been canceled.

Harness racing will resume at Sportsman's on Friday, according to spokesman William Johnston Jr.

THE SETTLEMENT Wednesday marked the second time this week planned night racing at Arlington was halted. A weekend decision by racing board members had authorized a racing doubleheader Monday, opening day for the Arlington racing season, but the threat of a lawsuit from Rolling Meadows prompted racing board chairman Anthony Sciarano to stop the program only six hours before the planned 8 p.m. post time.

The suit would have charged the board with violating the Illinois Open Meeting Law, authored by Sciarano when he was a state legislator, because a public hear-

Controversy at a glance...

Here is a recap of events beginning Sunday surrounding the Arlington Park Race Track night racing controversy:

Sunday: A strike by the Illinois Harness Horsemen's Assn. against the operators of Sportsman's Park in Cicero canceled the planned opening of harness racing Monday at that track. The Illinois Racing Board agreed in a telephone poll to switch the night racing schedule to Arlington Park Monday.

Monday: The Arlington Park racing season opened at 2 p.m. with another racing schedule slated to start at 8 p.m. The night schedule was called off only six hours before post time by racing board chairman Anthony Sciarano after Rolling Meadows officials threatened to file suit against the board. Rolling Meadows City Atty. Donald Rose said the board had violated the Illinois Open Meeting Law because no public hearing on the matter of night racing had been held. Sciarano then called for the matter to be discussed Tuesday before the board.

Tuesday: The racing board voted unanimously to grant four night racing dates to Arlington Park unless the strike at Sportsman's Park was resolved. Rose protested the action before the board saying Rolling Meadows residents living near the track had not been given sufficient time to file objections to the plan.

Wednesday: Rose was preparing to file in Cook County Circuit Court a brief seeking to stop the races scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday. The action was not taken, however, when it was announced at mid-day that the Sportsman's strike had been settled and that racing would resume Friday at Sportsman's.

ing on the racing proposal had not been held.

A meeting of the board was called for Tuesday and the dates were then officially awarded, pending the outcome of the Sportsman's strike.

The reassigning of the racing to Arlington Park was aimed at preventing the loss of up to $100,000 a day in state revenue.

Night racing has not been held at Arlington Park since 1969.

Rose appeared before the board Tuesday to protest the night racing plan, saying the board did not provide time for area residents to file objections to the proposal.

PREPARATIONS were under way Wednesday for Rolling Meadows to file for an injunction against the racing board's Tuesday action when word of the strike settlement came, Rose said. Rose said he had planned to base the court action on several factors including that the board had violated the "spirit" of the open meeting law and that application had only been made by Arlington Park for only two specific night dates although four dates were awarded by the board.

The "nuisance factor" and the matter of the public not having sufficient time to learn of the Tuesday racing board meeting would have also been cited, Rose said.

Horsemen at Sportsman's Park voted to end the strike early Wednesday when they agreed to a six-year contract with the track management. The contract calls for the horsemen to get 49 per cent of the track's mutual handle for the first two years, 49 1/2 per cent for the third year and 50 per cent for the last three years, according to a racing board spokesman.

The horsemen had originally sought a two-year contract with 50 per cent of the mutual take while management offered a six-year contract with a 49 per cent split for the first two years, 49 1/2 per cent for the second two years and 50 per cent split only for the last two years.

Salinsky successor to be second nonelected trustee

by KURT BAER

Schaumburg cub firm exec arrested

The owner of the Schaumburg Cub Co. was arrested by Arlington Heights police Wednesday and charged with operating his vehicles without a village license.

Kenneth T. Anderson, 1603 S. Princeton, Arlington Heights, owner and operator of the company, posted a $1,000 recognizance bond and was released pending a July 10 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Police said Anderson's cubs had been stopped and issued tickets on several occasions for operating in the village without the proper village license.

night, will become the second nonelected official to take a seat on the present board.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh said Wednesday he told the trustees in executive session Monday night to pay particular attention to current members of village boards and commissions when thinking of nominees for Salinsky's post.

"The obvious alternative is to take someone who has been involved in the recent past," Walsh said.

The trustees are scheduled to close themselves in the village hall conference room again on June 17 to pick the individual who will fill out the 10 1/2 months remaining in Salinsky's four-year term.

The ritual, from which the public is always excluded, was last repeated in October, 1973, when J. Burton Thompson, 705 S. Kennicott Ave., was picked to fill the 1 1/2-year unexpired term of former Trustee Graeme C. George.

Walsh said the naming of Salinsky's

And the 'Duke' recalls...

'We didn't find out we were going until the night before . . . we just loaded up and went'

by BARRY SIGALE

It was the greatest assault in the history of warfare; an assault on a continent, on an opposing army, and on the idea of fascism.

On the Allied side 30 years ago today there were some 2 million men. And of the thousands who died on the beaches and in the hedgerows and of the thousands who came back there was a GI named Duke Kopplin.

William "Duke" Kopplin, who joined the army as a buck private and left it as a major in the combat engineers after the conquest of Europe, stepped onto the beaches of Normandy on D-Day plus one day. He was part of a generation of men for whom the war was something to be part of.

FOR DUKE KOPPLIN, a resident of Arlington Heights and a 60-year-old businessman who works as a cost accountant in Melrose Park, the D-Day invasion was also the time he was notified of the birth of his son.

News that William Kopplin Jr. had been born reached Kopplin at Swansea, England, shortly before he sailed for France and the invasion.

He wasn't worried about the possibility of never getting to see his son. "If you go into war with the thought that you might get killed, you're a dead duck already," he said. "I figured if it was my time to go it was going to be."

Kopplin landed at the beachhead at Normandy, France, with a reinforced platoon of 45 men. Though their main task in the Second Engineer Combat Battalion was to build bridges they were acting as front line troops in the face of German resistance.

"I remember they were firing at us with machine guns from a church tower," said platoon commander Kopplin of a skirmish at the village of Vermille Sur Mer where the invasion began 30 years ago today. "We got off the road and into the ditches." Finally, after a lengthy battle, they took the position and chased the enemy away. It was the first of many such victories that would bring the Germans to their knees.

IT WAS only right that Kopplin should share in a piece of America's greatest victory and come back as a war hero with honors.

WILLIAM "DUKE" KOPPLIN of Arlington Heights was an American war hero during World War II as a platoon commander in the 2nd Engineer Combat Battalion. Entering as a buck private and leaving as a major, Kopplin exemplified the men who battled the Germans with a massive attack that began June 6, 1944. D-Day, as it was called 30 years ago today, was the beginning of the end of Hitler's Germany.

Kopplin, nicknamed Duke when he was a kid because his middle name was Earl, could have easily been tagged that way as a result of his exploits during the war.

He enlisted in 1939, met his wife when he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston in Texas and spent some time in training at Camp McCoy, Wis. They were married in 1942 and shortly after he was shipped overseas in a cloak of secrecy.

He and his men were transported at midnight in a darkened train to the New York harbor and sent by boat off to Belfast, Ireland, to await further instructions. The division might have remained at home a while longer if it hadn't been for radio commentator Walter Winchell, said Kopplin. "Winchell said,

"Where's that famous Second Division?" Kopplin recalled. "Two days later we had orders to move out."

BEFORE HIS war days were over, Kopplin had earned the Silver Star ("For Gallantry in Action"), the Purple Heart and other medals. He was wounded in action and sent to England to recover and was greeted with a resounding welcome home at a New York celebration at the same harbor he had left to go to war.

During the war he proved to be an outstanding soldier. The main thrust of his war activity began at Normandy.

"We didn't find out we were going until the night before," said Kopplin. "We just loaded up and went. It was the biggest flotilla of boats you've ever seen," Kopplin said he would have taken part in action on D-Day itself if it wasn't for a "snafu" in the

'You'll never see it again,' general says

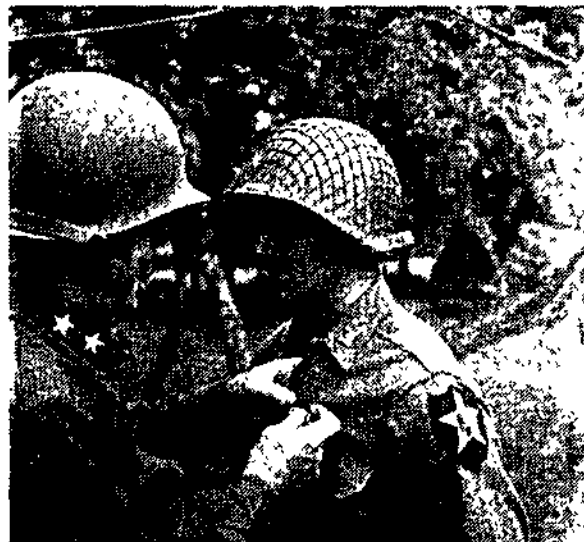

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Thirty years after the Allied invasion of Normandy in World War II, Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton believes there may never again be a troop movement of the size and scope of D-Day.

"You'll probably never see something of that type," said the general who led the U.S. Eighth Army Corps against the Nazis in the Battle of the Bulge.

"There's been such improvements in the air and in weapons, that I doubt you could concentrate and then transport troops across a channel like that."

"Of course, we didn't have the opposition from the Germans in the air. We had absolute supremacy in the air. When I got into the rendezvous area off the coast of France, I didn't

KOPPLIN RECEIVED the Silver Star for his war exploits. He was part of a two-man detail removing mines from a bridge Americans wanted to cross. Under heavy enemy fire the two men succeeded and the Germans driven out. Of the honor bestowed on him he said in a letter home, "I still don't think I deserved it."

He struck a handsome pose in combat regalia.

Second nonelected trustee to get seat successor is "sensitive" because the trustees "could put somebody pretty much in the driver's seat. In an extremely good position, for the next village election."

IN ADDITION, to Salinsky's seat, trustee positions now held by Thompson, Ralph Clabour and James T. Ryan will be up in next April's village election.

Politically, this leaves the trustees with two options, to appoint a person whom they think will make an attractive candidate next April, or one who will fill out the unexpired term without additional political ambitions.

A prominent name falling into latter category is Russell Colvin, 605 S. Bristol Ln., who recently resigned from the Board of Local Improvements after 15 years of village service.

Colvin, who has been a staunch and loyal supporter of the village Caucus Party that has dominated Arlington Heights politics for years would answer Walsh's search for a trustee who "knows the ropes."

Russell Colvin

Robert Miller

Dwight Walton

But when contacted by the Herald Wednesday, Colvin indicated it might take some convincing to get him to take the trustee job.

"I haven't even given it a thought at all," Colvin said at first. But then, he added "Aw, I've no desire to be a trustee. I think I've done enough as a public-spirited citizen."

"There are 70,000 people in this town and I'm sure there are at least several hundred who would want the job and could do a darn good job," he said.

In the stream of "new blood," there is Robert Miller, 119 W. Pickwick Rd.

A member of the plan commission for two years, Miller is young, and has expressed past interest in the trustee's job. He is a 10-year resident of the village.

HOWEVER there looms a possible conflict of interest because of his job as a traffic engineer with the Illinois Department of Transportation. On the other hand, his professional experience could make him an asset to the village board.

"I certainly would give favorable consideration to the position. But of course it is up to the trustees to make the decision," he said.

He said he did not think there would be a conflict of interest since his area of highway department concern is south of Devon Avenue.

Another trustee war horse is Dwight Walton, 1612 N. Douglas Ave.

A former village trustee who did not seek reelection in April, 1973, Walton is still a close personal friend of some village board members.

But his recent position as vice president of Brian Properties, Inc., a developer that frequently brings projects before the village board, could make his appointment controversial.

Walton said Tuesday his interest in the job would depend on whether there were a number of other people interested and qualified for the job.

"ON AN INTERIM basis, until the next election, yes, I'd probably do it to help out the community. But otherwise, well, there are so many other things that come up," he said.

Among the longshots that have to be counted in if only to make the race interesting, is Kay Muller, 418 S. Lincoln Ln., outspoken critic of Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

Mrs. Muller has a strong supporter in Trustee Alice Harms who could put her name on the table on the 17th.

But Mrs. Muller, a member of the Arlington Heights Park Board, did not even win reappointment to the plan commission Monday night.

Perhaps somewhat facetiously, she says she could be interested in the village post.

John F. White, 12 N. Stratford Rd., may also be under consideration. A former village trustee and Caucus Party chairman, White is an attorney who knows the working of village government, as well as the mayor.

In the past, however, White has strongly disclaimed any interest in the trustee's job.

One prominent village resident who apparently has no desire for Salinsky's chair is John Woods, 214 S. Belmont Ave. Mayor of Arlington Heights for nine years, Woods Wednesday said he has no interest in being a trustee.

Kassuba must sell holdings

About 75 per cent of all completed Kassuba Development Corp. apartments in the Chicago area will be included in the sale of about half of Kassuba's nationwide holdings to an investor group led by the Los Angeles-based Income Equities Corp.

Although Kassuba officials refuse to name the properties intended for sale until deeds are signed, the firm's Chicago regional director, Vincent Donile, said Wednesday 5,800 of the approximately 8,000 Chicago area apartments are included. Several of Kassuba's apartment complexes are in the Northwest suburbs, and it appears certain at least some of them will be sold.

Donile said the sale will include only apartments finished and available for occupancy, and not those under construction at the time of closing. Currently 23,000 units are in construction stages, he said. Either Kassuba or Income Equities will notify tenants in sold complexes when the transfer is final, said Donile, but he was unable to predict how long that will take.

Most Kassuba developments have the word "Trace" in their name, although not all do. Kassuba owns 28 complexes in Illinois, 27 of them in the Chicago area. Nationally, it owns 42,000 apartment units in 119 complexes, and 63 of the complexes are to be sold.

THE SALE WAS forced by financial reorganization Kassuba sought under the Federal Bankruptcy Act in December, and was approved by a federal bankruptcy referee Tuesday. A condition secured creditors of some terms, Kassuba's attorney, Richard F. Levy of Chicago, said in court many of the creditors already have agreed to the principle.

While the sale is pending, Kassuba is making a "concentrated effort to refurbish" all its complexes in the Chicago area, and to complete units not now finished. "Our immediate goal is to perform all maintenance necessary in all projects in Chicago," said Donile.

In Buffalo Grove, where city officials threatened condemnation of Berkshire Trace Apartments, citing safety hazards, Donile said Kassuba now is "performing all deferred maintenance we couldn't perform during the winter." Work includes roofing, balcony and firework repairs or replacement, landscaping, painting and pavement repair. Donile vowed to "show Buffalo Grove our intentions are more than honest and honorable," and said Kassuba "intends to comply with all their requirements." Similar problems in Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows, are being corrected since the city filed suit against Kassuba.

IN HOFFMAN ESTATES, where 10 of 11 buildings under construction and nearly completed have lain dormant for an estimated six months, "we hope to get started in the very near future," said Donile. He said he could not promise construction would resume within two months, although Joe Steinberg, regional manager out of Palm Beach, Fla., suggested that time period. Donile said remaining work in the Hermitage Trace project could be completed within months.

Efforts are under way to increase occupancy in all Kassuba developments, said Donile, although he said company policy and the pending sale prevent his revealing current occupancy statistics.

Kassuba's tenants will not experience rent increases, at least for the duration of their leases, even if their buildings are sold, said Donile. "I'm sure all property management firms would look at possible cost of living and maintenance increases" as new tenants are signed or existing leases expire, he added.

Among other Kassuba operations in the Northwest suburbs are Birchwood Trace and Orchard Trace, Wheeling; Candlewood Trace and Countryside Trace, Arlington Heights; Pinebrook Trace and Deer Trail, Palatine Township; Fairway Trace, Greenwood Trace and North Shore Trace, Des Plaines; Hermitage Trace, Hoffman Estates and Meadow Trace, Rolling Meadows.

Girl Scout troops hold annual cookout

An annual Girl Scout cookout was recently held at Busso Woods by troops 791, 63, 118, 620 and 43 and service unit 645.

Each scout and leader was dressed in Indian costumes and sang tribal songs at the opening ceremony.

The cookout, which included homemade ice cream desserts, was followed by tie-dyeing, volleyball, hiking, Indian games and other activities.

Joan Skiermanski of Arlington Heights served as leader for the event. Marjorie Klein of Arlington Heights and Barbara Gubricky of Chicago were her program aides.

Dunton School teacher on the move back home—to Africa

by BETTY LEE

Barbara Probst's teaching career is keeping her on the move, from continent to continent.

After a year of teaching second grade at Dunton School in Arlington, she's making plans to head for Africa. Miss Probst won't be a stranger when she arrives because Kenya is her home.

She's doing what many suburbanites are accustomed to — the roulette of moving from one place to another because of a company transfer or career change. As a veteran of the Arlington Heights School Dist. 23, she took time off last year after teaching at Greenbrier and Westgate schools, to teach in Africa. After a year there she returned to the United States to teach at Dunton School.

BUT SHE YEARNS to be in Africa now. "It was a hard decision," Miss Probst said. "There aren't very many (persons) there to help them. I'm happy here, too, but God wants me to help there for a little while."

She was born and raised there among seven brothers and sisters. Her parents are missionaries, but the stereotype of missionaries disturbs her a little.

"People often think that missionaries do the 'churchy' type stuff," she said. "We can be teachers, nurses, engineers or whatever and still can teach the word of God. We help them in some way. You just can't tell these people about the love of God if they're starving to death."

Barbara Probst

Her father worked as a medical doctor and as an engineer while she attended American schools there. She comes from a long line of missionaries. Family stories include the one about her great-grandmother bringing a couple of jersey cows to Africa with her so that they could breed good stock.

THE ADVENTURE of teaching in Africa isn't so glamorous because the education available there for youngsters isn't the same as it is here in the United States, she said.

"The children here are so lucky, they have no idea how lucky they are," Miss Probst said.

In Africa there are no modern games or devices to help children learn fundamentals in reading, writing or math. The schools there are government supported and are just beginning to be a part of African life. Educational programs are just beginning, she said.

Miss Probst will be teaching in a school for American children whose parents are missionaries there. Rift Valley Academy is a school mainly supported by churches and Christians from the United States.

"Theodore Roosevelt laid the foundation for the school while he hunted here," she said.

Bicentennial, other groups to make plans

The Arlington Bicentennial Commission will consult with village social and services organizations and churches this summer to sponsor activities in celebrating the nation's 200th birthday on July 4, 1976.

Chairman Dwight Walton said there are as many as 20 to 30 groups that will be asked to sponsor Bicentennial activities such as ice cream socials, craft and antique fairs and displays.

Commission members will act as liaison and will work specific details with each organization.

An application to federal authorities will be made this week so that the village can be designated as a Bicentennial community, Walton said.

Upon approval, Arlington Heights will be eligible to receive federal money through grants especially for Bicentennial activities.

PROGRAMS THAT WOULD be in effect after July 4, 1976, include designating historical sites in Arlington Heights with plaques; programs at the park district's proposed Prairie Farm, which will be developed into a replica of a typical 1890s farm; a Bicentennial room or area with books at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library and the Historical Society and development of Lake Arlington.

Some activities, resembling those that took place in the 1770s will be held prior to the Bicentennial. Spelling bees, farming on the cultural center site, craft, art and antique fairs will be scheduled.

To promote awareness in the village, signs, and bumper stickers will be used. A Bicentennial village sticker will be designed. Historical tours, displays and essay contests will be held.

Other activities, which will be held near the Bicentennial date include fireworks, ice cream socials, parades, band concerts, costume balls, picnics, and beard judging.

Sixty volunteer mothers honored at school lunch

Sixty mothers who have served as volunteers for St. Peter's Lutheran School, were honored recently at a luncheon at the school, 111 W. Olive, Arlington Heights.

Volunteers who worked at the school's library and instructional resource center are Fran Booth, Shirley Brown, Erna Finke, Phyllis Geiger, Mary Haag, Jean Haeger, Rachel Kagay, Barbara Koehler, Ruth Laubenstein, Dorothy Meyer, Charlene Mosching, Esther Nawrot, Florence Paul and Doris Pressano.

Also Trudy Rateike, Elsie Riedl, Ruth Roloff, Jeanne Schulthels, Gloria Schultz, Barbara Skelton, Lorene Stickels, Joan Thill, Donna Wascoe, Ruth Abel, Marilyn Apple, Evelyn Braun and Joanne Goebert.

Volunteers for the school's motor facility program in which 5 and 8-year-olds receive lessons to increase and improve body coordination include the following:

Barbara Templeman, Regina Kunz, Doris Swazey, Mary Frank, Ruth Borch, Dorothy Misura, Phyllis Klawitter, Carolyn Erikson, Marilyn Apple, Marilyn Evensen, Alice Joerns, Nancy Weirauch, Marsha Thomas, Beverly Borre, Evelyn Braun, Janice Brizze, LaVaun Griffin, JaNoel Lowe, Joann Makarski, Marilyn McGregor, Phyllis Severs, Judy Ahar, Phyllis Fasse, Judy Harrison, Yolanne Leno, Barbara Schramm and Cheryl Weinrich.

Urge consulting firms be interviewed

The Arlington Heights Village Board's finance committee has recommended that professional consultants be interviewed for several major upcoming projects.

The committee approved hiring R. J. Peterson and Associates for a design study on a 6-million-gallon water reservoir to be located either near the Wilke-Hoff retention basin or the Clearbrook industrial park.

Peterson's design work will cost $2,500, he estimated an estimated $870,000.

Traffic engineers, including the firm of Alstat and March, will be questioned about the cost of designing the Arlington Heights Road underpass at Northwest Highway, and the widening of Arlington Heights Rd., from Rand Road to University Drive.

The village hopes to get massive federal funding for both multi-million dollar road projects.

Another garage at the public works center on Ridge Avenue is also planned, and the committee has recommended that several architects be interviewed in connection with this project.

JO ELLEN CLAWES of Prospect Heights recently won a five-month fight to get "no turn on red" signs at the intersection of Camp McDonald and Elmhurst roads. Mrs. Clawes, a School Dist. 23 crossing guard, thought the signs were needed to protect children crossing the busy intersection to and from school. After speaking with several governmental bodies, Mrs. Clawes got the signs put in at the two north corners.

Local family sought for foreign student

The Arlington High School American Field Service (AFS) chapter is looking for a host family for next year's foreign exchange student.

There are no rigid requirements for a host family except that all members of the family welcome the exchange student. The student will be selected by AFS International Scholarships. AFS has been sponsoring students at Arlington High School since 1959.

Persons interested in the program may call either 255-3226 or 255-0264 for further information.
